ROYAL WELCOME

Arrival of the Duke de Veragua and the Other Representatives from Spain at Chicago.

They Received an Enthusiastic Welcome From an Immense Crowd That Cheered the Duke Heartily.

The Freedom of the City Presented by Mayor Harrison, With a Set of Silver Keys.

Carter Intended to Deliver an Address in Spanish But Found His Spanish Rather Rusty.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The gates of the World's Fair City were opened wide this morning to receive the advance guard of the distinguished visitors from far and near who, on Monday next, will dignify by their presence the formal dedication of the World's Columbian exposition. Appropriately enough, it was the ducal descendant of the great discoverer that led the triumphal march of the nations of the earth. It is true that the Liberty bell, that grand old reminiscence of the early days of the republic, preceded in its arrival the coming of the representatives of the Spanish nation by a few hours, but its formal entry into the city was deferred until this afternoon, when the business of the day has far enough advanced to enable millionaires and wage workers alike to turn out and uncover in the presence of the visitor from the Quaker City.

DUKE DE VERAGUA.

Little of pomp and ceremony marked the reception of the duke of Veragua, but there was a true Western heartiness and earnestness about the welcome that made his feel at once that he was at home and in the house of his friend. Long before the hour scheduled for the arrival of the ducal train at the Indiana-Ohio border, the reception committee from this city was in waiting at Grand crossing. They had gotten up with the lark and 7 o'clock saw the special car flying onward on the Pennsylvania road to meet the incoming train.

In the party were W. E. Curtis, representing the department of state; Senator Dupuy de Lome, commissioner general from Spain to the exposition; Hon. C. Chatfield-Taylor, Spanish consul in this city; President Palmer and President H. N. Higginbotham, representing the national commission and the local directory, and one representative each of the federal, state and city government and the citizens' committee of reception. The second section of the Columbian express, and to which the special car Amphin, in which the distinguished foreigners were quartered, reached Grand crossing a short time after 9 o'clock.

There was a stop of a moment to enable the reception committee to get aboard and then the engine opened the throttle and the train sped like lightning toward Chicago. The meeting between the World's fair representatives and the duke and his entourage, all the official welcome being reserved until the city was actually reached. Senator Taylor did the introductory honors and the duke and his party were seated and chatted on everything in general and nothing in particular.

The Duke Enthusiastic.

The duke was especially enthusiastic regarding the evidences of industry and prosperity that he had observed on every hand in his trip across the first half of what he repeatedly referred to as "this great wonderful country," and expressed a wish that his arrangements would permit of his seeing a great deal more of it than would be possible in the time that remains before his departure for home. The train reached the Union depot at 10:30 a. m. A large crowd had assembled and a rousing cheer shook the big barn-like structure even before a single one of those on the special car could be discerned save the grinning clerk who stood on the platform.

The crowd pressed forward on the gates and taken the train by storm, had it not been for the opportune arrival of a detachment of police which cleared a way through the throng and kept it back at a comfortable distance. When the ducal party had alighted from the train, President Palmer extended his hand and again grasping that of the duke formally welcomed him to the World's fair and the World's fair city.

President Palmer's Welcome.

President Palmer formally welcomed the duke on the platform inside the gates, his grace being in the center of a small but brilliant assemblage of officials and officers representing the exposition, the city of Chicago, the federal and state governments and the army. The duchess of Veragua stood by her husband's side, holding in her hands a magnificent bunch of American Beauty roses.

President Palmer's address occupied only five minutes, but in that time he took occasion to express in the heartiest manner possible the feelings of joy and gratification with which the people of Chicago and the nation at large greeted the descendant of the discoverer in whose honor the exposition was being held.

"I hope," said he, "that the manifestations of pleasure which your grace will find on every side during your stay in Chicago will prove agreeable to you. I hope that the scope and usefulness of the nation and its industrial people will be enlarged by the Columbian exposition. I venture to say that the visit of your grace will not be burdensome to you and that you will carry back with you the recollection that you have had a great nation for a host and 67,000,000 people as your most humble servants. The other ceremonies will be held at the Auditorium hotel, where you will be introduced to the ladies and gentlemen present."

The Duke's Reply.

The duke kept his hand on the arm of the ex-senator's hand during the few moments occupied by the address and, then wringing it heartily, expressed in a few chosen words the honor, pleasure and gratification which it gave him, not merely as an individual, but as a citizen of Spain and a humble descendant of the discoverer, to find himself welcomed within the borders of a city with the greatness of which he was already to a small extent familiar.

When the formalities were over, the visitors formed in line and made their way through the crowd and passed up the big flight of steps into Canal street, the appearance of the duke in the open air being the signal for another outburst of cheering from the crowd of four or five thousand people that stretched from Adams street away north to Madison street. The duke was evidently surprised as well as affected by the unexpected reception and the heartiness that was manifested, for after stepping into his carriage he stood for a moment as though undecided concerning the proper thing to do and then, turning successively to the east and the west, north and south, he bowed his thanks with grace and dignity. Only a moment was required to complete the arrangement of the procession and the head then moved around the corner and east on Adams street.

The vehicles were all open, although it was a cold, raw, and rainy day. A fitting specimen of the atrocious apogee for weather that the Windy City has been enjoying for a month or more. The duke and his party did not seem to mind it. They buttoned their coats and wraps tight around them and smiled back at the smiling faces on the sidewalk and looked altogether more contented than if they had been cooped up where they could neither see nor be seen. Throughout the route of the procession, east on Adams street, through the avenue, and thence south to the Auditorium hotel was lined with spectators.

At Adams street and La Salle some sixty or seventy members of the board of trade had assembled and as the procession passed they indulged in a succession of pork-pit yells and whoops, following it up with a cheer as an intimation that they did not mean any harm to the city's guests. When the head of the procession rounded the Pullman building and deployed the Michigan avenue, a salute of fifteen guns was fired from the revenue cutter Andrew Johnson which was lying at anchor in the harbor.

Upon reaching the Auditorium, the visitors were shown to their apartments without any further formalities. The entire second floor had been reserved for their comfort and accommodation. Rooms and hallways alike were profusely decorated with flowers and plants, a thoughtfulness which gave especial gratification to the ladies of the party and drew from them many cries and expressions of surprise and pleasure, as they passed through one apartment after another, the suite or rather the series of suites, which the party will occupy while in Chicago are finished in terra cotta and red with furnishings of pink.

The duke's private parlor, which overlooks the lake front and upon which he looked down the moment he entered upon the suite, is a great ancestor unveiled but a couple of days ago, is upholstered and decorated in green. The private dining room is finished in

CANNON BOOMED

Great Demonstration on the Advent of President Cleveland in the World's Fair City Today.

Heartily Greeted by City Officials, Amid a Multitude of Shouts and the Booming of Cannon.

Secretary of State Gresham Also the Recipient of Cheers From His Former Fellow Townsmen.

The President's Apartments at the Lexington Are Filled With Choicest Gems of the Conservatory.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Fresh from the splendors of the naval display, President Cleveland was welcomed to Chicago today with the shouts of a multitude, the booming of cannon and the hearty greetings of the official representatives of the state of Illinois and the city of Chicago. The welcome was inaugurated away down in the sister state of Indiana, where the special train was boarded by a composite delegation, comprising Governor Altdorf and the members of his staff, Mayor Harrison and his cabinet, Director General Davis, Collector of the Port John M. Clark. The president, who was personally acquainted with a majority of his visitors, received them cordially.

First, Governor Altdorf, for the state, and then Carter Harrison, for the city, told him how much they delighted in his presence and how the entire commonwealth was his to command, while Mr. Cleveland in response remarked that he had a lively remembrance of Chicago's hospitality and extending back some years.

The scenes enacted at the Union depot upon the arrival of the president's party were in the main a repetition of those that greeted the duke of Veragua and his suite, only that the throng in waiting was larger and infinitely more exuberant. It packed the public portion of the big shed from one end to the other, massed itself solidly on the steps, while outside there was a sea of heads for a couple of blocks in either direction.

Incessantly Cheering.

President Palmer and Vice President Peck were in waiting at the depot to express a word of greeting in behalf of the exposition, and this done the services of the escorting police were called again into requisition and a pathway was found for the president's party to the city street. The crowd had commenced to let itself loose when the first rumble of the train was heard, and they kept up the cheering almost incessantly until the president had entered his carriage. When one knot of enthusiasts commenced to get hoarse, another crowd relieved them, and in this way the welcome was pretty well continuous.

Mr. Cleveland looked none the worse for his head bumping of yesterday, and the only evidence of his fact was a small cut of court plaster on the forehead above the right ear and which so well matched the tinge of his flesh that it was scarcely discernible except on close inspection. He pleasantly responded to the cheering by repeated doffings of his hat. It was noticeable also that Secretary Gresham came in for general recognition, so much so, in fact, that Secretary Carlisle was prompted to laughingly suggest that he evidently was not one of the individuals who have no honor in their own country.

The presidential procession was nearly three times as long as that which had escorted the duke, and it stretched out several squares. This was the order in which it moved: A detachment of twenty-seven mounted police led the way. Then came Company B of the United States cavalry, commanded by Capt. E. A. Varnum. The Illinois national guard was represented by its First and Second regiments, commanded respectively by Colonels Koch and Indell, as well as by the cavalry, Troop A, Light Battery E of the United States artillery, brought up the rear of the military contingent and cleared the way for a string of forty carriages. Four of these were occupied by national commissioners and members of the local directory.

President Cleveland was seated in the fifth carriage, a handsome vehicle drawn by two white horses. Governor Altdorf sat on his right and Mayor Harrison on the opposite seat. In the sixth vehicle Vice President Stevenson had F. W. Peck for company; Secretary Gresham had Director General Davis all to himself; Secretary Morton with Director Kerfoot and Ambassador Bayard with Commissioner Bradley B. Smalley, Postmaster General Russell rode with A. T. Ewing. Carriages were provided for Maj. Gen. Miles and his staff, as well as for the mayor's cabinet and the members of the city council.

A Presidential Salute.

The procession followed the same route as that of the ducal party except that it continued on Michigan avenue a

TO THE WORLD'S FAIR

Nearly Every Factory in West Duluth is Shipping Exhibits to the Columbian Exposition.

The Great Western Manufacturing Company Compelled to Run Nights to Keep Up With Orders.

Duluth Manufacturing Company to Erect a Large Blacksmith Shop Costing $6000, at Once.

Nearly every factory in West Duluth has within a week shipped some contribution to the World's fair. The blast furnace cast some very fine pigs of the best grade of Bessemer iron, made from ore furnished by the Cincinnati mine, for the great exhibit. The products of the Duluth Manufacturing company will be represented by the Thatcher dump car, and the Great Western Manufacturing company by a large motor, made for running mining machinery.

The box factory was shut down for a few days for further improvements in the machinery, but is now running again to its fullest capacity. The factory was started up before it was entirely equipped, to get out some pressing orders, but the equipment is now complete. A new side track is being put in for use by the factory.

The Marinette works has completed some heavy orders this week. The last shipment of the beam mills for the Iron-ore plant was made yesterday. The repairs on engine No. 3 of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad were completed and the engine went today. An extra crew member was also furnished for the whaler, Colgate Hoyt. The company is at work on eight steam pumps for the mining companies on the Mesaba and Gogebic iron ranges, including a compound condensing pump 16 by 30 by 6 by 12 for the Chandler mine and three smaller ones of like pattern for mines in Michigan.

The Great Western is very busy getting out orders and is now busily getting a portion of the night. An order has been received for a dynamo and complete electrical outfit from the Mountain Iron company.

The output at the blast furnace has been increased from 100 tons per day to 120 tons. This increase is due to the use of a new grade of limestone obtained from Iron Mountain, Mich., in place of the Minnesota stone which has heretofore been used. The furnace which is to run the new engine has been completed, and an expert from Youngstown, Ohio, is setting up the new engine and is to have it in running order inside of twenty days.

The Duluth Manufacturing company is making preparations to build a $6000 blacksmith shop. The dimensions of the structure will be 125 by 75 feet. The present shop has always been too small for the purpose and the increase in the number of workmen necessitates the erection of a new one as soon as possible. The construction department is now at work on the Thatcher dump cars for the Iron Range railway.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., April 29.—The storm that was central over the Lake region yesterday morning has moved almost directly east, instead of northeast as is customary. It is now central over Missouri, while an area of high barometer has moved down from the northwest and covers the country to the west of here with its center over South Dakota.

The precipitation has been general, but not especially heavy over the Southern states and has been a general fall in the temperature over the entire Northwest, ranging from 22 to 25, over the South it registered between 64 and 68. It is probable that fair weather will continue here until Monday and perhaps longer. From the present outlook, with slightly higher temperatures while the wind shifts to the northeast. The highest thermometer registered yesterday was 25, falling again during the night to 20.

DULUTH, April 29.—Fair until Monday, slight change in temperature, if any, warmer, variable winds shifting to northeast.

H. H. JOHNSON, Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Generally fair, with becoming warmer; slightly cooler in the northwest portion Sunday. For Minnesota, North and South Dakota: Generally fair; east to southwest winds; warmer, except in eastern portion of Minnesota.

Decreasing the Death Rate.

It is stated that as a result of industrious house cleaning this spring the death rate of Philadelphia and New York already shows a decrease. This house-cleaning included the cleaning of the streets, alleys and backyards, and it is not astonishing that it has reduced the death rate in these cities, because similar results have always attended the improvement of the sanitary conditions in all cities.

During the winter months, when the cold weather prevented the propagation of disease germs and the snow and ice covered the accumulation of garbage and rubbish and dirt in the backyards and streets, thus preventing them from giving off unhealthy odors, the death rate in Duluth has been very low. This is because the climate of Duluth is naturally healthy.

But springtime has come. It has been a long delayed spring, it is true, but the advent of steady warm weather may now be expected. This is the season when the dormant energies of the earth are springing into life, when rubbish and dirt heaps will propagate germs and create epidemics of disease. The horrible head of cholera has risen again in Russia. The monster is slowly making its way across the Eastern continent and soon only the broad Atlantic will separate the deadly plague from America. There are hundreds of vessels running between this country and Europe. They will be crowded this year with visitors as well as with immigrants. The quarantine officers will be sorely taxed at our Eastern seaports to keep out the insidious disease which, lurking in the clothing or baggage of some of the arrivals, may be brought into this country.

The manifest duty of the hour, therefore, is that every city in America shall devote as much attention as possible to sanitation. Cleanliness is cholera's most potent foe. The cities must be cleaned and then they will be in a position to cope with the great destroyer of life. If the work be vigorous and thorough, with its deadly germs and noxious vapors, will flee, and even if cholera shall be kept out of the country, the health of the people will be improved and the death rate reduced.

In view of these facts, the duty of the city authorities of Duluth is manifest. The board of health may clean the city thoroughly, but its work will be useless, unless provision be made for keeping the city clean, and one of the most pressing needs in this direction is the establishment of a municipal system of garbage collection and disposal.

The Price of Wheat.

Reports from all parts of the Northwest indicate that the season is very backward and comparatively little grain has yet been sown. The ground is so wet that it will require a considerable stretch of fine, warm weather to dry it, and in the meantime it will not be in condition to work. This is true of Minnesota as well as both the Dakotas.

Advices from Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas do not give very flattering accounts of the conditions, and the inevitable conclusion is that there will be a shortage this year in both the spring and winter wheat crops. The reports from Europe regarding the crops in England and on the continent do not promise an average yield. While snow and rain have been delaying operations here, extreme drought has been playing havoc with the crops in Europe.

Wheat today is selling at a very low price. It has within the past few weeks touched the lowest point ever reached on the Duluth board of trade, and this is true of the other great grain markets. While it is true that the visible supply in this country at present is much in excess of what it was a year ago, still it is showing a steady decrease from week to week and when lake navigation is fully opened it will be rapidly reduced. With large shipments abroad and the almost absolute certainty that the crops this year will be considerably below the average in quantity, it seems almost positive that wheat prices must rise, and that the farmers who withhold their wheat from sale now will get much better prices in the near future.

The "hold-your-wheat" circulars in 1891 miscarried because wheat declined in price, but as that cereal is now about as low as it can get and the conditions point to an inevitable rise not far in the distance, "hold-your-wheat" seems to be good advice this year, even if it was astray in 1891.

The World's Fair Opening.

The Herald, in its edition next Monday, May 1, commemorates the formal opening of the World's fair at Chicago, will completely cover the news of this international event in all its bearings. The issue will be a large one and will contain much matter of interest concerning this important epoch in the history of this country and of the world.

No more complete and interesting report of the events connected with the inauguration of the great exposition will be published in the Northwest: than will be found in the columns of The Herald.

During the past few days the naval review and parade in New York have been the subject of extended reports in this paper. They have not been surpassed in style or completeness by those published in any other paper in the West. This is an earnest of the thorough manner in which the story of the World's fair opening on Monday next will be told by The Herald.

In this connection, attention is again directed to the fact that The Herald has arranged for a series of illustrated letters on matters connected with the great exposition, written by George Alfred Townsend, who is better known to the public under his nom de plume of "Gath." These letters will be published by The Herald exclusively in this section and will be found excellent reading. Other correspondents will also be represented in The Herald's columns, and one of them will give particular attention to the Minnesota exhibit and the showing made by Duluth.

The World's fair will be the greatest event of the kind that has ever occurred in the world. It will be worth a journey round the world to see, and when seen will be remembered for a lifetime. Many, however, will be unable to do more than hurriedly rush through it and glance at some of the leading features, owing to lack of time to see everything in such a vast exhibition. The Herald proposes to describe the fair so fully that those who are debarred from a lengthy stay in Chicago, or who are unable to visit that city even for a day, may have a complete idea of the great fair in all its features and attractions.

The Anti-Doran Campaign.

The St. Cloud Times has rushed to the defense of "Boss" Doran from the attacks of the Minneapolis Times and claims that Mr. Doran has as much right as any other citizen to make recommendations to the president, but as to what these recommendations may have, that is a matter for Mr. Cleveland and his consideration. "Why," it asks, "does the Times not take the president to task?"

If The Herald understood the Minneapolis paper's article correctly, it did take the president to task for accepting the recommendations of the St. Paul Democratic boss, in preference to the recommendation of the Democratic congressmen from this state, and charges that Mr. Doran was not actuated in seeking appointments by any desire to build up the Democratic party in Minnesota. Of course it did not denounce Mr. Cleveland, because he can hardly be aware of the truth of the charges made by the Minneapolis Times, if they are true, and there are some people in the Sixth district who believe them to be true. The Minneapolis paper is trying to arouse the Democrats to overthrow the boss by protesting to President Cleveland against further recognition of Mr. Doran.

Maj. Baldwin is reported by Washington correspondents to be making no concealment of his dislike for Mr. Doran and also to be declaring that he won in the Sixth district despite Mr. Doran. What does the St. Cloud Times think of this charge? It is a Democratic paper published in the Sixth district and it gave Maj. Baldwin splendid support. Is it with Maj. Baldwin or Mr. Doran in this fight for the federal patronage?

At a meeting of the Troy, N. Y., Presbytery held this week, Rev. T. P. Sawin said during a debate: "I do not like the idea of Calvinism. Calvin was a murderer and a scoundrel. He said many good things and those I will accept, but the church should be an exponent of the gospel and not of Calvinism." This is queer talk by a Presbyterian minister, and the anti-Dorans men will be sure to ascribe it to the doctor's "heretical" teachings.

Public Opinion has issued a neat supplement consisting of portraits of sixty well known Washington correspondents, without whose help the public would never know what goes on at executive sessions of the senate. It is a handsome piece of work and will be hung on the wall of many an editorial sanctum.

The navy department has notified

American inventors that congress, at its last session, appropriated $200,000 for the construction of a submarine torpedo boat, for which the department is prepared to receive designs. Here is a splendid opportunity for the ingenious inventors, and they are many, who reside in Duluth.

Right on the heels of the election of a Democrat to congress from a Massachusetts district, heretofore regarded as surely Republican, comes the statement that the roller skating craze shows signs of revival in the western part of that street. The effects of nudgumpism are said indeed.

Mrs. Mendenhall's usual weekly contribution to the exhibit to be made by the Minnesota department of household economics at the World's fair was received too late for publication this week. She is at present in Chicago arranging for the exhibit, and is making good progress.

Health Commissioner Ware of Chicago says that no city in the country equals it in its sanitary condition. This will be good news for World's fair visitors. It is probably true; certainly it is much cleaner than New York.

The Winona Herald (Democratic) declares that Michael Doran is "a gentleman whom the Democrats of the state revere. The Herald must except the Minneapolis Democrats from this sweeping assertion.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE BATHS.

The impossibility of having Turkish Baths in Private Houses.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In a recent issue of your paper I saw an article on Turkish baths that attracted my attention for several reasons. Being in the "public" Turkish bath business myself for many years gives me the right to speak intelligently on the subject of "private" and "public" baths. There was very much in this article that was true and savored of good sense and judgment, especially in the reference to the baths in the East; but Asiatic and South European countries are so different from our own in temperature, and climatic changes, that they can scarcely be classed together. What would be eminently proper for them, would not hold good here.

As to cleanliness, I believe it to be "next to godliness." One must be clean to think clearly and act justly. I hold—clean inside and out. More enters into this word cleanliness than can be discussed in a newspaper article. A bathroom in every house is an absolute necessity to right healthful living; but we find many houses, and modern ones, too, without them. They are expensive necessities. No class of artisans claim the exorbitant wages of plumbers. They are perfectly competent to do the job, and I am sure whoever has had their bills to pay will bear me out in this remark. Poor people cannot stand the pressure, so builders and plumbers have the small room set aside for it, trusting to be able in the future to fit it up properly.

How many of even our best houses could put in apparatus for Turkish baths? What is to be done meanwhile? One must depend upon an ordinary sponge or tub bath, or go to the public bath house. I cancel the point of less privacy in the public bath, but there need be no lack of "decency" or "decorum" in the fact that several ladies are sitting together in one room with feet immersed in tubs of hot water, and sheets draped a la Greek, than if one should sit alone. The delicacy of thought and the respect that makes a woman womanly will not forsake her in the public bath room. She will be polite there from an innate sense of politeness, just as she is everywhere. She need not walk barefooted from the dressing room to the "hot" room, if she does not wish to; her hand slippers, brought from home in her hand bag, will obviate this difficulty.

It would be delightful to be able to have sun always in our bath rooms; but even in the homes of the rich this could not be done, for the room was on the roof and of glassed in, unless we could, like Joshua of old, "command the sun to stand still" over our roof. And sunbathing, even this would not answer, for the sun refuses to shine upon us anywhere. No, do not minimize the good of public baths. Let good work go on anywhere, everywhere; encourage cleanliness of body and soul in all possible ways, both by precept and example and this better the time when public sentiment will require and demand what it now asks for in a manner so indifferent that only refusal can be expected. Let the time come when one will not find a house without a bath room, no matter what else it may have.

Suppose every house had the required space for a Turkish bath; the necessity is only half met. We must have the attendance of the other part goes for nothing. I desire only what is fair, and I desire the best good of humanity, especially the women part of it. Let us divest ourselves of "grindstone and whetstone," for all time if they prove hurtful to us, in spite of Dame Fashion, and let what God intended we should be, healthful, happy, cleanly, helpful women. Meanwhile use the "public" bath until something better is devised.

American Store.

DULUTH, Saturday, April 29, 1893.
The weather tomorrow is likely to be fair, warmer.

The Hat Problem!

'Tis difficult to avoid making a mistake when securing a hat, because the majority merely produce hats to sell and care not for the future satisfaction of the article.

You cannot tell whether a hat is becoming to you or not by viewing its reflection in a mirror.

You cannot tell which arranging and putting together of colors lends most to your features, or which form or shape of hat is most suited to your general appearance. The width of shoulders, the height of shoulders, length of neck, the size and character of nose, chin and eyes. The general profile, the complexion, the quantity and quality of hair. The bearing, all, absolutely all must be taken into consideration to create an artistic effect with the hat or bonnet.

This Acquirement Is a Rare Accomplishment!

Possessed only after vast experience with suitable advantages. Yet we've got this quality of service and we do not ask you to sell your farm to procure it, but positively assert that our prices are infinitely less than those asked by apprentices.

Look Round,

Compare, you'll readily notice this fact.

is Dress Goods Day.

The present unprecedented rush in the Millinery and Cloak Department has been scarcely more great than the central activity in the Dress Goods departments. The majority will know what "Dress Goods Day" means in this house.

To those who do not, we say if you intend getting a dress, this will be an exceptional time to do so, as we have secured from time to time a large number of exceptional things with the view of making this the greatest Dress Goods event yet conducted by us. One of the main features will be All-Wool Dresses from $3.25 up to $15.00 Each.

SMALL PRICES

For good stuffs is the main object of this occasion, besides the purpose of acquainting all with our New Dress Goods Departments.

New Stuffs

Will be sold exclusively, and we think you will say that we invariably do as we say after a glance at the goods and hear the prices they sell at.

NOTE: We will be forced to decline to lay any Dresses aside WITHOUT A DEPOSIT OF AT LEAST ONE-HALF. Respectfully,

The Cloak Problem!

There is no half way business with the Jacket or Cape, it is either all right or all wrong.

The principle elements of importance in a Cape is, first its length; second, its manner of hanging; third, the character of the collar and shoulder fullness; fourth, the finish and quality; fifth, the price, saying nothing of colors.

The cut of a Cape is more important than that of a Jacket, as it is more difficult to make a loose garment look graceful than a tight-fitting one.

A note in the Young Ladies' Journal says: "It is very laughable to see so many Capes being worn that look as though they had been made by a blind person," which indeed, is true of a vast amount of Capes that are made to sell.

Every one should have both a Cape and a Jacket, but if one wrap is the limit, the Cape now has the preference, principally on account of the fullness of the waists and the approach of seasonable weather for them. However, it is looked upon as ridiculous for a good figure to hide itself completely. We sell garments that are cut right, and made right, at extremely low prices.

HE MUST CUT IT DOWN

Judge Lewis Says David Ogilvie Must Reduce the Verdict Awarded Against Otto Erickson.

Instead of Receiving Three Hundred Dollars He Must Be Content With One Dollar.

Case of the Duluth & Winnipeg Against the St. Paul & Duluth On Trial in the Special Term.

In the district court this morning Judge Lewis issued an order, to the effect that unless the plaintiff in the case of David Ogilvie vs. Otto Erickson agrees within ten days to reduce the verdict of $300 awarded him by the jury a week ago to $1, he will grant a motion for a new trial. Ogilvie sued Erickson for $7000 damages for malicious prosecution, claiming that Erickson gave false testimony before the grand jury against him and causing him to be indicted for grand larceny.

The case of Charles Ibb vs. the city of Duluth occupied the entire morning, and is still on trial. In John Swenson vs. A. F. Shepard the court overruled the objection of the defendant and holds that it has jurisdiction of the action, and the method of sale was taken under advisement.

THE SPECIAL TERM.

The Case of the Winnipeg Road vs. the St. Paul & Duluth On Trial.

Judge Ensign presided over the special term of the district court this morning, and Judge Lewis assisted him during a portion of the afternoon. There were thirteen cases on the calendar, and of these five were continued. Proceedings were stayed on appeal in the matter of Joseph Le Page vs. Timothy Ryan, so that the defendant can make a motion to amend the conclusions of law. Judge Searle will hear the action of W. W. Bates vs. the B. B. Richards Lumber company at the convenience of court and attorneys and the stay is extended ten days.

An order issued discharging the assignee Gasser in the matter of the estate of S. Gelhaar, insolvent. The case of J. B. Douglas vs. the North Star Construction company is to be submitted on written briefs.

The case of the Duluth & Winnipeg Railway company vs. the St. Paul & Duluth Railway company occupied the greater part of the term, and while not important in dollars and cents, is important in the precedent it establishes. The plaintiffs want a long slice of the defendant corporation's right-of-way at Cluquet, and the defendants oppose the desire. The court-room looked like a railroad convention during the trial. Among the prominent railroaders present were General Manager Fisher, Assistant General Manager L. S. Miller, G. T. Copeland, Master Mechanic Payne, Roadmaster McNaughton, President Merritt and others. The case was not finished at noon.

Reception on the Ossifrage.

The outfitting of the Ossifrage is now nearly complete. She took a turnaround the open water yesterday and her engine worked like a charm. The electricians are thorough and when lighted up at night she is very brilliant. The uniforms of the officers are expected Monday and early in the week the owners will throw the boat open several evenings for the inspection of the public. The various officers will be proud to display the beauties of the boat, and the Ossifrage orchestra which will accompany the boat on all its trips will furnish music. In the meantime the boat is open every day and is visited by many people. None see her but to praise, and visitors universally make immediate reservations. The public will be notified as to the evenings, upon which the officers will "receive."

Has a Bad Head.

John Kollister was in the police station this morning with a pretty bad looking head. John is a Finlander and went into Brainerd about two weeks ago with wages for five months' work in the woods. Convince out of a saloon he was snugged and robbed. A fellow countryman gave him enough money to get to Duluth and he was picked up on the street last night. A plaster has been placed over a severe wound on the back of the head. The pus has collected under the skin of the scalp and the fellow's head presents an alarming and horrible appearance. The case was referred to the county physician.

MRS. KIMBALL NO. 2.

Not the One Formerly Known in Minneapolis.

H. E. Ellis writes to the Minneapolis Times as follows: My attention has just been called to an item published in your paper of Friday morning last, under the heading "Played the String Out," which does great injustice to an innocent woman.

The woman who is charged as leaving Duluth under a cloud, deeply in debt to jewelers and others, is not the same person formerly known in Minneapolis as Mrs. Charles R. Kimball, and then wife of the ticket broker doing business here a few years ago. The Mrs. Charles R. Kimball formerly known in Minneapolis procured a divorce from Charles R. Kimball nearly four years ago, and for three years has been and is now the wife of one of the most prominent citizens of Buffalo, N. Y., where they now reside. Will you kindly give this communication as much prominence in your paper as you did the item of last Friday, and thus set right an innocent woman?

New Postal Service.

According to a Washington dispatch, the postoffice department has made the following announcement: Railway postoffice service has been established on the lines of the Chicago & Northwestern and the Omaha railroad between Chicago and Duluth, a distance of 478 miles. This service will be in addition to the following railway postoffice lines, Chicago, Elroy and St. Paul between Chicago and Eau Claire, Wis.; Ashland and Eau Claire between Eau Claire and Spooner, Wis.; Duluth, Spooner, and St. Paul between Spooner, Wis., and Duluth. The line is to be known as the Chicago & Duluth railway postoffice and assigned to the Tenth division railway mail service.

Good to the Palmer.

Charles W. Shepherd, who managed the West hotel, Minneapolis, for five years from the date of its opening, has accepted the position of general manager of the Palmer house, Chicago. Mr. Shepherd is well known in Duluth and has an extended acquaintance all over the United States. He has some property interests here.

Civil Service Examination.

The United States civil service commission has notified the local examiners that an examination for the departmental and Indian service has been scheduled for this city, to take place Tuesday, May 2, 1893, beginning at 9 o'clock a. m., at the postoffice. Further information can be obtained of the local board of examiners at the postoffice.

ON THE MESABA RANGE.

Quite a Building Boom is On at Biwabik Now.

Activity in building operations was renewed this week at Biwabik, says the Mesaba Range. Several new structures are in course of erection and more will be started in a short time.

The case of the Biwabik mine, the contractors who are stripping the east forty of the Biwabik mine, let a contract this week for the erection of a boarding house on the east forty of the Biwabik townsite. The building is to be 30x120 feet in size and two stories high. It will be substantially built and will be used as a boarding house for the employees of the company. Morrison & McCarthy have secured the contract.

A. A. & J. E. Henderson, of Newberry, Mich., will soon commence work on a two-story structure, 24x30 feet in size, just east of Hill's saloon on Main street. This will be for rent.

Baroloma Corta and Jim Vorda, Italians, are erecting a large log barn for a dairy near the south line of the townsite. The building is nearly completed.

Dr. J. R. Humphrey will erect an office building on the corner of First street and Chicago avenue.

Mandel & Rogalsky, the progressive clothiers and tailors, are having plans made by T. W. Shaw for a two-story structure, 24x30 feet, which they will put up on the corner of Main street and Chicago avenue near their present place of business.

William Barrett, of Iron Mountain, Mich., will erect a two-story building on the corner of Main street and Cincinnati avenue. The first floor will be used for saloon purposes.

New Depots.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern has decided to erect a depot just at the foot of Main street, Biwabik. The depot spur will cross the Iron Range track from west to east and the Iron Range people have agreed to place all their side tracks to the south of the crossing, so that the Missabe & Northern needs to put in but one crossing. Construction on the depot will be commenced soon. General Manager Philbin says that it will be patterned after the depot at Virginia. Up to date the road has used a caboose as a depot.

It has been stated by reliable parties that General Manager Greetsinger, of the Duluth & Iron Range, has promised to have a depot in Merritt inside of six weeks. Grading on the Merritt spur was commenced this week, and as soon as the first leaves the ground the work will be pushed rapidly.

Mining Development.

F. A. Bates was in Merritt this week and in company with Superintendent Cundy went out to the Hale to make plans for development. Capt. Cundy says that he expects to have the Lidgerwood hoists set up within two weeks. The machinery has been shipped and is expected daily.

The Franklin mine, in which James Corrigan, the Cleveland iron man, is interested, will begin shipping as soon as the Iron Range road reaches the mine. There is already considerable ore in the stock pile at the mine, and a pocket is being built so as to haul directly from the shaft to the cars.

Four steam shovels are now at work in the main cut at the Biwabik, while Drake, Stratton & Co. have one digging away at the east forty. Yesterday while backing down four flat cars loaded with earth from the main cut the drawhead of the engine pulled out and the cars got away, crashing into three other loaded cars standing on the track. The ends of the cars which collided were badly damaged.

The Cincinnati made its first shipment of ore to the Two Harbors dock Monday. James Corrigan says he can find a ready sale for Cincinnati ore. Being high in silica it is in big demand among furnacemen for mixing with hard ores.

It is not all of fishing to catch fish. Great is the pleasure to match skill against natural instinct and cunning and capture the gamey brook trout, but there is a pleasure mingled with the sport no pen can describe. You must feel it for yourself. Lock the office door, if you cannot leave your business in any other way, and come away, far from the busy haunts of men gone mad in their haste to accumulate the almighty dollar, leave your ledger and bank book behind, throw to the winds your fears and anxieties concerning the stock market's fluctuations—be a child of nature just for today and live with Mother Nature as she would have us live when summer's winds blow soft and low. She will take the pressure from your figure-betided brain; she will smooth away the wrinkles from your care-worn brow. Far back in the tangled wildwood we will go, where the noise of traffic cannot reach your tired ears, and the melodies of nature in the songs of the birds, the murmur of the rippling stream and the rustle of the wind, as it whispers its secrets to the stately pines, will lull your tired soul to a peace it has not known. On the banks of the rushing stream we will pitch our tent, breathe the pure air of the heaven, mixed with every breath the wine of life, on every breeze scents sweeter than ever wafted from Araby the blest—the odor of the fir and pine. Here you will sleep as you have not slept since childhood's careless hours. Here you will find your long lost appetite, and your wonder will be if there is grub enough in the packs or fish enough in the streams to prolong your existence until more can be obtained. When your outing is over and you return to civilization and its ceaseless round of duties, you will go back ten years younger, like one with youth renewed, your heart full of God's pure sunshine, in your soul a little laughter, the laughter of the brook."

The grand descriptive fantasia, "Columbus," is a great selection and is particularly appropriate at this time. The synopsis is as follows:

Grand opening fanfare announcing the majesties of Spain, torchlight dance—the storm gradually abates—prayer—quietness—dullness—melancholy—mutiny of the crew—the voice of Columbus quells the disturbance—land, ho!—birds greet the ships—excitement on board—burrah, burrah!—salute of the great guns—aborigines heard in the distance—mixture of Indians yelling in the distance—landing—hail Columbia—finale.

THE ANGLERS OF DULUTH.

They Are Yearning for Warmer Weather to Visit the Trout Streams.

The robins have come. The fog horn has cleared its throat and is again ready for business at the same old stand, yet winter still lingers and the anglers are impatiently waiting the coming of weather that will allow them to tread once more the well known trails afar in the forest depths to the deep, dark pools where the big trout hide. You can learn it from their talk; you can read it in their faces—they want to go fishing again, and they want to go almighty bad.

It is not all of fishing to catch fish. Great is the pleasure to match skill against natural instinct and cunning and capture the gamey brook trout, but there is a pleasure mingled with the sport no pen can describe. IN THE SOCIAL WORLD

Nothing Startling Took Place During the Week But There Were a Number of Smaller Events.

Annual Ball of the Boat Club Next Wednesday Evening is the Event of Next Week.

Select Excursions on the Steamers Ossifrage and Christopher Columbus Are Coming Pleasures.

Socially Duluth is "pretty well, thank you," and the happenings of the past week though not large ones have been very pleasant and numerous. Hardy hall, which has won quite a good name for its receptions as for its fine educational record, was lively last evening with a number of fashionable guests at the annual reception. Everyone seems busy preparing for something, and the knowing ones say that Wednesday's ball of the Duluth Boat club will be about the finest thing of the season. At any rate it will be fully as enjoyable as the club's events usually are, and that means a great deal.

There is quite a plethora of church musicals on the card for the coming week and they will probably all be well attended. The Ossifrage people will probably announce an invited and very exclusive excursion in a day or two, not one for revenue, but just to show off the gem of a steamer which has been fitted out for excursion business and the Christopher Columbus trial trip which will follow later, will be something of a social event in which leading people of both sides of the bay will join.

AT HARDY HALL.

Annual Musical and Art Reception by the Pupils Last Evening.

There was a large gathering at Hardy hall last evening, it being the occasion of the annual musical and art reception by the pupils. The exhibition of their talent both in art and music was very creditable. Specimens of crayon work, paintings and other art work of the pupils were shown.

The musical program was of a high order and was rendered in a pleasing and excellent manner. Miss Flora Brishin was given hearty applause for her piano solo. Chopin's "Polonaise Heine" and Miss Isabella Fanning's playing of Goddard's "Valse" was equally well received. Other solo numbers were by Misses Kate Ensign, Gean Miles, Irene Goffe, Francis Edwards and Marion Crosby. There were also a number of piano duets and quartets. Mrs. C. B. Yale, of St. Paul, sang two numbers and met with an enthusiastic reception, the audience insisting on encores at each number. She has a remarkably clear and pure voice, very sweet and impressive.

Social Mention.

A concert at one of the opera houses during May is promised by Miss McDonald. Local musicians will assist. Miss Marie Huot, of Duluth, entertained a select number of friends with a party at the Broadway hotel, West Superior, Thursday evening. Among those present from Duluth were Miss Mackey, Miss Proctor, Miss Loubin, Miss Louise Brown, Miss Leland, Mr. Sydney Brown, Mr. O. C. Hartman, Mr. Wm. McKinley. Dancing and music filled out a very pleasant evening.

Cards are out announcing the coming marriage on Wednesday next of Mr. Wesley Kalmback, auditor of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway to Miss Elsie M. Johnson, of Duluth residents. Rev. E. M. Noyes will officiate.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Burgo, at West Duluth, entertained the Ladies' Aid society with an ice cream social Tuesday evening.

The next Sunday band concert will be given at the rink in Glen Avon, also all the others until the Seventh avenue incline is again ready for travel. Mr. and Mrs. George Jensen have reached Duluth, their future home. They were married last Tuesday in Wilton, Ia., and the bride was Miss Lottie Blanchard, well known here.

Next Tuesday evening a very pleasant concert is promised at the Second Presbyterian church. Mrs. F. S. Wardwell and Mrs. M. B. Kirkland will sing, and Mr. Sydney Brown will play on his violin.

Prof. Myers' choral society will give a concert at New Duluth next Thursday. Miss Margaret McDonald will sing and Mr. Sydney Brown and his violin will participate.

A particularly pleasant event is down for Friday evening at the German Catholic church, where a concert will be given, at which Miss Moak, Miss Mackey and Mr. Sydney Brown will appear and take prominent parts.

The Duluth and Superior Sons of St. George celebrated St. George's day in Superior Tuesday evening. About 175 went over from Duluth and returned on a special train Wednesday morning.

They had a jolly old-fashioned time. The celebration of the seventy-fourth anniversary of the I. O. O. F. of America, which was to have taken place Wednesday afternoon and evening at West Superior, was postponed on account of bad weather until next Wednesday. Elaborate preparations had been made, including a parade, exercises at the Grand opera house and a ball, banquet and social at the Broadway hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gieriet on Wednesday

day evening tendered a reception—a farewell one—to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Patten, who have left Duluth and returned to their old home in Boston. They have both been prominent here for eight or nine years and will be widely missed.

The Cecilia society had a delightful musical at the Saturday club rooms yesterday, in which a number of the most prominent of Duluth's musical ladies participated.

One of the late but pleasant social happenings of last week was the reception on Saturday evening to members of the Loyal Legion from Duluth and Superior at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Barnum.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wood will be at home in the Masonic hall on West First street after May 1.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of N. A. Linderberg and Miss Helga Rietz which will take place Monday, May 8, at the First Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church. After the ceremony a reception will be given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rietz, parents of the bride, at 201 Fifteenth avenue east.

Dr. and Mrs. Rockwell, of West Duluth, entertained the ladies of the Episcopal church and their friends with a social last evening.

There was quite a pleasant concert at the Bethel last evening, at which local musicians participated.

Miss Marie Hoff, of 419 East Third street, gave an enjoyable dance to a number of friends Thursday evening.

A Columbian social is set for next Saturday in the parlors of the First Congregational church. The Pilgrim orchestra and the King's Daughters are the projectors.

Logan Circle of the G. A. R. is arranging for a social and dance in Haynie's old store building. Dancing up stairs and refreshments down stairs is the announced arrangement.

Among the earliest marriages in the city (not village) of Duluth was that of Captain Thomas H. Pressnell to Miss Parker, which took place April 27, 1879, and on Thursday the captain and his wife celebrated the twenty-third anniversary of their wedding.

A "Chicken Pie" social was a pleasant happening of Friday evening in the First Methodist church parlors.

WILL MOVE TO DULUTH

The General Offices of the Pioneer Fuel Company Will be Brought Here From Minneapolis.

A Handsome Brick Office Building to be Erected on Rice's Point Near the Docks.

A System of Improvement Will be Inaugurated Such as to Greatly Enlarge the Docks.

It will afford pleasure to the readers of The Herald to learn that the extensive general sales offices of the Pioneer Fuel company will be removed from Minneapolis to Duluth. A commodious brick building will be erected at the company's wharves on Rice's Point and the building will be connected by special wire with all telegraph lines. All matters pertaining to the sale, selection, screening, weighing, shipment, invoicing of coal, accounts and correspondence with the general trade will be under the immediate supervision of this office, thus avoiding the delay and confusion resulting in directing shipments from the St. Paul and Minneapolis offices, as is now customary among the shipping companies, and saving the time lost in waiting for telegraphing orders via these cities, enables this company to offer better service, fill orders more promptly and satisfactorily than can be expected under the methods now in general use.

The wharves and general sales offices can be conveniently and quickly reached by electric car lines, and those not familiar with their location can obtain necessary directions at the Duluth city sales office in the Herald building, at 220 West Superior street, where the general sales office will be temporarily located commencing Monday next.

The many advantages resulting from this change will doubtless be recognized at once and appreciated by all dealers and manufacturers through the Northwest. A large fleet of boats has already been loaded at Lake Erie ports and is now under way to Duluth and will be among the first vessels to arrive from the lower lakes. The unparalleled advantages of the situation which this company possesses in the location of its docks which are already tracked by every road entering Duluth are apparent at a glance, and the peculiar excellence of the company's coal is already a byword all over the Northwest.

The company owns fifty acres at the site of its present docks and the intention is at present to make such a system of improvement that the docks will be the largest on the entire chain of lakes. Two or three miles of switch tracks and additional scales are to be put in place at once and the company will operate its own switching engines and yard crews, thereby reducing the cost of handling the coal to a minimum.

Secretary Coffin of the company will be here on Monday with his skilled clerical force, and the prosecution of the extensive improvements which have been outlined will commence at once under his immediate supervision. The local business will continue as now under the admirable management of J. A. Ferguson, in the Herald building, 220 West Superior street.

The company's business has grown so rapidly that it keeps the management hustling to keep pace with its strides and it is confidently expected that this season the Pioneer Fuel company will at least double the business of last year. The officers of the company are somewhat reticent about outlining their full plans, but the expenditure on the new dockage, which will be inaugurated at once, will be very heavy and will give the Pioneer the best shipping plant on the lakes. There is no more valuable property on Rice's point than that held by the Pioneer, and their present dock covers only a small portion of it.

Kentucky Coal Lands.
T. F. Singiser arrived today from Tennessee. He is one of the owners of the Kentucky coal fields in which the Merits recently acquired an interest. He says that the outlook for the coal mines is very bright. The work of active development will be begun in a few days and the mines will be running at full blast before the year is out. The market for every bit of coal that can be taken out is already assured and contracts have been made.

Where is it?

They say "the proof of the pudding is eating it." It has always been said that there is no market in Duluth for nice goods. If you have a shop more busy selling nice things, more cosmopolitan, more modern, more convenient, trot it out. There's a man named Haynie right here who says there's nothing too good for the demands of Duluth's elite, and it needs no microscope to view the proof of this pudding.

FIRE ESCAPE QUESTION.

It Will Come up This Afternoon at the Fire Commissioners' Meeting.

The fire commissioners meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The monthly bills and various reports will be among the other matters. Several architects will be present and some fun is likely over the matter of fire escapes. That matter is brought up again by the action of Fire Warden Appleghen in stopping the erection of one on the Turrey building because it is too light. Chief Smith stated this morning that he had for three years been trying to secure an ordinance giving some one authority to compel the erection of safe fire escapes. As things now are, builders simply comply with the letter of the law and put up flimsy affairs and those upon which no one but a cool headed accountant could escape. Chief Smith's report for the fire department shows that during the month of April nine alarms were turned in. The value of the property endangered was $101,300; loss, $17,833; insurance, $67,625. Capt. John Walsh is ill with inflammatory rheumatism and Thomas O'Donnell has a severe attack of catarrh. Edward C. Fields has been hired for painter in place of Hart who left his job and skipped town some weeks ago.

THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

Joseph Capito Held to the Grand Jury For Embezzlement.

In municipal court this morning, George Percy, Edward Johnson and James Kelly were sent up for ten days for drunkenness. Kelly served a term awhile back for vagrancy and the other morning was given a suspension of sentence for the same offense on condition that he get out of town and go to work. When he appeared again this morning he was doomed to ten days. He felt much injured to think that the judge would not listen to the hackneyed appeal for leniency and a chance to get out of town. Eugene Johnson, a painter, paid $1 and costs for an indecent exposure of person down on Lake avenue.

Joseph Capito yesterday afternoon had his examination on the charge of embezzlement and grand larceny finished with the result that he was held to the grand jury. Attorney Titus expected to apply to the district court today for bail.

ELEVENTH YEAR.

FIVE O'CLOCK EDITION.

SEEN BY A DULUTHIAN

He Has Been Five Times Around the World and Has Been Shipwrecked Three Times.

Hector Morrison Narrates Some of the Incidents That Have Occurred During His Eventful Existence.

Life at the Diamond Mines in South Africa—No Snow is Seen in Australia.

In Duluth lives a man whose modest mien and quiet speech would never cause one to suspect that the best years of his life have been spent in dangerous adventure and hazardous duties. Born in the Highlands of sturdy old Scotland, he reached man's estate and acquired the ship carpenter's trade. Five times he has been around the world and three times he has been shipwrecked. His eyes have beheld every country under the sun and if the story of his life were written, it would fill a book. Today his hair touched with gray and the marks of time upon his features, plainly show that the autumn of life has been reached. Yet a vigor, which many a much younger man might envy, is his—affording ample guarantee that many years will yet be his for reflecting upon and narrating the incidents of his eventful existence. His name is Hector Morrison.

One wild, stormy morning this week, a Herald reporter stepped into an office where several men were wasting good nature kicking the air. The Englishman was a quiet member of the company, but he was not doing any kicking. He was listening to the others engaged in that useless and exhausting performance.

"Australia has, I think, the best climate of any country," said the quiet Scotchman.

"Have you been in Australia?" asked the reporter inquiringly.

"Yes, and I saw grown English residents there who were born and bred in Scotland. At one time I was on a ship carrying railroad iron for a road running from Sydney to Melbourne. We discharged our cargo at a small port and as the line was nearly done, we waited to celebrate that event when it came. A sort of regatta, taken part in by our ship and a small coasting vessel was one feature. Then by the first train, from a small town, we came to the mines in the interior, the residents came down on the flat cars to take part in the festivities. Grown people asked for our services, the English mail, not knowing the difference between a steamer and sailing vessel, I helped row about 200 out to our boat and great many asked what snow and ice were like. It is only once in a great many years that any snow is seen there at all."

"Tell him about your experiences in the diamond mines in South Africa," asked Thomas Clark, who saw that the old seafarer was getting in talking order. "I was in the diamond mines in South Africa," continued the speaker. "I went to Cape Town and from there, rode by rail 220 miles towards Kimberley. The whole distance is 720 miles. I made the remaining 500 miles on foot in company with bullock and mule teams. That took twenty-one days. When I came back, months later, the railroad had covered the distance and I made all of it on the train in forty-eight hours. The diamond mines at Kimberley are controlled by the Central Rand and the North East company, the French company, and others.

"The precious stones are hidden in 'blue ground' which best soil beds. This is broken up by blasting. It is then taken out in chunks like coal and spread out over the ground. Under the influence of water sprays it is from here that the sun, this blue earth pulverizes. It is then washed and the diamonds are found in the packets of the apparatus used for that purpose.

"The work is done chiefly by negroes. While there I was foreman of a night shift of thirty of them. A continuous watch to prevent the theft of the precious stones is kept by the company. They conceal them in the arm pits, between the toes, in the mouth, hair, swallow them or any other way desirable. They are searched each time going and coming. Formerly we were compelled to strip but that finally led to a bloody riot. Now each takes a couple of diamonds and numbered and half are blank. Those having blanks are not stripped. After a search has been made, a workman is compelled to run and jump over a post. The negroes, when sent into the mine, are provided with a loose sack like shirt to wear and nothing more. If a workman is suspected of having swallowed a gem, he is shut up and given a physic. To one who returns a stolen diamond, 5 percent of its value is paid. In the Central mine, when I was there, it amounted to about $200 per month. The laws are very strict there on diamond stealing. Negroes with stolen stones will sell them for almost nothing. Anyone found with such a diamond is sent up for seven years. From 500 to 1000 are confined all the time. Many of them are Europeans and Americans who were guilty of no intentional wrong whatsoever.

"Traps are very common. A negro in the employ of the police will step up and offer a diamond for sale. Concealed near by will be a couple of detectives. If the fellow purchases he is at once arrested and he goes for seven years. "I had been told to look out for those fellows. The day I got there, I was approached by a negro who wanted to sell me a very valuable diamond for £25. I reached for my purse but the fellow seemed so anxious to sell that my suspicions were aroused. Remembering my warnings, I said, 'Let me see the diamond.' The chap opened his mouth and showed me the gem. I snatched it and knocked him head over heels into the gutter. The diamond flew out of his mouth and two detectives rushed on from their hiding place. They had a good hunt before the last stone was found.

"The Kimberly hole is two and a half miles in circumference, 700 feet deep and no bottom yet. The sides of the hole are perfectly perpendicular and straight, so as not to encroach upon the territory of adjoining mines.

"The climate in that part of Africa is pretty hot but in the winter, which comes when we have summer here, there are some slight snows and occasionally thin ice. Around Kimberly it is sandy and quite rough in most places. The Transvaal is a great country for cattle. Two crops are raised each year. One is sown in the autumn and the other in the first one is ripe about Christmas.

"At one time I walked from Kimberly to the Transvaal—300 miles. It took forty days and as the road was sandy and the weather hot, at the end of the journey my feet were blistered all over the bottoms. During the Transvaal was between the Boers and the English, about seven years ago. I took Gen. Charles Warren across the Vaal river the day the Boers surrendered and a shot being fired. On that trip we had to carry our water between streams in canvass sacks on our backs. One day my two companions and I were stopped by a small trading station and made some purchase of the Boer product. Near him he had a hollow dammed up so as to hold water for his dirty water, but when we asked for a can full to make coffee, it was refused. We moved on about half a mile and arrived at the night camp. The dam and at an iron pipe in the bottom, filled our water sacks. We then knocked out the plug and started on. The water was greatly wasted, as the old fellow found out the next morning. Early in the day, as we expected, we looked back and saw three Boers on horseback, with following our trail. We did some dodging, then went on the wrong road and passed on unmolested. Because of the trouble then with the English, it had been bad luck for us to have been caught. Six months later when I came back, I stopped at the same place to make some purchases, but the old fellow did not recognize me."

GRAND RAPIDS' PROGRESS.

The Advent of the Merritts is Hailed as a Promising Sign.

Grand Rapids Magnet: Upon several occasions the Magnet has stated that Grand Rapids would during the year of 1893, experience a most healthy season of growth and development. These statements were not made with a desire or intent of booming, they were founded on observation and the circumstances that enter into the making of live, healthy towns.

During the past week, the first step in this season's developments took place by the arrival of the Merritts. The English mail, not knowing the difference between a steamer and sailing vessel, I helped row about 200 out to our boat and great many asked what snow and ice were like. It is only once in a great many years that any snow is seen there at all."

GRAND RAPIDS' PROGRESS.

IN LITERARY FIELDS

Home Life and Personality of "The Last of the Carls," Who Lives in America.

Auld Licht Vignettes, by J. M. Barrie, Give Some Rare Pictures of Scottish Home Life.

The May Magazines are Filled With Articles of Great Interest and Many Beautiful Illustrations.

Unknown to thousands, Thomas Carlyle's youngest sister is a resident of this Western continent. This interesting fact the Ladies' Home Journal has discovered, and the home life and personality of "the last of the Carls" are most interestingly pictured and described in its May issue, which goes out to its hundreds of thousands of readers in a striking cover, presenting one of Charles Dana Gibson's stylish women. Mr. Howells' picture of girl life, "The Coast of Bohemia," grows in interest, and Will N. Harben gives the overture of a new short story, "Before Two Altars."

The World's Columbian celebration is remembered in a stately poem by Edna Dean Proctor, entitled "The New World's Queen." That problem of polite society, "The Married Woman's Signature," is made the subject of an interesting discussion by Julia Ward Howe, Frances Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. Burton Harrison and other famous women in a symposium, "Under Whose Name?" On the same subject is the plea made by Frances E. Lanigan for the adoption of a form of signature which shall serve as an identification of all feminine letter writers. Edward W. Bok makes a novel plea for men to give their wives more recreation and take them out of their homes, while Elisabeth Robinson Scovill contributes a paper on "The Art of Letter Writing."

One of Hamlin Garland's etchings, "Before the Overture," and another by William D. Moffat are followed by poems by Clinton Scollard, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop and Margarette Lippincott. Mathilde Wurm tells how she learned to play the piano "With Schumann's Wife as My Teacher."

An excellent article on the duties of the housekeeper, "If the Chloera Should Come," is contributed by Helen Jay, and a paper on "Closing a House for Summer," by Maria Farlow.

Other notable articles are "French Etiquette," by Mrs. C. C. Merritt; "Hooper," Mr. Rusk's "May Queen," by Ethel McKennie McKenna, and "American Women's Voices," by Junius Henri Brown. Expected to be followed by an article in Schuyler Mathews' "For a Home Wedding," Ruth Ashmore's "The Girl about to Marry," and Emma M. Hooper's "Wedding and Reception Gifts." Miss Scovill contributes an article on "Life in the Invalid's Room," and Mrs. Mallon, "Some Commemorative Gests," by Palmer Cox.

The location of this mercantile institution means a very great deal for Grand Rapids. It means that lines of goods such as were formerly purchased in Duluth or Minneapolis will be sold here, and in fact, practically shuts out both the above mentioned cities for supplying the lumbermen with supplies. As the projectors of the new store are gentlemen of unlimited means they will carry every heavy stock of goods that is needed to supply the lumbering and mining interests in carload lots of any and every kind of provisions, clothing, material or whatever else may be required.

Men of capital and keen discernment are commencing to realize that Grand Rapids presents a most inviting and profitable field for all kinds of business enterprises.

The advent of this institution is but the initiation of several more in our midst. The Merritts realize the importance of the situation of Grand Rapids as being practically the keystone of the lumbering and mining fields of the state. They have in view several enterprises which, at the present time, the Magnet is not at liberty to divulge.

Citizens of Grand Rapids naturally feel more confidence in the future growth and profitable field for all kinds of business enterprises.

There is no good reason, why with proper management Grand Rapids might, in a very short time, become a great city. It is far enough from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth to admit of it. It certainly has the resources. Rarely indeed does one find a place so rich in natural resources. It has been and will be for years the headquarters for lumbering. The iron interests of the western Mesaba are developing at such a rate that before many months there will be a number of mines ready to ship ore. The western end of the Vermilion promises to be just as prolific in its yield as the eastern end. All supplies for the mines should be handled in Grand Rapids, and it appears as if they were going to be.

While the mercantile interests are commencing to develop, the manufacturing institutions are very likely to materialize. The first of these is Dr. Howells' saw mill, which is ready to commence operations. A party of capitalists are considering the advisability of putting in an excelsior mill, and there is every indication that their negotiations will be successfully closed in a short time. Some correspondence is now going on with Eastern parties, relative to the locating of a large pulp mill, on the Mississippi river about a mile north of town. There is certainly all the material necessary to successfully conduct such a concern on a very large scale.

During the past week, several farmers from different sections have been in Grand Rapids, with a view of securing farms. If they are satisfied with the soil and its adaptability to general crop raising, they say they can readily induce a large immigration to this section.

Without taking a very rosy view of the matter as these present themselves at this early opening of spring, they are bright enough to warrant the reiteration of the Magnet's former statements, that the year 1893, will show remarkable growth and development in Grand Rapids.

The large number of pictures in the May Popular Science Monthly is the first feature to arrest attention. The number opens with a charming account of "Japanese Home Life," by Dr. W. Delano Eastlake, which has many characteristic illustrations. There is also a description of the "Oswego State Normal School," one of the best institutions of its class, by Professor William M. Aber, with views of classrooms and laboratories and portraits of instructors. Professor Byron D. Halsted contributes an illustrated article on the practical subject, "Decay in the Apple Barrel," and Professor G. F. Wright defends his recently attacked book in an article under the title "Evidence of the German Man in Ohio," also with many illustrations. Theable argument by Herbert Spencer on "The Inadequacy of Natural Selection" is continued in this number. G. W. Littlehales, of the United States hydrographic office, describes the "Growth of our Knowledge of the Deep Sea." Professor Wesley Mills discusses the "Cultivation of Humane Ideas and Feelings." P. E. M. Berthelot recounts "The Discovery of Alcohol and Distillation." How Science is Helping the Farmer" is told by Professor S. Plumb. Other articles are "Dietary for the Sick," by Sir Dyce Duckworth; a "Tribute to the French Academy," to American Geological Exploration, and a sketch with portrait of Professor Samuel William Johnson. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

Rarely, indeed, do we have to praise a more meritorious sheet than the Illustrated American for April 29. The editorials are strong, but not immovable. The "History of Seven Days" is the field of a new departure by the introduction of scenes as well as portraits into it. The leader is an article entitled "Among the Warriors." It briefly reviews the naval history of the modern world, and is illustrated by pictures and scenes reproduced in no other weekly. Mr. Nirdlinger, one of the cleverest of writers for the press, gives two numbers to the issue—one on the reviving art of miniature painting and a second on "The Apostasy of Heinrich Heine," the German poet. "The Girl I Left Behind Me" is a bright sketch, evidently from the pen of a man who knows whereof he writes. The "Road of the Rough" was never more interesting, now that its many branches seem converging to a single terminal point.

"The Cousin" is the title of an amusing little sketch from the French in the Argonaut of April 22. It points the old moral, that "it is well to be off with the old lady before you are on with the new."

The hero is about to marry a charming young lady, but he is afraid to break off relations with a beautiful Italian widow, who should bear his name. The latter says, "I am a widow, but I am not a widow in fact, and I am not a widow in name, and I am not a widow in spirit, and I am not a widow in heart, and I am not a widow in soul, and I am not a widow in body, and I am not a widow in mind, and I am not a widow in everything."

The New Peterson for May is ahead of its predecessors, excellent as they were. The number opens with a beautifully illustrated article, by Julian Hawthorne, "Within a City Within a City, Chicago Today." Another capital paper, with profuse illustrations, is Miss Elizabeth Robinson's "Day in Market," the story of the greatest and least known streets in Holland. Louise Chandler Moulton contributes an appreciative criticism of Arlo Bates, the Boston novelist. "Agony Love," by Philip Barrie, by Philip Barrie, is a story of a man who would make many materialists rave with envy. While the exact date of its coinage or minting is not known it is probably "struck off" by hand in the year 102 or 103 A. D., during the second or third of the dual reign of the Roman emperors Claudius and Nero. The coin is of bronze, slightly irregular in roundness and about the circumference of a 2 cent piece of United States money, though much thicker and heavier. On the obverse side is a head of the senior emperor who apparently had a great deal of trouble with his name for it appears to have been Marcus Verus, then changed to Marcus Aurelius Verus, then metamorphosed into Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, and afterwards (when the bearer was praetor) added to again until it finally read Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Claudius Caesar. Surrounding the head is some inscription which is quite clear in some places and in others totally obliterated. On the reverse the coin is a figure seated in a chair with its feet resting on a footstool while he is holding in his arms a bundle of fables, the old Roman badge of magisterial authority. Underneath the figure are the letters "S. C.," which undoubtedly refer to the senate consulate, who sanctioned the issue of the coin.

There is quite a bit of history in connection with the coin and how it came into Superintendent Turner's possession. A number of workmen were excavating near or about the site of the old Roman temple when one of them uncovered a skeleton and an earthen or porcelain urn filled with old Roman coins. As is usually in such cases, the British museum pounced down on the finder and confiscated the entire find of skeleton, urn and coins, excepting two of the latter, which the workmen had secreted. What became of one of these two coins is not known, but a local numismatist gave the laborer £10 for one of them. The purchaser afterwards came to America before he "struck oil" he felt into that uncomfortable financial state singly classed as "dead broke."

It was while in this condition that Superintendent Turner came across him, and with his usual big heartedness, gave him a little cash, cheered him up and found a situation for him. Some time after the man in looking over his effects, found the coin, and as it was his most valuable souvenir, he gave it to Superintendent Turner as a slight evidence of his gratitude.

Another girl would take a couple of short vicious chews at her piece of gum and then set her teeth firmly into an end of the mass while her gloved fingers she would languidly pull the other end out in a long stringy thread until her hand was at least a foot from her mouth, when with a quick flip the distended substance would be thrown back into her mouth and the process would be repeated. I caught a glimpse of the tongue of one of the chewers rolling over and over, like a cow chewing a cud, while the jaws worked a soundless motion which kept time with the music. The other members of the party each developed a peculiarly American art of gum chewing fully as striking as the three given.

GUM AT THE PAVILION

Why Phil Graff Went Behind One of the Pillars to Hide His Intense Emotion.

The Amateur Portrait Painter and Crayon Artist in the Box Office of the Lyceum.

A Rare Roman Coin Owned by Superintendent C. W. Turner and the History Attached to It.

THE WORLD OF LABOR

Duluth Workmen Asked to Sign Petitions Favoring Government Control of Railroads and Telegraphs.

The Trades and Labor Assembly Sends a Protest Against Edwards Being Made Government Printer.

Committee Appointed to Assist in Gathering Facts to be Used Against the Coal Combine.

One strong belief of the average member of organized labor is the government ownership of the telegraph, telephone and in many cases of railroads. The following petition addressed to the members of the senate and house of representatives has been submitted to the Trades and Labor assembly of this city, with a request that it be circulated and then returned to the New York office of the federation:

Your petitioners, the undersigned citizens of the United States, residents of the state of Minnesota respectfully represent that the telegraph service of this country has become a burdensome monopoly in the hands of a company exercising in charges more than twice as much as the people of other countries, favored with government lines, are obliged to pay—a company that uses to the utmost its great capital to eradicate all fair competition, and exerts a baneful control over the press upon which the citizens are forced to rely for information.

We also represent that on the expiring of the telegraphic patents, now soon to occur, a similar monopoly in that method of transmitting intelligence is likely to be established, as grievous to the people as that of the telegraph.

We therefore respectfully petition your honorable bodies to pass laws establishing a government telegraph and telephone service.

E. Applehagen for one will be sure to be found with a copy in his pocket ready for any believer in that policy to sign.

TRADES AND LABOR ASSEMBLY.

Protest Against C. M. Edwards Being Made Government Printer.

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor assembly was held at the customary place, O'Brien & Knowlton hall, Thursday evening. While nothing unusual transpired, considerable routine business of more or less importance was turned off. Chas. M. Edwards, of Wilmington, is making a strong pull for the place of government printer. He is a "rat," hence non persona grata to Duluth laboring men. Resolutions were forwarded to President Cleveland last week protesting against the appointment of Edwards.

President McDowell gave an earnest talk with reference to work all union men should do in aiding the men who have taken up the fight against the coal combine. A committee composed of President McDowell, Geo. Johnson, and Joe Gleason was appointed to collect evidence in the cases against the coal combine.

E. Applehagen caused considerable discussion by introducing the subject of educating the people to plant a tree wherever one is cut down in order that the forests will not be matters of history in a short time.

H. B. MARTIN'S ADDRESS.

Labor Organization Discussed at a Well Attended Meeting.

One of the most profitable and well attended labor meetings seen for a long time was that held in Parsons' hall last Tuesday night at which time H. B. Martin of Minneapolis spoke for two hours on labor organization. The speaker scouted the idea that any laboring man wanted to rise by pulling down others. Might made right under the old way. Then labor organizations came along with the teaching that everyone is entitled to the fruit of his labor and not a cent of anybody else's.

The criticism that labor organizations are mercenary, comes from biased sources or from those who know not where they speak. If labor organizations have never done anything but bring to the front the discussion of labor problems they have done an immeasurable amount of good. At times discouragements come, but no matter how dark the outlook, there still remains free speech, free assembly and a free press.

The speaker also said that workingmen must mix brains and muscle more. Now there is often too great a preponderance of muscle. Another thing that must be subdued is the prejudice against benevolent people. One strong point was made by showing how organized labor has increased wages. The cigar makers in eight years have saved $2,000,000 in wages. Stone cutters have raised their scale from 25 to 45 cents per hour. Switchmen get $65 per month now when not on get, only $40 were paid.

The giving of franchises was strongly condemned and deprecated and the owners of them designated as men with whom organized labor cannot cope. The ballot box was suggested as the best remedy for such abuses. Work and organization must never cease.

Further open meetings of a nature similar to this will be held.

Free Employment Offices.

All those interested in the prosperity of the working classes will be glad to learn of the fruitful results attending the plan of free public employment offices introduced in 1889 into the state of Ohio. This plan, which comprises the establishment in five leading cities of employment offices supported jointly by the state and those cities, directly resulted in giving positions in the year 1890 to 8,838 applicants. Over 20,000 persons applied for work and 18,000 calls for workers were received from employers. In the year 1891 over 15,000 persons were furnished employment, and from the time of the opening of the first office in 1890 to Jan. 1, 1893, over 35,000 persons were placed in positions—a number comprising 47 per cent of the total number of applicants.

It is claimed, moreover, that $100,000 is annually saved to the Ohio working people by these free employment bureaus. The working people, again, have the satisfaction of knowing that this institution, supported as it is by the state, is in no way a charity. In making use of it they were simply availing themselves of a privilege of citizenship. If, as is claimed, the plan is so promising, a success in Ohio, the time cannot be far distant when a similar one will be brought before the legislature of this and other states.

Local Labor Notes.

E. Applehagen, E. Shihold and T. N. Gleason were appointed at the last meeting of the Trades and Labor assembly as a committee to extend an invitation to the tailors to join the assembly.

The cooks have decided to apply for admittance to the assembly, with overwhelming chances that such a step will be met with a most hearty welcome.

J. Westgaard, of Cigarmakers' union 204, has been admitted to membership in the assembly.

J. J. McTearns & Co., job printers, have made nine hours day's work with no reduction in wages. The change takes place April 29 and is very satisfactory to the employees. This is one of the first job printing establishments in the Northwest to adopt that plan.

SWEAT SHOP CLOTHES.

Warning The Wearers. But how About the Makers?

All Chicago, hardened as it is to misery, experienced a little thrill of horror when its own reeking dens and terrible sweatshops were uncovered to the public gaze. Ordinary poverty and degradation has been accepted in a vague and uncomprehending sort of way, and such pleasant remedies as come in the way of the "better classes" have never been withheld. Society is willing to dance for sweet charity's sake now and then, to donate large sums when life has lost its sweetness and remorse gained its stings, to act officially in well known "aid societies" when there is nothing else to do. But the literal thing—the bare, disagreeable fact of poverty—grows so tiresome and uninteresting. To be compelled to dwell upon such a subject long enough to understand it and experience a desire to do something is so unpleasant and commonplace. Still, the daily papers, forced as newsgatherers to give the truth, followed the work of the investigating committee day by day and laid its discovered horrors before their readers every morning whether willing or unwilling, until they could no longer shrug it all aside.

When the results of misery are liable to penetrate into our own homes, a shiver of fear makes us all wonderfully interested. Very wealthy ladies of course do not wear shoe made garments, but their maids, nurse girls and wash women may. The bare supposition of what a cloak's previous existence might have been—the cloak that enters a luxurious home—is hung up with other cloaks and wraps pressed by childish cheeks and hands—is terrible! A fearful deed puts us all in a pitiful mood when nothing else does.

We may be checked at first over the picture of a pile of cloaks making the bed for a fever patient in a reeking, overcrowded den; but we will look afterward at the sickly faces which have bent above them so many hours or so many days that there is scarcely a semblance of human interest or intelligence in them. We must remember presently that these workers have lived in these awful holes and toiled there like demons for years; that they have produced the wealth that figures as so much "stock" in rich men's hands, and are vastly poorer than when they commenced. That old man, who fairly seems grown to his sewing machine, so much a part of it is he, who despite his efforts finds his powers failing and knows he cannot much longer keep up the swift motions necessary to earn his $3 a week, appeals to the heart while we inwardly hope no cloak with which we have come in contact ever saw the inside of that foul cellar where he sits. Self preservation is the first instinct, no doubt; but, thanks to the underlying god in humanity, pity comes next.

A great deal of discussion has followed the investigation recently made, and many remedies have been proposed. The most definite and direct result is a bill that is pending and likely to pass the legislature of Illinois, regulating clothing manufacturers and providing for the closest inspection by the appointment of a chief inspector with two assistants, each of whom has under him or her several minor assistants. These are to see that workrooms are kept clean and well ventilated, that long hours are not demanded, and that children under 14 are not employed at all. Every firm must have its name and place of business on a large tag fastened to every garment it sends out, so that its methods of manufacturing can easily be kept track of. As an ethical aid to the enactment the ladies of Chicago are urged not to purchase ready made clothing of firms who run "sweat shops."

These are no doubt practical measures, and in fact the only ones possible at the present stage of affairs. If we would consider that as emergency measures only and at the same time constantly endeavor to change the conditions that make such slavery and degradation possible, we should be in line with genuine progress. But the danger is that we will look upon such remedies as effectual and final and forget that, after all, they do not touch the source of the trouble.

What would be the effect of the bill if put in operation? What if people should be to any great extent induced to refrain from buying ready made clothing? The small, dirty, crowded shops would be closed and the proprietors forced to join the ranks of competing wage-workers. The miserable workers who take work to their wretched "homes" would be deprived of employment; the poor toilers who clave for the sweater would have nothing more to do. Though the sweating dens be abolished, these people cannot be. They exist with all their needs and inability to provide for them, the same as before. What is to become of them? The bill does not provide for them. No legislation can abolish them or render them less poor, less helpless, before greedy employers. The business of manufacturing clothing will be absorbed by the better class of dealers, the smaller and poorer will be squeezed out, and a new concentration of capital will take place. The people will be burdened with several new offices, whose incumbents will receive from $2,000 to $3,000 per year.

A general boycotting of shop made garments would but result in throwing many wage-workers out of employment. A few of the better class of seamstresses would receive better pay for better work, but the masses would have less to do, and competing with each other for a few opportunities to labor reduce wages even below their present miserable limit. Still, as I said before, these are only the immediate results. In the end they must lead to more far-reaching and beneficial movements. Anything which tends to raise the grade of work and the standard of wages for a few must finally be an advantage to all. The experimenting with these remedies will show us where they are deficient and point out better ways in which we may deal with these economic wrongs. Disunion and agitation are progressive apathy and stagnation mean death. Deeper than these regulating enactments we must go for permanent good—we must learn not to legislate with the results of poverty only, but with the causes of it.

I do not say that any panacea for industrial and social evils has ever been discovered. But the problems are before us, are vital and invite the keenest investigation. It is not enough to pass a law that will lock up a dirty cellar and turn its inmates into the streets. We must abolish the need of such cellars and find out why there are so many human beings willing, eager, to be made poorly paid drudges in them. There is enough in this brutalized earth to furnish every person living on it with all he needs for comfort. Aside from the natural elements, labor is the producer of all wealth. In common justice, then, labor should be most blessed with the riches of the earth. Let us never rest satisfied until justice is done.

Advancing Labor's Interests.

All those interested in the prosperity of the working classes will be glad to learn of the fruitful results attending the plan of free public employment offices introduced in 1889 into the state of Ohio. This plan, which comprises the establishment in five leading cities of employment offices supported jointly by the state and those cities, directly resulted in giving positions in the year 1890 to 8,838 applicants. Over 20,000 persons applied for work and 18,000 calls for workers were received from employers. In the year 1891 over 15,000 persons were furnished employment, and from the time of the opening of the first office in 1890 to Jan. 1, 1893, over 35,000 persons were placed in positions—a number comprising 47 per cent of the total number of applicants.

It is claimed, moreover, that $100,000 is annually saved to the Ohio working people by these free employment bureaus. The working people, again, have the satisfaction of knowing that this institution, supported as it is by the state, is in no way a charity. In making use of it they were simply availing themselves of a privilege of citizenship. If, as is claimed, the plan is so promising, a success in Ohio, the time cannot be far distant when a similar one will be brought before the legislature of this and other states.

At the same time there come reports from Germany of beneficial results obtained, first through the thoroughgoing work of factory inspection conducted by the government, and again from the plan adopted by many employers of buying great quantities of food and provisions at wholesale and selling them to their workmen at reduced cost or below it. Like many other signs to be seen by the watchful, all these new plans are but further indications of the growing interest everywhere felt in the workman's advancement and of the practical manner in which that interest is manifesting itself.—Chicago News-Record.

"It Can't Be Did."

Henry George says of the decision of Judge Billings:

This is but another attempt to bind down the ocean with pack thread. That strikes are restraints of commerce is true, as are many other things with which the courts do not or cannot interfere. The strike at bottom rests upon the individual right to work or not to work, and for our part we attempt more than to prevent violence or threats of violence is to enter upon untenable and dangerous ground. They might as well try to re-establish slavery. If trades unionism and its necessary weapon, the strike, could be prevented by prohibitions and penalties, it would never have grown up in Great Britain, where courts and legislatures did their best to put it down under conditions far more favorable to the attempt than those which exist in the United States.

Strikes are but war in passive form. They are necessarily destructive in their nature, and like all wars involve non-combatants in the sufferings they cause, and they become more destructive and include a larger area in their losses and sufferings as the division of labor becomes more minute and the ramifications of exchange extend. But to attempt to cure them by repression is to begin at the wrong end. Underneath their infringements of natural right lie those deeper and wider infringements of natural right which are concentrating wealth and power in the hands of the few and making the laborer helpless save as he can combine and fight for his own hand.

Wages in Michigan.

From the advance sheets of the report of Labor Commissioner Robinson it appears that wages in the building trades in Michigan are very low. Nearly 14,000 persons were canvassed, and their average wages are given as $1.59 a day, and the average number in each family 4.39. These wages were reported by 5,000 persons to be insufficient to supply the necessities of life.

A CANADIAN EXAMPLE.

Experience of the Hamilton Molders on Lines Was Not a Thoroughly American.

The president of the International Molders' union has decided that the strike of the Hamilton molders is hopeless and has suspended the financial support of the order. The molders quit work early in January in an effort to resist a reduction of 35 cents a day on time workers and 10 per cent on piece workers. But now the suspension of the strike allowance has induced the few union men remaining in the city to negotiate for a settlement. This affair has shown the operations of the alleged protection to Canadian workmen, and many of the strikers who refused to learn from reasonable arguments have gained wisdom from observation and experience.

The complete operation of the tariff in restraint of trade was daily before their eyes for close on three months, and although their experience was dearly bought they will profit by the lessons which have been deeply impressed. The higher prices permitted by the tariff caused the natural decrease in consumption. The increased pressure of unemployed was the employers' opportunity, and the men sought to maintain their position by a strike. When they quit work men were imported to fill their places in spite of strong and generally well directed efforts to prevent it.

The strikers adopted the usual method of appointing pickets and guards to intercept new arrivals and tried by every means to dissuade them from taking the vacant places. But besides the decreased demand for men on account of tariff prices, the protection system worked against them in other ways. Secure against outside competition, the employers were enabled to ignore the immediate demands of the market and play a waiting game—a game fatal to the men dependent on wages for the support of their families.

The International Molders' union displaced in 1890 some $30,000, the allowance being $7 a week to married men and $5 a week to single men, but the strikers became gradually discouraged. Many of the molders who took their places were brought from the United States—men who were not anxious to check the unemployed across the border were glad of a chance for temporary work. It is not unusual for employers to temporarily pay higher wages than those demanded by strikers, the object being to break up trade organizations. As the strikers grew weary of the struggle they left the city, so that there are now only a few to negotiate a settlement.

The molders of Toronto had a similar experience a few years ago, and it is clear was the lesson that their union passed a resolution declaring that the tariff on imported goods afforded no protection to workmen. The local union in Hamilton is seeking an agreement by which the men will all be required to work with nonunion molders, but the employers are unwilling to grant any concessions. It is probable that the strikers will be forced to surrender unconditionally, having gained nothing by their long fight except the knowledge that a tax on imports assists their employers in raising prices and lowering wages—operations oppressive to all workmen.—Toronto Globe.

Immigration Not to Blame.

Commissioner Robinson of the Michigan labor bureau has presented the third annual report of the bureau. The reference in the report to the subject of immigration will create discussion. To quote from the report:

The question of immigration or reducing the size of families give steeper employment or better pay? The writer is compelled to answer that a tax on imports assists their employers in raising prices and lowering wages—operations oppressive to all workmen.—Toronto Globe.

In regard to concentration of wealth, the commission gives the following figures: The total value of real estate in Grand Rapids worth $29,905,961, at Kalamazoo 3,338 persons own $3,334,675, at Jackson 4,515 persons own $7,533,319, and at Bay City 4,361 persons own $8,090,290. In fact, in the latter city 333 persons own half the real estate.

The Interstate Law and Labor. Senator Voorhees of Indiana presented a resolution in the United States senate bearing on the subject of the recent decisions of United States judges at Toledo as to the refusal of railroad employees to perform service.

It instructs the interstate commerce committee to inquire into the question and to report to the senate what action may be necessary (either by the repeal of the tenth section of the interstate commerce act of Feb. 4, 1887, or by the enactment of additional legislation) for the better protection of the laboring people of the United States in their natural and inalienable rights and for their greater security from the encroachment of corporation power.

The resolution was ordered printed and was referred to the committee on interstate commerce.

Chicago Carpenters.

Chicago carpenters made a two years' agreement with their employers in 1891. It expired this year. Our organization is in such a satisfactory condition it has secured recognition. They have secured another year's agreement from April 3, 1893, to April 3, 1894, at eight hours per day and 40 cents per hour. Only carpenters stay away from Chicago, and the men in that city can hold their own.—Carpenter.

TREES IN CALIFORNIA

Bill Nye Describes a Few Sample Specimens of These Gigantic Monarchs of the Forest.

Santa Cruz and the Lick Observatory, Which is Within the Reach of all People.

A Young Lady's Fruitless Search for the Unattainable—The Repulse of a Dead Bear.

IN CALIFORNIA, BOUND NORTH. We have just visited the big trees near Santa Cruz. The wagon road was impassable, and so Superintendent Fillmore took us up on a special train. He knew me when I was a poor boy. Even then he could see that I would be a great man. He knew that I was a good boy and foresaw that I would one day be a nice old man. Years have proved that he had a great head.

"THEN THEY COME BACK AND BITE."

The big trees have been often referred to and by people who were so much more gifted as liars than I am that I shrink from the task of writing about them. We saw probably a hundred of them, but I will not try to speak of more than four or five. Each of the larger ones is named—some of them for the great generals, one for the Y. M. C. A. and one for Colonel Ingersoll. The name of Colonel Ingersoll has been torn from the tree it belongs to, and it is not known who did it. Probably some one who differs from Colonel Ingersoll, but has not been able to express himself otherwise, has torn his name off. This shows that if we cannot readily reply to a man we may hamstring his pet horse and thus show that we do not endorse him anyway.

There is one big tree around which the entire trainload of people stood. This gives one an idea how large it is. There is a solemn grandeur about these trees which makes even excursionists and tourists silent for five or six minutes. I measured one tree and have the string with me. It is 60 feet in circumference, and yet it is not the largest in the redwood family.

The first big tree in Calaveras county was about 80 feet in diameter, and the stump is used for a dancing floor. Thirty-two people have danced there at one time, and 17 besides the band stood on the stump and looked on. It was cut down by five men, who worked 22 days at it, using pump augurs for the purpose. Another larger tree was used in making sufficient ties for the Southern Pacific railroad, and the top furnished the wood-work for the Palace hotel in San Francisco, a hotel so large that the office does not know what guests are in the house, and escaping criminals often secrete themselves by engaging a room there.

The "Father of the Forest" was 110 feet in circumference and 400 feet high. In "The Tree of Refuge" 233 head of stock sheltered themselves for 11 days during a large storm. It is a hollow tree with hot and cold water in it.

Visitors pin their cards on these trees, thus giving an added dignity to the tree by showing its wide circle of acquaintance. These cards show generally how our job offices are progressing and the wonderful age in which we live. Some talk is now heard about bringing "The Tree of Refuge" to the World's fair and setting it out near the pleasure, but wiser men think that the exposition should be removed to the large tree.

Santa Cruz is a tidy town on the bay with the best kind of bathing facilities. The streets are beautifully covered with bitumen, which is quarried near by and shipped everywhere. It is a most remarkable street covering and lasts forever. If there be anything that California needs except greenbacks for gold, I do not know what it is unless be coal, and that will be found some day.

Lick's observatory is supposed to be at San Jose, but you have to ride 27 miles to see it. This was because land was so high in San Jose that the observatory had to go out of town to locate. In some places in the state land was so high a few years ago that an observatory was not necessary. Now it is within the reach of all.

Mr. Lick was an eccentric man with throat whiskers and some means. Wishing to contribute something to science, he secured the greatest lens he could buy and then fitted it up for the purpose of prying into the firmament a little farther. With this instrument quite a number of new stars have been discovered, but no improvements made on them so far. Eastern people wishing to see these new stars can obtain excursion tickets for $200 to $300, embracing a pleasant and soul stirring drive over the mountains to where the observatory is situated.

The big trees were formerly the home of the grizzly bear, for they were born monarchs in their own line, but now the bear has seemed to disappear. The last one in the wild and wet west heard this spring that his hoofs were coming back again, and with a convulsive shudder he turned his broad stomach toward the firmament and passed away.

Fruit growing is a great industry in this state, and honey is always referred to by the ton.

I asked a young lady at the Del Monte if she had met with any bitter disappointments since she came to California. She said yes, she had met with a great many when she came to the coast. I asked her what they were.

"Well," she said naively as she sort of rubbed her beautiful elbow, for it was evening, and dimple after dimple seemed to chase each other across her chest and neck. "I have been disappointed a thousand times, for just as I wet my finger to locate one of these old time fleas they evade me and are soon lost in the beautiful climate. Then they come back and bite."

I respect the judgment of the flea now more than ever. Fleas never pester me harshly at all.

Many items are published regarding the success of fruitgrowers for instance: "Mr. Frank Kimball of National City reports olive trees on his place only 4 years old that yield over 50 gallons to the tree."

"J. W. Packer reports from 950 blackberry vines 3,500 boxes, or $210 from a quarter of an acre, or $840 per acre."

"J. R. Dobbin of San Gabriel sold from 120 trees of Valencia late oranges 2,400, worth $2,400 net. If he had had 2,000 trees, he would have made $4,000,000. The trees were 75 years old and in extra good soil."

"Vaughan Collinghope of Pasadena made $10,000 last year from half an acre. He put a hotel on the ground, and at the end of the year it yielded the above sum. If he had put 50 acres into hotel, he would have made $500,000 clear."

"Elbridge Carverson bought a quarter acre in January, 1892, and set out an electric plant on it. He only regrets now that he had not utilized 100 acres, for he cleared $8,000 on the quarter acre."

These stories, I think, do California more harm than good, for people come here with too much hope and too little gray matter. It is not a good place for a poor man where land is so high and the distance from the coast so great. If some of the unfortunate people here who wish to return to the home nest by borrowing of our successful lecturers would use the same genius and industry in trying to raise onions or start a daily paper, they might succeed.

I have succeeded in defeating several green room beggars who live on the actors and other traveling show people. Referring to my route book, I say, "The Post Riley was here in December, wasn't he?"

"Yes, I saw him here in this very room."

"Well, I met him on his return at Evansville, Ind., and he gave me a long list of beats at the different points on the coast. Ah, here is his description of you: 'Long man with short breath laden with rum. Said he was an actor and writer, author of 'Laugh and the world Laughs With You.' Gave him 10 cents. Wish now that I had bought Star tobacco with it. He is a liar and boards with his mother."

By this time the man is gone.

The narrow gauge railroad leading from Santa Cruz has been impassable for three months at this writing. The trouble exists at the tunnel. This tunnel passes through a disagreeable mountain which slides after continued rain, and this time it took the tunnel with it. A movable tunnel is one of the most disagreeable things to contend with in railroading. Mr. Fillmore will try to utilize the tunnel if possible, and if not he will sell it and build a new one. There is going to be a chance there this spring to get a desirable tunnel cheap.

Monterey is a very interesting old town with a dozen old houses that would tickle the antiquarian. One, in an excellent state of preservation, was brought here as ballast from England, being one of the first houses ever built in the state. There are three others in the town. The first hotel is here also and covered with old fashioned tile. The first piano ever brought to California is here. It was made by the manufacturers, which makes it exceedingly rare. Pianos now are mostly made by one concern and sold by another, the seller putting his own name on in gold with a stencil; hence the name "stencil piano." The dealer gives his orders for so many pianos, and the artisan makes them at his little home in Newark or Brooklyn by the light of a nine knot. This is another reason why the piano as a musical instrument in the house is a bitter disappointment and will some day be succeeded by the music box, which never has a headache or gets out of tune. They say that the music box has no soul in it. Neither has the piano, and Padrevski has just refused to play at private houses in return for a boiled dinner. So there you are!

"I may write another letter on life in California next week, for it is a very interesting state, and aside from those people in it who claim to have been the first white child born here I like the people very much."

If the first white child born in California would hold a reunion somewhere in the state, it would be a great success. We are going through the grain country now, where people own farms that produce 50 bushels of wheat to the acre, and there are 1,000 acres in the farm. They give me a jealous pang when I compare them with my baby grand upright piano in my mountain home in North Carolina, where I raised $800 worth of corn at $7.50 per bushel, not counting my own work.

An Easy One. Casey was digging a ditch in the street in front of his house for the purpose of making a connection with the sewer. He had a large pile of dirt thrown up in the roadway, and he was rapidly increasing it when stopped by a policeman.

"That are yer doin there, Casey?"

"Don't yer see O'm diggin?"

"How yer a permit to blockade the shtrate with that pile of dirt?"

"O' ho not."

"Thin don't yer know that yer ho no right to put that dirt there?"

"That will O' do wid it, thin?" inquired the puzzled Casey.

"Oh, jist dig another hole an' t'ro it in," answered the man of the brass buttons as he sauntered slowly away, swinging his club. —Boston Journal.

REFUSING A DEAD BEAT.

It was in San Francisco that an old acquaintance turned up whom I had not seen for years. He was educated for the ministry and received one of the most elaborate educations I have ever seen.

having graduated with honors from several different colleges from which I was expelled. I had the honor of being expelled from the best always. "Why fool away time," my father used to say, "in being expelled from ordinary colleges. Get fired by the very best or none."

This young man had been on the coast for over 15 years and had written home that he was getting on very well, guiding his poor dying fellow man toward a better land beyond the grave. Still he did not seem to make any great showing in the papers, and so his family thought he could not be regarded as a successful minister. I remembered his face very well, and so I recognized him at once when I suddenly saw him attending to the duties that have engrossed his attention for 15 years.

As a young man he was very fond of horses, and he could not forsake the mission of aiding poor dying men in his solemn journey toward eternal life, so he had compromised the matter and driven a hearse for 15 years.

He claimed to have the best pair of matched black stallions west of Kentucky, and on the road home from the grave often got in ahead of the electric cars. He asked me to get on the box with him, but I was afraid people would think I was burying my audience, so I refused.

I may write another letter on life in California next week, for it is a very interesting state, and aside from those people in it who claim to have been the first white child born here I like the people very much."

To Bicycle Men.

It is an acknowledged fact that wheels have been held at an arbitrary figure and that sooner or later they must drop in price. Having been placed in a position to sell wheels we take the initiative in reducing the price on high grade wheels and guarantee them in every respect equal to the highest priced wheels on the market, none excepted.

THE FAIR OPEN

President Cleveland Pressed the Button and the Great Machinery of the World's Fair Revolved.

The Morning Opened With a Scotch Mist, But the Sun Broke Through the Clouds.

Brilliant Scene at the Opening Ceremonies of the Greatest Exposition in the World's History.

Short Speeches Delivered By President Cleveland and Director General Davis Declaring the Fair Opened.

CHICAGO, May 1.--Gover Cleveland, president of the United States, surrounded by the members of his cabinet, by high officials of the various states, by numerous and distinguished representation of lands across the seas, and by a mighty throng of American citizens, today pressed the button which set in motion the miles of shafting, the innumerable engines and mechanisms which make up the machinery of the World's Columbian exposition. At the same moment the national salute pealed forth from the guns of the Andrew Johnson, ringing off the exposition grounds in Lake Michigan; 700 flags, released from their "stays" at a concerted signal, flew loose and streamed out under the sky in scarlet, yellow and blue; over in machinery hall a great roar arose as the big wheels began to turn, and a greater volume of sound arose from the throats of the great concourse of people who thus acclaimed the opening of the grand achievement of American pluck, enterprise and generosity.

Nearly all night there had been a continuous, soaking, drizzling rain that caused the spirits of the World's fair officials to sink to the zero point. The rain continued until 7 o'clock when the clouds parted and through a rift over the lake there was a gleam of cold sunshine. It lasted only for a moment, however, and although the rain ceased the clouds still hung sullen and lowering over the city. The wind blew faintly from the east, flapping the banners and other decorations in a dismal fashion and except on the asphalt boulevards the mud lay thick and deep. All this, however, had no effect upon the enthusiasm of the energetic citizens who had determined to witness the opening of the fair.

Crowds Gathered Early.

Before the first flash of light in the eastern sky heralded the approach of the dawn the down town streets were astir, despite the rain which was falling, crowds were hurrying from the railroad depots on the North and West sides, and the cable lines were discharging load after load of passengers at the intersection of Madison and La Salle streets and along Dearborn street from Monroe street to the lake. Carriages and omnibuses began to hurry through the South Division, and pedestrians innumerable set their faces southward in the direction of Jackson park. Down at the Van Buren street station of the Illinois Central road the crowds began to gather early and by daybreak the approaches to the viaduct were black with people awaiting the opening of the gates leading to the train platform.

As the morning wore on the throngs increased. Excursion trains from near-by points and the regular suburban trains on the various roads began to arrive, and the crowds from other sources. Nine o'clock saw every available means of transportation tested to its full capacity and in some cases beyond it. At 10 o'clock the hour for the opening exercises, drew near, the rush reached its height, subsiding as 11 o'clock was reached. The great fair railroad depots became less thick, the cable cars moved along only comfortably filled, the boats carried off smaller loads of passengers, pedestrians became fewer and fewer, and by noon the down town streets were, if anything, clearer than on ordinary days when no World's fair is being opened.

Illustration at Lexington.

Almost from daylight Michigan avenue, that grand gateway to the fair, the pride of the city and the admiration of its visitors from home and abroad, alive with pedestrians and vehicles of all descriptions. In their sleeping chambers on the second floor of the Auditorium the duke of Veragua and his party, even before they had arisen, could hear the continuous rumble of wheels, the hoarse shouts of the drivers and the incessant chatter of the pedestrians. Even while the duke was bidding a hearty good morning to the members of his suite, a local band, animated by a spirit of courtesy and good cheer toward the descendant of the illustrious discoverer, had already arranged itself under the portico of the hotel and given a few toots preliminary to a serenade of Spanish airs, that served to whet the appetites of the breakfasters.

By the time the meal was concluded, the committee of escort had put in an appearance, and after greetings had been exchanged, the ducal party were shown to their carriages. It had originally been intended that the parade should form at the Auditorium at the Lexington hotel and his cabinet when the Lexington hotel had been reached, but questions of diplomatic usage and etiquette were interposed and it was determined that the ducal party should rendezvous at the Lexington.

It was 8:30 when the party left the Auditorium, and ten minutes later they were shaking hands with President Cleveland in the blue parlor of the Lexington. While the hand-shaking was in progress, Vice President Stevenson and his party, which had been hurried out of the Palmer house under conditions similar to those experienced by the guests of the Auditorium, put in an appearance.

On their heels came the members of the national commission and fair directors, who were to act as hosts and escorts to the distinguished guests of honor on this memorable day.

Meanwhile the procession was in course of formation on the avenue north of its intersection with Twenty-second street, and promptly at 9 o'clock, right on the moment set in the official orders, Maj. T. A. Baldwin, of Seventh United States cavalry, in command of the escorting division, was prepared to give the signal for the procession to move. At the head, to clear the way, mounted on handsome chargers, was a platoon of gray-coated South Park police; behind them, in their brand new blue uniforms, a detachment of city police on horseback. Next in line came Company B of the Seventh United States cavalry, under command of Capt. E. A. Varnum, and Company K of the Seventh United States cavalry, under command of L. K. Hare.

The Chicago Hussars.

The fourth division was the Chicago hussars, headed by Capt. E. L. Brand and Adjutant Thomas S. Quincy, and who appeared for the first time in their Americanized Russian uniform. Twenty trumpeters heralded the approach of the hussars, and bringing up in the rear of the military division was mounted Troop A, of the Illinois national guard. The procession of carriages was led by a vehicle containing the National Commissioners, A. B. Widener and Bradley R. Smalley, of Vermont, with Directors Thomas B. Bryan and James W. Ellsworth, of New York, and Directors Charles Heriot and Wm. B. Kerfoot. Next to them rode the Commissioners, Secretary of the Board, Directors Ketcham and Lawrence. The fourth and fifth carriages were also jointly occupied by commissioners and local notables, and the director of works, George R. Davis and D. H. Burrham, who rode vis a vis.

It was the seventh carriage, however, that brought out the enthusiasm of the on-lookers. In it, his face toward the south, sat the president of the United States and on the opposite seat were Presidents T. W. Palmer, of the World's Columbian commission, and H. N. Higginbotham, of the World's Columbian exposition. In the sixth carriage rode with two World's fair ex-presidents, Lyman J. Gage and William T. Baker. Secretary Gresham rode with National Commissioner Davidson B. Peck, secretary Carlisle with dignified judicial-looking George V. Massey, of Delaware; Secretary Herbert with Charles H. Schwab, of Pennsylvania, and the first brand of the national commission, J. W. St. Clair of West Virginia, and finally Secretary Morton with Director H. B. Smith.

The American contingent having thus led the way, an official escort having been preserved, the third or foreign division was inaugurated with the fourth carriage. This was occupied by the duke of Veragua, the first vice president of the commission, ex-Governor of Connecticut, and the first vice president of the exposition, Ferd. W. Peck and Commander Dickens of the United States army.

The Duchess of Veragua.

The fair sex loomed up for the first time in the procession, and followed the duchess of Veragua being escorted by Mrs. Potter Palmer, who did the honors as president of the board of lady managers, and by Mrs. Commander Dickens. In the sixth carriage were Marquis de Baraboles, son of the duke and duchess, M. H. DeYoung, commissioner from California, and second vice president of the commission, and Robert A. Waller, of the board of directors. In the seventh and eighteenth were Honorable Charles L. Huntington, of the board of directors, and Marie Del Pilar Aguilera and Carlos Aguilera with the Marquis Obara and Director Charles L. Hutchinson. The ducal party was succeeded by carriages occupied by Ambassador Thomas F. Bayard and Minister to Belgium Lambert Tree, Maj. Gen. Miles and aide, Admiral Cheratoff and aide, and the carriage of the carriage of Mayor Harrison, who was accompanied by three members of the board of aldermen, brought up in the extreme rear.

As the procession moved southward on Michigan avenue thence along Grand boulevard to Fifty-first street, thence through Avenue de la Plaine, and thence to the grand and crowded entrance gate, it was attended by an almost unbroken diapason of cheering. Up to the boundaries of the fair, the welcome had been distinctly American, but from here on to the gates it partook of a decided cosmopolitan flavor.

Arabs prostrated themselves on the ground and cried aloud to Allah. Chinese in long, white flowing robes made salaams with the arms and shoulders. Europeans stood in line with bayonettes of the harem and the donkey boy of Cairo knelt beside his sleek coat companion. The street in Cairo was emptied of its residents, and the Esquimaux content did not even leave the six weeks' baby in doors. So the procession slowly wound its way past groups of Algerians and Mongolians and Africans and Japanese and Laplanders and Moors and Persians, through a Dahomey village, and a Japanese camp, past the blue grotto of Capri and the Moorish palace, the Japanese settlement and the Zoopraxiscope under the captive balloon, and through a lane formed of two score of beauties of half as many nations. Then the lions and tigers, fresh from the wilds of Africa, roared and howled a welcome as the troops and carriages passed by. Never before probably had such a cosmopolitan greeting in the same stretch of territory been accorded to mortal man.

In the Grounds.

Less than an hour had been occupied in the journey, from the starting point, to the brilliant entry within the great White City and now in order. As the head of the column emerged from Midway Plaisance, it was met by a detachment of the Columbian guard accompanied by Col. Rice and his staff, who from this point took the right of line. Slowly the procession moved around the grounds, and then south again past the horticultural building and the lagoon encompassing the wooded island, on past the choral hall and the beautiful structure devoted to mines and mining.

Here it veered to the east, crossed the installation track and described a roundabout course to the administration building.

Time was flying, however, and they lingered but for a few moments under the magnificent dome of the fair's executive mansion. Again the procession was re-formed, and now emerging from the eastern entrance moved toward the platform from which the formal ceremonies were to be conducted. Here the master of ceremonies with a score of assistants were standing at attention and ready to direct the guests to the proper sections in the order of priority. From the center of the platform proper there radiated a special stand, and upon this were chairs for President Cleveland, Vice President Stevenson, the duke of Veragua and his party, and the higher national and local officers of the fair.

Immediately in the rear were the sections assigned to the members of the diplomatic corps while to the right and left the other officials and guests of the occasion were arranged. Behind these points, the objective point of all being the administration building. In front of all occupying the two wings to the right and left of the speaker's stand was provision for some 300 representatives of the press. Between the platform and the audience before it, every nation and tongue seemed to be represented to the honor and glory of the Columbian exposition.

Rain Followed by Sunshine.

At 6 o'clock people from far and near began entering the gates at different points, the objective point of all being the administration building. Before they had progressed far on their way, however, they were discouraged by the atmospheric conditions. A mist of the Scotch variety, accompanied by a drizzling rain, fell upon the White City and the crowds augmenting in every direction, they were obliged to seek the shelter of the various buildings. There was mud and more mud on every side which could not be kept from coming in contact with the guests.

The stone crushers and rollers and the big broom brigade at work in front of the grand stand were almost in complete possession of that quarter. As the time drew near to the hour when the president was to open the exposition, the depressing mist and drizzle began to disappear and the sky brightened to such an extent as to warrant the prediction that rain would not mar the opening ceremonies. Patches of light appeared in the heavens and it looked as if the sun really intended to stop its prolonged fit of the sulks.

At 6 o'clock the foreign commissioners and members of the diplomatic corps, resident in gold lace, jewels and decorations were escorted to the east front of the platform amid rousing cheers. Fifty minutes later the head of the main procession emerged from under the big avenues of the administration building and slowly descended to the extension of the grand stand. Just as the president appeared in view of the audience, the sun broke fully and squarely through the clouds and quickened the torrent of enthusiasm that welcomed the chief executive of the United States.

While awaiting the arrival of the presidential party, a number of women in the crowd who had been on their feet for hours swooned or fainted, and the services of several Red Cross ambulance chairs were in constant requisition for over half an hour.

Opening the Exercises.

All was now in readiness for the inauguration of the exercises proper. It had been intended to practice the opening making with a grand chorus of 1000 voices, but owing to an oversight in drawing the plans of the platform this feat was eliminated and in its place was rendered a Columbian march composed for the occasion by Prof. John K. Paine. Theodore Thomas wielded the baton for continuous respect to the wand of authority. As the music died away, the blind chaplain of the United States senate, Rev. Dr. W. H. Milburn, was led forward. Facing the throng with clasped hands and bowed head he besought the blessing of the Almighty upon the proceedings of the day and the enterprise about to be inaugurated. This was his supplication:

"All glory be to Thee, Lord God of hosts, that Thou hast moved the hearts of all kindred tongues, people and nations to keep a feast of tabernacles in this place in commemoration of that most momentous of all voyages, by which Columbus lifted the veil that hid the new world from the old and opened the gateway of the future for mankind. Thy servants have builded these more than imperial palaces, many chambers and many galleries, in which to store and show man's victories over air, earth, fire and flood, engines of use, treasures of beauty and promise, and signs that are to be in illustration of the world's advance within these 400 years. To Thee, our risen and ascended Lord, we dedicate these trophies of past achievements, the present and prophecies of the future, laying them reverently and with humility and yet with a rapture of thanks and praise at the foot of Thy cross, for Thou hast redeemed us by Thy blood and made us kings and priests unto our God. Upon thine honored servants, the president of the United States, the members of his cabinet, the judges of the supreme court, the senators and representatives of the people and all other magistrates throughout our broad land; upon that most illustrious sovereign of the world, our kinswoman revered and beloved in this land as in her own, the gracious lady Queen Victoria; upon all the presidents, emperors, kings, queens and other rulers of whatever name or degree and upon all the people and nations over which they may sway, we pray that the benediction of the King of kings and Lord of lords may descend and alight, hastening the time when nations shall learn war no more."

"Make this World's fair a Sabbath for the whole human race, a year of jubilee in which the heavy grinding yoke of the yoke of Him who is meek and lowly in heart, in which love to God and love to man shall become the rule of all men's lives, so that with one voice the whole world may ring with the anthem which angels sang over the sheep folds of Bethlehem, 'Glory be to God in the Highest.' Accept our praise and benediction, prayers, through him that hath taught us to say, 'Our Father, Who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is heaven. Give us this day, our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from all evil. Amen."

Many of those about him joined in the "amen" with which the man of God concluded his invocation. Miss Jennie Couthou, a Chicago reader and elocutionist of national reputation, was escorted to the speaker's stand and in clear, impressive tones commenced to read the opening stanzas of the poem of the day. This was entitled "The Prophecy," and is the production of W. A. Croffut, a member of the journalistic profession at the national capital.

Director General Davis.

Hearty applause rewarded the reader as she retired, and it was renewed when after the orchestra had rendered the "Rienzi" overture, by Wagner, Director General Davis arose from his seat and after bowing to the chief magistrate and those around him faced the assemblage. This is what he said:

"The dedication of these grounds and buildings for the purpose of an international exhibition took place on the 21st of last October, at which time they were accepted for the objects by which they were destined by congress. This is not the time nor the place, neither will it be expected of me to give a comprehensive resume of the strenuous efforts which have been put forth to complete the work to which we invite your inspection today. I may be permitted, however, to say a word in praise of and in gratitude to my co-officers and official staff for the great organization which made this consummation possible.

"This exhibition is not the conception of any single mind, it is not the result of any single effort, but it is the grandest conception of all the minds and the best obtainable result of all the efforts put forth by all the people who have in any manner contributed to its creation."

Gen. Davis then reviewed the work of the various departments in detail and continued:

"And now in this central city of this great republic on the continent discovered by Columbus whose distinguished descendants are present as the honored guests of our nation, it only remains for you, Mr. President, in your opinion the exposition here presented be commensurate in dignity with what the world should expect of our great country, to direct that it shall be opened to the public, and when you touch this magic key this ponderous machinery will start in its revolution and the activeness of the exposition will begin."

President Cleveland Speaks.

It was now the turn of the president of the United States to present himself, and as he slowly arose from his seat there went up a cheer that seemed to shake the massive dome of the building behind and which reverberated through the grounds like the rattling of musketry. At last when all the throats and arms alike were tired, and a semblance of quiet had once more come over the throng, he commenced his address. This is what he said:

"I am here to join my fellow citizens in the congratulations which befit this occasion. Surrounded by the stupendous results of American enterprise, activity and in view of the magnificent evidences of American skill and intelligence, we need not fear that these congratulations will be exaggerated. We stand today in the presence of the oldest nation of the world and point to the great achievements we here exhibit, asking no allowance on the score of youth. The enthusiasm with which we contemplate our work increases the warmth of the greeting we extend to those who have come from foreign lands to illustrate with us the growth and progress of human endeavor in the direction of a higher civilization.

"We, who believe that popular education and the stimulation of the best impulses of our citizens lead the way to a realization of the proud national destiny which our fair promises, gladly welcome the opportunity here afforded us to see the results accomplished by efforts which have been exerted longer than ours in the field of man's improvement; while in appreciation of the return we exhibit the unparalleled advancement and wonderful accomplishments of a young nation and present the triumphs of a vigorous, resilient and independent people. We have built these splendid edifices, but we have also built the magnificent fabric of popular government whose grand proportions are seen throughout the world. We have made and here gathered together objects of use and beauty, the products of American skill and invention; but we have also made men who rule themselves.

"It is an exalted mission in which we and our guests from other lands are engaged, as we co-operate in the inauguration of an enterprise devoted to human enlightenment; and in the undertaking we here enter upon, we exemplify in the noblest sense the brotherhood of nations. Let us hold fast to the meaning that underlies this ceremony and let us not lose the impressiveness of this moment. As by a touch the machinery that gives life to this vast exposition is now set in motion, so at the same instant let our hopes and aspirations awaken forces, which in that time to come shall influence the welfare, the dignity and the freedom of mankind."

The Machinery Started.

As the president was concluding the final sentence, his eyes wandered to the table that was close at his left hand. Upon this was the button the pressure upon which was to start the machinery and make the opening of the exposition an accomplished fact. It was an ordinary form of Victor telegraph key, such as is in use in most telegraph offices, except that it was of gold instead of steel and a button of ivory instead of rubber. As the last word fell from the president's lips he pressed his finger upon the button.

The audience burst into a thundering shout, the orchestra pealed forth the strains of the Hallelujah chorus, the wheels of the great Allis engine in machinery hall commenced to revolve, the electric fountains in the lagoon threw their torrents to the sky, a flood of water gushed forth from the McMonnies fountain and rolled back into the basin, the thunder of artillery came from the vessels in the lake, the chimes in Manufactures' hall and on the German building rang out a merry peal and overhead the flags at the tops of the poles in front of the platform fell apart and revealed two gilded models of the ships in

MUST SELL IT AGAIN

Creditors of Simon Clark & Co. Object to the Sale of the Stock to Angus Gibson.

Judge Lewis Enters An Order Decreeing That the Stock Shall Be Resold and Advertised.

He Declared, However, That He Believed That Assignee Fitzgerald Acted As He Deemed Best.

On Saturday there was argued before Judge Lewis a number of motions which had been jointly filed by Kelly, Robson & Co.; Eckart, Williams & Co.; Smith, Koors & Co.; Arundel, Warren & Co.; Fitzsimmons Warfield company, and the State bank of Duluth. The motions were made to move the court to set aside the order confirming the sale to Angus Gibson of the stock of merchandise belonging to the assets of Simon Clark & Co. and Simon Clark, insolvent. Affidavits of Chas. S. Epping showing his willingness to pay full cost price for the merchandise and to assume the lease of the premises of the insolvent, and his estimate that the stock is worth $15,000 were filed.

Attorney J. W. Reynolds affirmed that he believed the stock would bring at least $20,000, and that the assumed purchase by Angus Gibson was solely in the interest of the insolvent, and that the alleged purchaser really had no interest in the purchase of the stock, and furthermore that the price was inadequate, and that the sale was surreptitiously made.

Chas. T. Fitzsimmons affirmed that he is a creditor to the extent of $25,000, and that he believes the cash value of the stock to be in excess of $20,000. R. W. Arundel followed in the same strain and alleged that the sale was made with the intent to defraud the creditors. E. D. Baker filed a similar affidavit; so did Thomas Smith and A. L. Simon.

M. O. Hall filed the value of the stock at about $25,000, and that the estate is indebted to the bank in the sum of about $10,000, and that he had been informed prior to the assignment that the stock was fully worth $37,000. The bank received no notice of the intended sale and claims it was fraudulent. Mr. Hall also says that Angus Gibson has no financial standing, has no experience and no money, and would not be likely to embark in the grocery business.

The judge ordered the sale set aside and the assignee to be reimbursed for his expenses by the plaintiff and the day of sale is to be advertised in the daily papers of the city. The judge further said that in setting aside the sale he did not in the slightest degree impinge any fraudulent intent to the assignee, but that he had acted as he deemed best, simply complying a form of procedure.

COURT IS ADJOURNED.

It was ordered that all cases not disposed of be continued by the court until next term.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Sport McAllister." A good audience at the Temple Saturday evening. Bobby Gaylor is the whole show. He is undoubtedly the best Irishman on the stage. His brogue, his singing and his manner are inimitable.

Outside of Gaylor, however, there is but little to Sport McAllister. The specialty of Messrs. Gilbert and Goldie caught the crowd and was quite clever.

"Janaschek in 'Macbeth'." Tonight Mrs. Janaschek, the famous tragedienne, will appear at the Lyceum in her greatest character, Lady Macbeth. The Minneapolis Tribune says of her Lady Macbeth:

"Mrs. Janaschek's manner is a foreign one, and as Lady Macbeth she uses it to advantage, although in the Scottish gentlewoman is not shown a sketch of alien character. But the very foreignness of Janaschek's presence gives to the role a certain distinct and peculiar air. There is much power and eloquence in her Lady Macbeth. Her mood, though dark brooded and sullen as befits its original wearer, is lifted by an occasional smile. One is just about to complain of the lack of expressiveness in the character, when the king is announced and the hostess turns to welcome him with a smile of deceit and a gracious homage. Janaschek's Lady Macbeth is decidedly the best in vindictiveness, as a whole, but her finest scene is not at the banquet board but as the sleep walker. Her personality has a strength and charm that cannot be effaced and which, so long as it remains, will render her acting worthy."

"Ole Olson" Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night "Ole Olson" will again be seen at the Temple. On the occasion of its last appearance it drew one of the largest audiences ever seen in Duluth.

"Ole Olson" is a comely, pure and simple in every sense of the word, and is much different from most so-called comedies, in that it has a well defined plot that carries the story through to a successful and reasonable ending.

"Ole Olson" is a quiet, unobtrusive immigrant, whose efforts to master the idioms and pronunciations of our tongue are easily amusing. The peculiar and ludicrously exasperating stolidity of the flaxen-haired descendant of the vikings offers a splendid field for quaint and novel comedy work, and the author has taken advantage of it.

William H. Crane.

The engagement of Wm. H. Crane at the Temple is for two nights and matinee, Friday and Saturday next.

The opening play will be the "Senator" which will be repeated at the matinee and evening.

Monday night Mr. Crane will present his new comedy by Brander Mathews and Geo. H. Jessop entitled "On Probation," written expressly for the actors and which is described as very amusing.

The scenes are laid in Paris and Interlaken, Switzerland, affording an opportunity for the display of picturesque scenery, of which every advantage will be taken.

Like all of Mr. Crane's recent productions the leading character is a typical American, Jonathan Silsbee, of Chicago, U. S. A., and this course will be sustained by the comedian. The rest of the cast will introduce all of the members of Mr. Crane's admirable company.

BASEBALL REUNION.

Old St. Paul Red Caps to Have One—George West Was Short Stop.

The St. Paul Daily News of last Monday contained an announcement that during the coming summer a reunion of the old Red Cap Baseball club, organized in 1871, would be held. This will be particularly interesting to Duluthians, but to one in particular—George West. The old Red caps were the champion amateurs of the state in the days of '74, '75 and '76.

Everything before them. George was short stop and a crack one, too. He was also secretary of the club and has in his possession now the secretary's book and will take it down to the reunion.

He tells many good stories about the games and how Elmer Foster and Jack Crooks, two of the crack professionals of today, used to hang on to his coat tails trying to get him to take them into the grounds. The News says:

"Probably there is not another ball club in the world that nineteen years after organization can bring together a full nine as they appeared on the diamond in the early days of base ball. It is a remarkable instance and these two more remarkable is that eight of these are still living in St. Paul, the other, George West, is in the mining business in Duluth and frequently visits St. Paul."

Those who will participate in the reunion will be Catcher Mack Berkman, now a veterinary surgeon; Pitcher J. J. Ahern, now clerk of the municipal court; in this city; First Baseman George Allen, now in the livery business; Second Baseman F. Berkman, also a veterinary surgeon; Third Baseman John Donnelly, at present in the employ of the mail service; Short Stop George West, now in the mining business at Duluth; Center Fielder Walter Scott, now an engineer; Left Fielder A. L. Warren, now of the Kuhl & Stock wholesale cigar firm, and Right Fielder W. Barnes, now clerking in the city.

William Oestrich, the original first baseman, is now farming in Dakota, and the original left fielder, Charley Frost, a brother of Jack Frost, of this city, is at his old home in Easton, Pa. These two will probably not be present at the reunion. Paul Martin, now a member of the board of fire commissioners, was change catcher and he and Berkman were the only two amateurs who could catch Ahern's delivery. As a result of Berkman's experience with Ahern's speed he has a sound finger on either hand today. * * * Probably a few innings will be played against any other club but it is doubtful if any of the boys could now find a curve, catch a fly or make the trip around the bases, and three or four innings would suffice to lay them on their backs gasping for breath with a doctor busy curing their broken and disjointed fingers."

To Capt. Pressnell the above is also of considerable interest for he once umpired a game in which the Red Caps played.

The Pavilion Concert.

If the attendance at the Sunday concert at the pavilion is any indication that institution will be very popular this summer. The audience yesterday afternoon was a great one, several thousand people being present and enjoying the excellent music by Prof. Meier's City band.

Why are the Deposit Loan Certificates Being Taken so Fast?

Because the Union and Zenith Building and Loan associations, with over $200,000 of assets, limit the issue to one-half the mortgage assets, which allows the issue at present of $50,000. Over $70,000 has already been borrowed at from 6 to 8 per cent interest. The limit will soon be reached and parties desiring to invest in these certificates and receive these high rates of interest will do well to buy at once.

We have constantly on hand funds for investment in first mortgage loans of any amount. No delays.

Judge Powell's Share.

In the police court this morning the leading feature was the newly and smoothly shaven face of Judge Powell. The new order of things did not, however, seem to affect the even manner in which he is wont to administer justice. Two fellows were committed five days each for vagrancy, while four went up ten days each for drunkenness. Two charged with the same offense were given a suspension of sentence.

Less Work for Carriers.

Two new carriers have been allowed the Duluth postoffice by the department at Washington. Heretofore the carriers have been required to get around at 6:15 a. m. and help distribute the mail. The postmaster general has ordered that the carriers have nothing to do with the distribution. Under that arrangement, they do not have to report for duty until 7:15 a. m., whereat broad smiles are upon their faces.

The Stuntz Surveying Party.

George R. Stuntz and surveying party returned today from a three months' trip on Pelican and other rivers near the Mesaba range. They ran several correction line surveys and journeyed about 600 or 700 miles on snow shoes. Mr. Stuntz reports the snow as quite deep in the woods, some places yet having four or five feet. He says the weather was all right but the snow shoeing conditions were bad and he wore out twelve pairs of snow shoes on the trip.

A GRAND RAPIDS SENSATION.

Frederick A. Powers Claims Title to the Whole Township.

Grand Rapids has a sensation, Frederick A. Powers, of Turner, N. D., having laid claim to the land on which the town was laid out. By the treaty of 1855, the Chippewas became the owners of this land, and Mr. Powers instituted a still hunt for the original scrip, or the person who obtained the original patent. Having found this person and purchased the title for a song, Mr. Powers has commenced suit against every lot owner on the original township. Mr. Powers is in Duluth today. He was represented in the Pioneer Press yesterday as saying that "powers of attorney were forged by the parties laying out the township, and through these powers land which did not belong to them was conveyed to the present owners." Mr. Powers said to The Herald today: "I wish to say that the parties who laid out the town are all well known and honorable men and bought the property in good faith."

he Bulk of the Multitude Was Made Up of Chicagoans, But Visitors Were Numerous.

Chicago, May 1.—Representatives of 11 nations elbowed one another in the road avenues of the great White City today. Swothy Turks from the shores of the Bosphorus walked side by side with their traditional enemies the fierce assaults of the Doni sooty Nubians scolded yellow Lascars; subjects of the hah habobbed with denizens of the land of the white elephant; the Esquimaux—children of the frozen North—sauntered through the long reach of roadway, gazing curiously at the Javanese, whose home is near the equator. It was a congress of nations. Of course Great Britain and continental Europe were the most strongly represented. There was a mass of foreign millions and gold and lace in every corner, and every third man wore decoration. There were Germans, Frenchmen, Russians, Austrians, Swiss, such claims the chief glory of the Colombian era in right of Ferdinand and Isabella, who sent the great admiral on his quest, divided the hemisphere into Italy, which claims his birthplace, above the heads of the throng floated the flags of all nations. The Union Jack of old England swung side by side with the tricolor of France; the red and yellow of Spain was everywhere; and the Austrian eagles flew on the breezes along with those of Russia. China's yellow dragon pennant, the sun flag of Uruguay, the Geneva cross of the Swiss republic, the star and crescent of the sublime Porte, the lion of Persia, the slant banner of Haiti, soon perhaps to disappear forever, all these were there; and floating above them all the standard of the great republic, the stars and stripes, napped in the breeze the symbol of liberty and asylum to the oppressed of the whole earth.

Long Speeches Not Wanted.
The visitors of the opening exercises in making the opening exercises as brief as possible was evident. No one was in a humor to listen to long speeches or flowery dissertations. The exercises last October, but today everyone was anxious to begin the inspection of the great exhibition, and the crowds that ebbed and flowed through the buildings and avenues was an earnest of the multitudes yet to come when the pilgrimage to the Mecca of civilization begins. Of course, everyone who could do so listened with attention and respect to President Cleveland, but there was no evident disposition to commence sightseeing as soon as possible. The foreign notables who bobbed up in every direction were therefore not molested by curious crowds, although here and there a knot of people would be attracted by an unusually fantastic costume or gorgeous uniform.

In the presence of the aggregation of stately structures that lined the lake shore and clustered around the lagoons, however, no one cared to look at an outlandish dress or a strange face for longer than a moment. There was too much to be seen in the buildings. It is true that the exhibits are not yet by any means complete. They have not arrived so rapidly as was expected, and the work of classification has been somewhat delayed. Still, with all these drawbacks, the attractions are said to be almost equal to those of any previous exposition in its completed state. Satisfactory as this condition of affairs is, yet contrasted with the display which will greet the visitor a few weeks hence, that of today will be remembered only as a prologue to one of the most instructive and bewildering spectacles in the history of the world. It is a pity to say, however, that none of us visitors today was dissatisfied with what he saw. From the Forestry building on the south to the Montana building at the extreme northern limit of the grounds, there was a succession of strange and novel sights, moving multitudes and a display of the resources and products of civilization such as has never before been collected in one place.

The Multitude.
The crowd was of good natured one. There was of course some of the inconvenience and discomfort inseparable from a large gathering, and in some cases curiosity to see all that was to be seen overcame good manners; but as a rule there was a disposition to give all an equal chance, and there was no disorderly rushing into the great show and ill-considered complaints at the trifling inconveniences which were undergone. Aside from the foreigners, the two most prominent features of the history of the crowd, the bulk of the multitude was made up of Chicagoans. This was to be expected, considering the partially unfinished condition of the great show and the further fact that most of the prospective visitors from other states and territories had long ago made their arrangements to reach Chicago after the exposition should be fully opened. Chicago, however, had evidently resolved to take a day off in honor of the event, and the attendance was highly gratifying, not only as to numbers, but also in make-up. Neighboring cities and states were not by any means unrepresented, however. Special trains brought into the city thousands of sight-seers who swelled the throng that had gathered from the streets and highways of the Garden City and joined in the opening of the big show.

It was a great day for the rising generation. It seemed almost incredible that so many children could be set together even in Chicago, and the independent spirit of young America was manifested in the fact that the most of the youngsters seemed to be unaccompanied by their parents or older persons. They swarmed through the big buildings got themselves tangled up in all sorts of unexpected places and made the lives of the Columbian guards miserable from daylight to dark. They took the big battle ship by storm; they sacked the convent of La Robida; and they invaded the sacred precincts of the Mohammedan mosque. They were everywhere at once, and no doubt saw twice as much of the interesting features of the exposition as any mature persons did.

Good Arrangements.
All the arrangements for handling the crowds were excellent. The gates were at no time choked and the throng passed into the grounds with less trouble than is often experienced at a theater or other place of entertainment. Throughout the grounds were distributed the World's fair police, or Columbian guards as they are called. They were of value in directing the movements of the people when a blockade was threatened, and their services were occasionally called into requisition to clear the way for a passing vehicle connected with the police department or the sanitary department of the exposition. Considering the throng, there were surprisingly few accidents of a serious character, however, and the ambulances were seldom called into requisition.

The transportation facilities, while not yet completed to their highest capacity, were fairly adequate. The passenger cars, the task of the railroads was by starting early. Even in the early morning the down town streets were filled with people headed for Jackson Park. The crowds were easily taken care of. As the forenoon wore on the crowd swelled, and by ten o'clock the human current was at its height. The crowds did not depend on the task of the public transportation lines, however. They came in every conceivable fashion—on foot, on bicycles, in carts, carriages, bandwagons, street cars, railroads and steamboats. Anything on wheels if on land, or anything that would float, if on the water, was utilized.

There were some queerly assorted groups. On one of the early Illinois Central trains, in the same coach, were a merchant from Baghdad with his two turbaned attendants, a group of Prussian metal workers, a squad of English soldiers, three Armenian gymnasts from the Midway Plaisance, several unidentifiable and chattering Chingese, and the Hon. William F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," who, by the way, attracted as much attention today as any Fasha with tree tails, or other foreign notable on the grounds.

Another car held a party of Arab donkey drivers, who divided the honors with three Hindoo snake-charmers from upper India in the eyes of a family from Missouri, consisting of father, mother and five children. The elevated road carried similar incongruous groups, and the cable cars resounded all day with the tongues of all nations.

Most People Walked.
Inside the grounds the facilities for getting around were varied. Most of the people, of course, walked; but for those who preferred to utilize other modes of locomotion there were the wheeled chairs, the electric launches and other craft, which cruised through the lagoons and canal, passing on the route all the principal buildings and points of attraction. Of course such a multitude was hungry and thirsty, and the thousands and one restaurants and refreshment bars scattered through the grounds did a thriving business.

Outside the walls of the fair proper, too, there was the same shifting, ever changing crowd of curiosity seekers. In the Midway Plaisance, the various villages were crowded all day, and the booths and shows on the fringe of the fair were never empty. The leather-legged side-show "blower" was in his glory, and all the familiar old attractions of the circus and Coney Island were to be seen on every side, not a whit abashed by their close proximity to the most stupendous show the world has ever seen.

All day long the crowds ebbed and flowed in and about the big structures. With most people the great difficulty was to determine where to commence, and once fairly started on the tour of sightseeing there came a feeling of helplessness and despair of ever accomplishing the task of inspecting the whole exposition. Many who set out in the morning boasting that they would cover all the buildings before night found themselves at evening still wandering through the aisles of the first building they had entered. The seasoned exposition-goers who had visited Paris, Philadelphia and Vienna mapped out their plan of campaign like veterans, and catalogue in hand set bravely at work on some one department with the intention of taking all the others up in turn and doing each thoroughly. There were few of these, however, and most of today's visitors regarded the first day as merely an opening skirmish. There was a sort of grand tour of inspection without leaving to examine details, but rather to take in the general effect of the exposition. As the finishing touches are put to the buildings, and as the exhibits are in place, the systematic sightseeing will begin in earnest and there will be less of the hasty rush through the grounds, except by those whose time is limited to a day or two.

It was late before the crowd which came early began to thin out. They dropped off quietly at first in little groups and those who left this early avoided the crush which began when the mass of visitors began to move toward the gates. The transportation companies were called upon to handle the crowds more en masse than was the case in the forenoon, and as a result there was more or less crowding and confusion. After some delay, however, the heavily laden cars carried off load after load of human freight; the steamboats drew off from the wharves; carriages rolled toward the city in long lines; wheelmen and pedestrians took up the line of march homeward, and as darkness fell the great White City was left unattended save by the guards and watchmen.

GOVERNMENT.

Uncle Sam's Exhibit Complete—A Creditable Display.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Due largely to the administrative capacity and military precision that obtains in the conduct of affairs governmental, the section assigned to the government of the United States has been practically in a completed condition for several days, and this morning, with every department in good order, its doors were opened to the army of sightseers. It is, without question, the most comprehensive and complete exhibit of the character, purposes and scope of the various departments of the administrative branch of a great country that has ever been attempted by any nation. No attempt was made by the government of France to arrange a collective departmental exhibit at the Paris exposition, although some of its bureaus were incidentally represented on a minor scale in various sections devoted to general displays.

There was a pretentious effort toward a government display at the Centennial exposition, but both the building erected in Fairmount Park and its contents were insignificant as compared with the creation of today. Philadelphia's structure was simply an elaborate shed of wood and glass, while the government building at Jackson Park is an ornate and imposing structure, covering a ground area 350 by 120 feet of iron and glass, surrounded by a majestic dome and bearing a strong resemblance to the National Museum, and other government buildings at the national capital. From an educational point of view the exhibit is of incalculable value and importance, in the fact that it will afford to millions who have never visited the national capital, and probably never will, an opportunity of observing and studying the processes of each department of the government, and of looking upon some of its priceless treasures.

Very Instructive.

The cardinal motive prompting the exhibit is to deepen and intensify the popular interest in public affairs, and to that end the services and exertions of the chief workers and thinkers of every branch of the executive government have been largely devoted for over two years. Every section is a school of instruction. The mint, for instance, has presses in operation, striking medals of copper, bronze and white metal. Within hours of all the coins, paper currency, certificates, bonds and other evidences of indebtedness covering the past year, the year of the Declaration of Independence to the last bond or note issued from the United States treasury. There is a working postoffice, in operation, and an elaborate display of all articles relating to the postal equipment, not only of this country, but of nearly all of the foreign powers embraced in the postal union. Every largest section is that devoted to the department of agriculture, and which shows models of fruits, cereals, animal and vegetable fibres, collections of insects, and those who left this early avoided the crush which began when the mass of visitors began to move toward the gates. The transportation companies were called upon to handle the crowds more en masse than was the case in the forenoon, and as a result there was more or less crowding and confusion. After some delay, however, the heavily laden cars carried off load after load of human freight; the steamboats drew off from the wharves; carriages rolled toward the city in long lines; wheelmen and pedestrians took up the line of march homeward, and as darkness fell the great White City was left unattended save by the guards and watchmen.

Under the auspices of the treasury department are a life-saving service, fully equipped with apparatus and men; a lighthouse constructed after the latest and most approved plans, and a demonstration of the methods in vogue in the bureau of internal revenue. There is a model of the Marine hospital service, and which will be put to practical use in caring for victims of sickness or casualties. The patent office section illustrates clearly and lucidly the marvelous rate of progress in invention of the present age, and the fostering influence of the American patent system in this regard, while the system passed by the government in the direction of civilizing its Indian wards is exemplified by an Indian boarding school in full operation, with boys and girls studying, working, cooking and playing, and generally illustrating life upon an Indian reservation. The interior department shows the resources of its undeveloped territory, while the state department contributes an immense amount of historical data which demonstrates the rapid territorial growth of the country. Foreign visitors of military inclinations are afforded food for thought in the extensive exhibit of the war department, and which is fully illustrative of all the devices employed in the United States army. For the student there are valuable exhibits from the historical collections of the National museum and the Smithsonian institution, while the development of the educational facilities of the country is abundantly evidenced through the bureau of education.

MANUFACTURES.

The Great Building Filled With the Products of Every Known Land.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Colossal yet symmetrical in design, scope and proportions, the Manufactures building looms up before the visitor the Leviathan of World's fair structures. Forty acres of floor space are here devoted to the most representative products of the world's skilled labor. Whether handicraft or the results of intricate machinery the display of the product of human ingenuity has here reached its culminating point. No comparison with previous expositions can be drawn in the case of this department, because none other has ever had such space, such a setting, or such magnificent surroundings. Great as the space is it has proved scarcely one-tenth the amount that would have been necessary to satisfy the demands of the exhibitors. The rush of applications has far exceeded that in any other department and the problem has been to discriminate in favor of quality rather than quantity. The amount of space granted to foreign governments was necessarily so large that the monster floor of the building has little more than one-fourth of its space allotted to United States exhibits. Nevertheless it is the greatest showing in manufactures that yet United States has ever attempted.

Visitors Amazed.

The exterior architecture of the vast building has been so often described that the public is familiar with its gigantic proportions from the outside. Inside, however, today's crowd of visitors stood amazed. Streets and avenues are visible in the usual rectangular form of a model city. Along these interior thoroughfares specimens of architecture by the world's most famous designers vie with one another at every step. Miniature temples, kiosks, pavilions of modern design, columns and arches of every conceivable quality of architecture meet the eye at every point. Many of these are so striking and unique in design as to make them a model for much larger structures. In the foreign pavilions, especially in the German and French exhibits and the Indian and Ceylon exhibits—the booths and pavilions are frequently marvels of design and execution. Among the domestic exhibits, too, there are magnificent pavilions which challenge comparison with the finest in the foreign groups.

On the floor of the building are collected thirty-four large groups or subdivisions. These are divided into 200 or more of the leading industries. Encircling the vast structure on all four sides are spaces devoted to offices, restaurants, concessions, and various appliances for public comfort. There are continuous promenades outside in the covered loggia. Every known convenience has been provided. In the center of the building along Columbia avenue, there is a series of elevators to carry passengers to the outside of the main floor, 210 feet above the floor, where a promenade balcony extends around all four sides of the building, giving a continuous walk of over a mile and a half in making the circuit of the building.

The Exhibits.

But if the building is magnificent what shall be said of the exhibits? Here the throng, gazed in amazement? Here the richest products of skilled labor from every clime are gathered in order of profusion. Most of the exhibits are housed in pavilions. In some groups this interior architecture observes a prevailing key throughout. The prevailing style is the renaissance of architecture, the rococo decoration being frequently gorgeous and profuse. In the French exhibit, on the section diagonally opposite, the architecture is severely classic, throughout. In the English section and also in the United States section the uniformity of design is lacking, although there are many individual structures of great beauty.

The entire ground floor, with the exception of the space devoted to the piano exhibit in the liberal arts department, is given up to manufactures. There is also a small portion of the galleries devoted to manufactures, but the greater part of the gallery space is allotted to the liberal arts exhibit. Four great nations—Germany, France, Great Britain and the United States—are grouped in the center of the main floor. The quadrangle formed by these sections has a central point where all the next neighbors to the Germans, South of Austria is Japan. South of the French section is Belgium, and still further south is Russia, and small spaces allotted to Norway and China. South of Great Britain are the exhibits of the colonies, including Canada, New South Wales, India, Ceylon and Jamaica. South of the British colonies still are the sections devoted to Spain and Spanish-American countries, Italy, the Netherlands, Mexico, Persia, Brazil, Portugal, Greece, Denmark, Switzerland and other nationalities. Other exhibits are scattered through the building wherever the space has been found available.

Space is lacking, however, to tell, however inadequately, of the wonders of this building, incomplete though it is in some of its details. To attempt the task would be but to invite failure. It is enough to say that as it stands today the spectacle is one that dwarfs to insignificance all previous efforts in the same direction, and that when all the exhibits have been properly arranged—a task which will probably be accomplished within a few days—the ensemble will be one which will not be equaled for a century to come.

MACHINERY.

Triumphs of the Mechanic Arts—An Unique Newspaper.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The noiseless motion of smooth-running machinery and its miles of shafting has an irresistible fascination alike for mechanic and student, and the crowds today lingered long in Machinery hall. The famous triple expansion Copps engine, known in the hall as the "Alibi" engine, stands near the south end of the building on the long aisle running east and west. It furnishes power equal to 3000 horses and keeps the great and varied mass of machinery in motion with no apparent effort. Three overhead "travelers," with electricity for motive power, move along their elevated tracks in response to notices by telephone that a ponderous piece of mechanism or block of wood, in some part of the building needs a "hoist" or "carry." A few gangs of men are still at work putting up highly polished hand rails around numerous sections. Others are unpacking a tardy arrival, and still others are moving machinery, giving orders and gaining intelligence of affairs, and the show in Machinery, while not complete, may be said to invite inspection.

The building and its annex, which combined measure 400 by 800 feet, each resemble three tiny shells with glass roofs, placed side by side, the whole having a glass capped dome for ornament. The exterior of the building is enriched by colonnades from designs following closely the renaissance of Seville and other Spanish towns as being appropriate for a Columbian exposition. The structure is one of the beauties of the Jackson park collection, and its style is distinct from that of any other building. In this department America has honored her foreign guests by allotting them the most conspicuous portion of the hall. England, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Belgium and New South Wales occupy three fourths of the main floor section, while the United States sets forth her exhibits in the other quarter and in the annex. The United States, however, has three-quarters as much exhibit room as all the others combined. Germany's show is magnificent, and embraces every feature of machinery, from a simple lathe to the mammoth Krupp gun, the latter, however, having a pavilion to itself in another part of the grounds. France has a splendid exhibit, and its directors were the recipients of many congratulations during the day. England is further behind with her display, but not in the quality of her exhibits. Their displays will be ready for inspection in every detail in a few days.

The American section is a wonder and a delight to all visitors. Everything is in splendid shape, and when the doors were thrown open today the machinery was moving with a perfection attainable only by two weeks of preliminary running. Printing and perfecting presses grace the head of the department. Here is issued daily a newspaper, of which each Chicago daily contributes a page. All information pertaining to the World's fair, such as announcements, meetings, official news of all kinds and tiny tidbits, is published, together with local and domestic news and intelligence from all parts of the world. All manner of engines and all power used in generating electricity and heavy engines used in factories.

Fifty great boilers are banded in an oblong power house immediately adjoining the hall on the south and running its entire length. Tubular safety boilers, once replaced by crude petroleum, which, in being forced under the boilers by steam, is atomized, making the best heat known. The exhibit in Machinery hall, taken collectively, is far ahead of the Centennial, while Paris cannot be compared to it. A large number of American exhibitors and foreign countries which were not represented at the Paris exposition exhibit is much larger. Germany, which was practically barred from Paris, is here, and by direct orders of Emperor William is given a display second to none in the great structure. England's show here is as large as at Paris, while France has done nobly. As a natural result of an exhibition in a country where all are permitted to place their productions before visitors from every quarter of the globe, the workmanship and ingenuity displayed in the manufacture and application of all mechanical appliances reaches a high order, its equal being unknown to the nineteenth century.

Special World's Fair Rates.

On account of the World's Columbian exposition the St. Paul & Duluth railroad will sell one way and round trip tickets to Chicago at greatly reduced rates. RIVERS RISING Great Amount of Damage Being Done By Floods in All Portions of the Northwest.

Two Hundred Houses Submerged at Springfield, Ill., and Heavy Loss of Life is Feared.

The Red River Valley is a Regular Lake, St. Vincent, Pembina and Emerson Being Submerged.

Nearly All the West St. Paul Flat and the Bohemian Flats at St. Paul Under Water.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 2.—The awful possibility of a score of lives being lost in a flood which covers 200 houses in the southwestern part of the city is causing great excitement here. The river rose last evening with incredible rapidity and before people knew it they were hemmed in by the waters. The police force and citizens are rescuing the people in boats and on horses. The electric street car power house is flooded and traffic is stopped.

GREAT ALARM AT ST. LOUIS.

The Water is Steadily Rising and Much Damage is Feared.

St. Louis, May 2.—All through the night the river steadily rose at the rate of one inch per hour and this morning the stream nearly touches the danger line—32 feet. The current is running at eight miles an hour and the heavy swell is causing great anxiety to owners of warehouses, elevators and stores on the east side of the river.

In the northern part of the city residents of houses and storekeepers along the levee are moving their goods and chattels to the upper part of the city, and on the low lands are driven out of their cabins. Along the levee the water is up to the railroad tracks and is gradually forcing its way towards the stores that line the front of the city. The storekeepers have taken warning and are moving their goods to places of safety.

Experienced and conservative men predict that the flood will exceed that of last year. On the east side of the river, from Alton to East St. Louis, the flood has already caused great damage. At Alton, Wm. river has overflowed its banks, damaging the Equitable powder mills and throwing the bridge of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy out of line, so that it cannot safely be used. The "O" officials are trying to arrange with the Chicago & Alton road for the use of their line.

The water is all over the American bottoms below Alton. The driving park is submerged and crops are destroyed. The water is now up to the windows of the Eagle Packet company's office, and nearly on a level with the railroad tracks on the levee. At East St. Louis the river has filled the Cahokia creek, and it is now running flush with the sewers. The race track is but a few feet above water. Many stables have had to be abandoned.

In the territory surrounding East St. Louis the low lands are flooded, and the ready communication with several towns is cut off. The levee between East St. Louis and East Carondelet, erected by the farmers to protect their crops from the back waters from Cahokia creek, is in danger, and all day yesterday and throughout last night farmers by the score were at work strengthening it. If it gives way their farms will be ruined.

Reports received from various points south of here show that all the rivers in southern Missouri, Arkansas, Southern Illinois and Kentucky are on the rampage and pouring heavy volumes into the Mississippi. At Fort Smith, Ark., traffic on the Frisco road south from the city is suspended. At one place forty feet of trestle has been washed away and it is hard to tell when traffic will be resumed.

Van Buren, Ark., reports not a train running on the Santa Fe road since last Saturday. At Pine Bluff, Ark., the river is within four feet of having reached its high water mark and is steadily rising.

RIVER RISING STEADILY.

The Situation at Alton is Regarded as Very Grave.

ALTON, Ill., May 2.—The flood situation here grows graver every hour. The river has risen steadily since Sunday at the rate of more than half an inch an hour and registered last evening twenty-six feet, lacking but four and three-fourths feet of the record of last May. Some of the lowland farmers are being moved by the ferry to this shore, and others are waiting with still a hope that the tide will turn in time to save them. The flood here is worse than elsewhere because it represents the full force of three great rivers.

Both the Missouri and Illinois are pouring out fast. The St. Louis, Chicago & St. Paul railroad tracks were submerged yesterday.

STREAMS ARE SWOLLEN.

Floods Causing Heavy Damage in Northwestern Ohio.

CINCINNATI, O., May 2.—The rainy and cold weather which for three weeks has wholly stopped all plowing and planting in Ohio culminating in a disastrous flood. Here over two inches of rain has fallen within twenty-four hours and the Ohio river is leaping up at the rate of four inches an hour.

Dispatches from Wapakoneta say that the whole of the northwestern part of Ohio is flooded and wheat, corn, and other crops are so delayed that the yield must be small.

VERY BIG CROWD

Three Hundred Thousand People Present at the Opening Ceremonies of the World's Fair Yesterday.

Large Crowds Visited the Fair Today But Found the Grounds in a Very Muddy State.

All the Walks Being Asphalted and Everything Rapidly Being Put in the Best Shape.

The Duke de Veragua Called On Mayor Harrison and the Fair Officials to Return Thanks.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Bright sunshine and a clear sky made the big white World's fair buildings attractive to look upon this morning, and at the first opening of the gates there was a thin stream of visitors passing through which swelled to a steady current of humanity as the forenoon wore on. The early comers were considerably jostled and pushed around by the men who were removing the debris and other evidences of yesterday's opening, and inside the buildings gangs of laborers were at work unpacking belated exhibits and putting them in place.

The roads, too, were not the most attractive places in the world for the exercise of pedestrians. Between the sloping amphitheater and the grand basin, with the giant statues guarding its stony shore line, lay a placid sea of mud, trodden and stirred up by the feet of thousands of people who had gathered there yesterday.

To the east the graceful curves of the peristyle showed out distinctly against the clear sky overhanging Lake Michigan, and to the south the halls of agriculture and mechanic arts showed their cliffs of etabulation and smooth columns all the whiter for the res of liquid mud stretching away from them. Under foot a quagmire of all uncleanness; above, prismatic buds of fog, warmth and beauty, in this condition affairs it was not strange that the rolling chairs and electric launch were well patronized.

The mud problem is solved, however, Director Burnham, who turned up early this morning after the fatigue and excitement of yesterday, says that all the roads will be asphalted within a week. Then, instead of clinging mud, there will be a smooth even surface which will turn the water into the sewers and with whatever mud may accumulate, for the roads will be flushed every night by the exposition fire department and will be spick and span every morning.

Outside the grounds the cable cars unloaded thousands of passengers, many of whom were attracted by the side show which line the streets for blocks on every side of the entrances. The lemonade and popcorn men did a thriving business. The game museums were well patronized, and everything showed that the big show, with all its minor attractions and side issues, was a big success. It is estimated that there were 300,000 people on the ground yesterday, which is a great crowd considering the adverse condition of the weather.

The afternoon open air concert was well attended and this feature of the World's fair promises to receive much well merited commendation. All the buildings opened to the public yesterday were free of access today with two or three exceptions. The display in the Electricity building is yet in such shape that it cannot be inspected with any sense of justice to exhibitors or degree of pleasure to the visitors, and the building was closed. It is thought, however, that it will be in a condition to warrant opening in a few days. A big crowd entered Manufacturers, Machinery, Horticulture and other buildings, but finding some of the displays covered by the ubiquitous selves by admiring the outside of the structures, stately and general decorations until evening.

THE SPANISH DUKE.

The Ducal Party Called on Mayor Harrison and Others Today.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The members of the ducal party slept last night in the round of exciting incidents which were crowded into the hours of yesterday. It was nearly 9 o'clock when the first member of the party, who happened to be the Hon. Maria Del Pilar Colon Y. Aguilera, appeared in the breakfast room, and it was half an hour later before the other members of the family had assembled.

After breakfast, the duke and his brother, the Marquis de Barboles, put on high hats, frock coats and gray trousers and, accompanied by the ubiquitous Commander Dickinson, in dress naval uniform, entered a carriage and were driven to the city hall, where they paid their formal visit of respect to Mayor Harrison.

There was a howling mob of Democratic patriots in the mayor's ante room, but these gentlemen were not assembled to do honor to the Spanish visitors. On the contrary, they were clamoring for situations in the water and other departments of the city government when the mayor was apprised of the arrival of the ducal party.

The visit was short and there was no particular ceremony. The duke told the mayor how situated he was with the attention showed him by the people of Chicago, and the mayor told the duke not to mention it. Then there was a handshake all around, the Spaniards took their leave and the mayor turned his attention to the application of a red-headed patriot from Bridgeport, who wanted to be a bridge tender. After leaving the city hall, the duke was taken in hand

Home for Destitute Burned.

BULLINGTON, Vt., May 2.—The home for the destitute was burned last night. The home is two miles south of this city and has seventy-one children as inmates, all of whom were rescued. The building was a four-story brick with additions, supposed to be fire-proof. Loss, about $50,000.

SHOPPING IN BOATS.

To that Extreme are the People of Emerson Reduced by Flood.

WINNEPEG, May 2.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Emerson says that the river has risen eighteen inches since Saturday and is steadily rising. Four thousand pounds of binder twine were carried away from the Massy-Harris residence. There is not a store of any kind in town but is flooded with three feet of water and people are obliged to do their necessary shopping in boats.

Eighteen inches of water will reach the high water mark of '82. Another special to the Tribune says the ice is away over the bridge and there is the greatest danger of it being carried away.

ENTIRELY UNDER WATER.

The Flood at St. Vincent Much Higher Than Eleven Years Ago.

ST. VINCENT, Minn., May 2.—The village is entirely under water and several buildings have been totally wrecked by floating ice. The flood is much higher than it was in 1882 and is much more dangerous as the ice has only just begun moving, while in the flood of 1882 there was no high water until after the ice had all run out of the river. People in parts of the town are leaving their homes. Emerson, three miles distant, is also submerged and all the stores in the town have more or less water in them. The Red river is now running through the low lands east of St. Vincent and Emerson, leaving the two towns on an island.

IN BOATS AT PEMBINA.

The Streets Flooded and the River Still Rising.

PEMBINA, N. D., May 2.—The flood is spreading all over the streets of the town and the river is still rising. In South Pembina people generally have left their homes.

A few families still remain living upstairs in their homes. They go about in boats getting in and out of their houses through the windows. Two St. Paul traveling men came near being drowned Saturday while crossing over in a boat from St. Vincent.

THE FLOOD AT ST. PAUL.

West St. Paul and Bohemian Flats are Submerged.

ST. PAUL, May 2.—The Mississippi river at this point continues to rise and at noon today registered thirteen feet and nine-tenths above low water mark. This lacks only one-tenth of an inch of the danger line, which is fourteen feet.

Nearly all of the West St. Paul flat is now under water and what is known as the Bohemian flats are completely submerged. Families have all moved from their homes in both localities and they are now unable to reach their houses except by boat.

No damage has yet been done beyond that of soaking the first stories of hundreds of houses, from which goods have been removed. It is expected that the water will be fourteen feet above low water mark before 6 o'clock tonight.

THE KAISER RETURNING.

He Received a Very Cordial Welcome in Switzerland.

LUCERNE, May 2.—German emperor and empress had a cordial welcome today on their arrival at Lucerne, on their way back to Berlin from attending King Humbert's silver wedding. The town is enjoying a holiday and the streets are highly decorated in honor of the imperial visitors, while crowds from all parts of Switzerland have thronged to the scene.

The German emperor and empress were greeted by salves of artillery and the hearty cheers of the assembled multitude. The ministers of the republic welcomed the imperial travelers at the landing, and they parted on a journey at which the president of the confederation, Carl Schenk, made a speech. He said that he rejoiced at the excellent concord maintained between Germany and Switzerland. The latter country was deeply interested in all acts tending to preserve the peace of Europe which he was confident would continue while the German emperor remained the powerful guardian and defender of peace.

The German emperor, replying to the president of the Swiss confederation, thanked the Swiss nation for the cordial reception which they had given him, and expressed a hope that the excellent relations between Switzerland and Germany would continue. The imperial party then resumed their journey, proceeding to Basle.

The President Elected.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 2.—President Cleveland and party passed through Harrisburg this afternoon. The special train arrived at 2:00 and remained here about five minutes while engines were changed. Several hundred people had assembled at the station and cheered the president and Secretary Carlisle, when they appeared on the platform of the train. Speaker Thompson introduced all the members of the legislature who could get near the president and many shook his hand.

BULLINGTON, Vt., May 2.—The home for the destitute was burned last night. The home is two miles south of this city and has seventy-one children as inmates, all of whom were rescued. The building was a four-story brick with additions, supposed to be fire-proof. Loss, about $50,000.

PENNSYLVANIA'S BUILDING.

It Will Not be Dedicated Until July Next.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The Pennsylvanians did not dedicate their magnificent building today. That event will take place probably in July on a day set apart by joint action of the state board and exposition officials as Pennsylvania day. The general desire is to make it July 4, the same as Pennsylvania day at the Centennial.

Lieut. Gov. L. A. Watres, of Pennsylvania, is here and he joined the state and national commissioners today in a thorough inspection of the state's exhibit in the big buildings. The found the installation nearly completed. Liberty bell was half hidden by floral offerings from the original states today, and it was surrounded all the time by visitors to the state building.

A World's Fair Train.

ROME, N. Y., May 2.—The Central Hudson World's fair train arrived here this morning and stopped ten minutes. A very large crowd of people was at the station, among them John E. Dunnigan, Rome, who more than sixty years ago rode from Albany to Schenectady in one of the original coaches.

From the National Museum.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The six car loads of exhibits sent by the National museum to the Madrid exposition have just been returned and will be shipped to Chicago at once. The exhibit appears to have suffered by the return trip, but the damage done can be easily remedied.

English Good Will.

LONDON, May 2.—The English newspapers devote an unwonted amount of space to the opening of the World's fair at Chicago and their leading articles on the subject express hearty good-will toward the enterprise and hope for its success. The Daily News publishes a special dispatch three columns in length describing the opening of the fair.

THE BERING SEA TRIBUNAL.

Mr. Carter Will Complete His Lengthy Argument Today.

PARIS, May 2.—The Bering sea tribunal of arbitration resumed its sessions today. J. C. Carter, of counsel for the United States, maintained that the rights of the United States in Bering sea were absolute and unqualified. He argued over again that the United States was justified in protecting its rights in those waters in time of peace, as well as at any other time, and he claimed that the United States had a right to seize a vessel caught in pelagic sealing.

Assuming, argued Mr. Carter, that the rights of property of the United States were not absolute, he claimed that the government of the United States to follow the vessels found engaged in pelagic sealing home in order to claim redress for trespass against a municipal law. This, he continued, would not only be ineffectual, but would not comport with the dignity of the United States. No nation ever designed to resort to another nation for the enforcement of its municipal laws. The only method open for the proper enforcement of such law was the method of force, and that was justified in the case of the Bering sea on the same ground as in the cases of revenue and quarantine laws.

An animated discussion followed, in which Baron de Courcel, president of the tribunal, American Arbitrator Harland, British arbitrator, Lord Haumen, Sir Charles Russell and the Hon. E. J. Phelps took part. It was finally decided that counsel for Great Britain should argue the question of rights and the question of regulations separately, but that the tribunal would not give separate decisions. Mr. Carter then proceeded with his argument, which will be concluded today.

A TRAGEDY IN ENGLAND.

Murder of a Lady by Her Groom Who Then Suicided.

LONDON, May 2.—A frightful tragedy is reported from the town of Gresford, in Denbighshire. Mrs. Whittle, a resident of that place, had in her service a groom named Shellard. The groom had been enjoying a holiday and returned to the house of Mrs. Whittle yesterday. After his return he followed his mistress into her bed chamber.

A parlor maid named Taylor, also in the service of Mrs. Whittle, was down stairs at the time but does not appear to have noticed anything unusual until she heard a shot, evidently from a pistol from the chamber. The parlor maid ran to the room where her mistress was, and found her suffering from the effects of a pistol shot.

Just then Shellard rushed upon the parlor maid and at the same time threatened to kill her. For some reason Shellard did not kill her but concluded to kill himself. While she stood paralyzed with fear, Shellard turned away and kneeling down offered up a prayer. He then turned the revolver upon himself and fired.

The girl ran out to summon help. When she returned with assistance, it was found that Shellard had cut the throat of his dying mistress, mutilating her body. He had then laid down beside her and both were dead.

REVOLUTION IN CUBA

The Cuban Flag Floating Over a Fortress at Gibara and the Insurgents in Control.

Expeditions Are Being Fitted Up in Jamaica and San Domingo for the Southern Provinces.

The Cubans at Key West Believe That Every Province Will Join in the Revolt.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Times special from Key West, Fla., says: The schooner Little arrived here Monday from Gibara, Cuba, and reports the Cuban flag floating over the fortress. The revolutionists number 100 and are in possession of the city. The schooner arrived here from San Domingo April 29 with men and ammunition for the revolutionist army. Expeditions are being fitted up in Jamaica and San Domingo for the southern provinces.

Spanish papers endeavor to suppress the magnitude of the revolution. One Havana paper admits that 1500 men are in the revolutionary army in the province of Vuelta Abajo, and 2000 in the Santiago province. A council of war was called yesterday. Manifestos were issued promising a pardon to all who will lay down their arms within ten days. The Spanish troops are moving quietly to indicate that the Spanish government believes that strong measures will be necessary to suppress the uprising. The troops which left Havana for Puerto Principe received three months' pay in advance. Cubans here believe that every province will join in the revolt in a few weeks.

The federal officials here are using every precaution to prevent any expedition leaving here. The cutter McLane is the only government vessel here at present.

GIBARA ALMOST DESERTED.

The Cuban Flag Seen Floating Over a House There.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Herald's Key West, Fla., special says: The captain of the fruit steamer which arrived here today confirms the report of a revolution in Cuba. He says that on April 28 he found Gibara almost deserted. He expected to find with plantation trucks, but no men were available. He saw the Cuban flag floating over a house there and over a fort further north.

A German sailor on board who talked Spanish deserts and joined the band. As he left port a schooner arrived from the direction of San Domingo and landed a small force of men. About fifty refugees from Havana arrived Saturday. Many others will come here, some to avoid fighting and others to reach revolutionists without danger of arrest. Havana is closely guarded and gunboats were dispatched to the south coast to prevent aid from the outside. Unless friends without the city are able to get in, they had an excellent opportunity to get in men and ammunition and supplies while half the fleet of gunboats were absent. Farm laborers in the area are all deserting. The tobacco and sugar crops are deserted. Thousands are probably ready for adventure.

A Dock Wrecked.

ST. LOUIS, May 2.—The Mississippi dock warehouse at the south side of the Eads bridge at East St. Louis, was undermined and wrecked by the high water shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A workman named Cicero Pate was drowned and two others are missing. The damage to merchandise will reach $75,000.

May Day in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, May 2.—May day here was attended with no disorder. The laborers held a demonstration in honor of the day after their working hours. Numerous meetings were held in the provinces, but the burgomasters prohibited the holding of meetings in the districts of Liege and Charleroi.

America's Great Danger

AN ENGLISH COMMENTARY.

Said an eminent English scientist recently: "The danger that confronts the great American people to-day is not the possible adoption of a wrong financial policy for the nation, or the spread of socialism, or the increase of corruption among public men. All these are bad enough, to be sure, but they are as nothing compared to the terrible national disease—I had almost said national crime—of overwork. The mad rush for wealth is set at a killing pace, and thousands fall by the way every year."

You are likely to be one of the victims! How do we know? Because it is the exception to find a man or woman of adult age in perfect health. Nervous Disorders are spreading with fearful rapidity. Among the symptoms are—Backache, Blisters, Cold Hands and Feet, Dizziness, Hot Flashes, Fluttering Sensation, Fainting, Headache, Hysteria, Irritability of the Heart, Melancholy, Falling Memory, Palpitation, Rheumatism, Short Breath, Sleeplessness, Nervous Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, Fits, etc.

REV. C. A. CARROLL, pastor First Baptist Church, Yellow Springs, O., writes as follows: "I have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for the past six months. I find it acts like a charm on the whole nervous system. I have not found its equal in giving immediate relief. Dr. Miles' Little Nerve and Liver Pills only need a trial and they will recommend themselves to be the best pills in the market."

"For five years I have suffered from Nervous Prostration. I was unable to work. The first dose of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine gave me relief, and one thousand dollars would not cover the good it has done me."—JOHN MINCHELL, Youngstown, Ohio.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is unequalled in curing Nervous Diseases. It contains no opium or dangerous drugs. Sold on a positive list of ailments, all druggists, or Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

SHE SECURED A DIVORCE.

An Apostle of Delarte Freed From Her Matrimonial Bonds.

SIoux FALLS, S. D., May 2.—Mrs. Henrietta Russell, of New York, the famous apostle of Delarte, quietly secured a divorce in Sioux Falls and left Saturday night for Chicago. She had been gone twenty-four hours before anybody here or elsewhere, save her attorney and her immediate friends, knew that she was in Sioux Falls or contemplated a divorce action.

Mrs. Russell came to Sioux Falls, Jan. 18, only a short time before the six months' clause in the new divorce law went into effect. Exactly ninety days after arrival she began action, but no papers were filed. Her husband, Edmund Russell, also an apostle of Delarte, was perfectly willing and accepted personal service at San Francisco. He did not seriously resist the action. The complaint alleged desertion. Exactly ten days after the plaintiff's arrival, she secured her decree. She delivers an address on art before the woman's branch of the World's fair auxiliary soon.

Mrs. Russell successfully eluded detection here. When she arrived she was attired very richly, but she laid aside her stylish apparel and was afterwards clothed in the seclusion and plainness of garments. She was known here as Mrs. Moore. Those who noticed her at all supposed her to be either a servant girl or a poor seamstress. Last week she went to Pittsburgh and delivered a lecture on "Decorative Art." A few weeks ago she made a hurried trip to Kansas City, delivered a lecture there and returning to Sioux Falls resumed her role of a nobody.

Her marriage to Edmund Russell took place in New York, Oct. 7, 1884. The union resulted in one child, Segur Russell, who is now in school in London and who is given to the custody of the mother. She swears that her husband deserted her in London in September, 1889, without cause and without her consent, and has since refused to live with her. For several years before the two had not lived together as man and wife, but occupied the same house and no one suspected trouble. She swears that she did not come to South Dakota for the sole purpose of applying for a divorce, and that she expects to make Sioux Falls her permanent home.

"Mrs. Russell is a member of the 'Jo' in New York, though she is not wealthy. She is an intimate friend of the Astors, and was a close personal friend of the late Mrs. Whitney. Her divorced husband is now lecturing on art in California.

THE AUSTRALIAN PANICS.

Great Uneasiness Caused by the Failures of the Banks.

MELBOURNE, May 2.—The general uneasiness caused by the many failures of the Australian banks continues and the suspension of the National Bank of Australia has added greatly to the excitement in banking and commercial circles.

The colonial government has issued a proclamation ordering a five days' bank holiday with the project of allowing time for the banks still doing business to adopt measures of self protection. This step was taken after consultation with the managers and other officials of the leading banks.

Several banks that were not consulted as to the advisability of closing their doors for a short time have paid no attention to the proclamation and are doing business as usual. In nearly every case, where Australian banks have failed, the cause has been the withdrawal of deposits.

THE SUPREME COURT.

The Ann Arbor Test Case to be Argued Next October.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The supreme court of the United States has set down for a hearing on the second Monday of next term the Ann Arbor railroad case, an appeal from the decision of Judge Ricks involving the right of railroad employees to leave the service of the company at will. The same order was made in the case involving the constitutionality of the act providing for the appointment of a board of railroad commissioners in the state of Texas of which board ex-Senator Keegan is a member. The next term of the court begins in October. The supreme court, at the request of counsel, have postponed from the 8 to the 10 of May the hearing of the case to test the constitutionality of the Chinese exclusion act.

Extra Work on a Cruiser.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—President Mather of the Columbian works, has submitted to the department bills for extra work done on the cruiser Detroit which was not included in the contract requirements. They are in two amounts of $800 for various changes in fitting the cruiser out and $1037 for fitting her gun crissers. It was at first expected that this work would be done at the navy yards, but it could be accomplished just as well and as cheap in Baltimore, the department decided to have the cruiser made as nearly ready for commission there as was possible.

MYSTERY CLEARED UP

The Strange Death of Miss Rebecca Berghold in a Chicago Hotel is Partly Cleared Up.

William Alexander Cornell, a New York Lawyer, Admits He Lived With Her At the Hotel.

He Denies That He Was Responsible For Her Death and Believes She Committed Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Part of the mystery surrounding the death of Miss Rebecca Berghold in the Southern hotel at Chicago was cleared up last night by the confession of William Alexander Cornell, the man whom Capt. Berghold had indicted as the possible betrayer of his daughter. Cornell is a lawyer, living at 17 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street, is 35 years of age and has one child. He was seen by a reporter yesterday and denied that he had seen Miss Berghold in two years, or that he had been out of the city within a month.

Later, however, after seeing the statement of Capt. Berghold, he made what he claimed was a full and truthful statement of his relations with Miss Berghold. He admitted having gone to Chicago with her, and said it was he who registered at the Southern as "Mr. Alexander." He said that he met Miss Berghold twelve years ago. He had been attending the college of the city of New York with a son of Capt. Berghold and became acquainted through him with the family.

He became attached to Eliza, the youngest daughter and paid her so much attention that it became reported that they were engaged to be married. Then, however, he was paid attention to by Rebecca. This he says, caused Eliza to become his enemy and her sister's. Three years ago he ceased to visit Rebecca, and two years ago she called at his office and said she was not living happily at home. Her sisters were at work and they often taunted her with being dependent upon her father.

She said she wished to learn stenography and typewriting and asked him to find her a position. He secured several places for her, but she could not keep them. She was finally induced to be despondent and threatened to commit suicide. She said she was tired of home life. Afterward she wrote that although she occupied the same room and bath as her sister, they had not spoken for several months.

"April 12 she wrote him that she had left home and was stopping at a hotel. She said she had no money and asked him to call upon her. She had registered as Mrs. Alexander. She said she was determined to make her own living. He advised her to go to the hotel and look for him. Cornell, on April 14, came into my office in the Bennett building. We went out and had lunch together. Then we had a talk and she was in tears."

"I can't go home," she said, "and I can go away alone." The end of it was that I gave in and agreed to escort her to Chicago. I did have a little business there, but I had not intended to go so soon. I took her to Chicago and registered with her at the Southern hotel as man and wife. For two or three days she went around looking for a boarding place and I stayed a little longer than I intended to. I had no money. Then she began to beg me to remain with her. At first I declined, but then she got so firmly and finally I forgot my duty and stayed."

"We lived together until Thursday, April 27, without my having the courage to say that I must leave her. When I did so that made her despondent. She cried and I began to grow weak again. But when I thought of my sister and the child, I decided to stay. It was on the next day, the 28th—it made me firm in my resolve. I would return to my duty. I told her this. She grew more despondent, disappointed and despondent. This was on Friday. I packed up my few things in a satchel and left her that night."

"Before I left I went to the hotel office to pay our bill. 'If you will go,' she said, 'I wish you would tell them in the office that you are going away for a couple of days or longer, looking for a boarding place and I will find a little room for you.' I left her to find a room to sleep at. She was sitting in a rocking chair. There was a chair and a table. I went out. I took a cable car to Adams street and walked to Canal street. I must have got to the Pennsylvania depot about 11 o'clock. For I was asleep when the train pulled out at 11:30."

"I came right through, except that I changed cars at Pittsburg. I saved a little time by that. I can't understand what could have made her—'and here he paused and refused to finish the sentence until one of the reporters asked, 'tell her this?' when he replied, 'Yes, 'I did not see a paper until Sunday afternoon.' He went on, 'and the story was the last thing I saw.'"

He was asked about the truth of the statements that Capt. Berghold had assisted him. He replied that the captain had never assisted him a dollar's worth.

The Boisterous Dollars.

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainty of seasickness. The best cure of mal de mer is Hoot's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travelers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an immediate resort to stimulants, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this reason it is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of a brackish water, particularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hoot's Stomach Bitters, mixed with pure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

"April 12 she wrote him that she had left home and was stopping at a hotel. She said she had no money and asked him to call upon her. She had registered as Mrs. Alexander. She said she was determined to make her own living. He advised her to go to the hotel and look for him. Cornell, on April 14, came into my office in the Bennett building. We went out and had lunch together. Then we had a talk and she was in tears."

"I can't go home," she said, "and I can go away alone." The end of it was that I gave in and agreed to escort her to Chicago. I did have a little business there, but I had not intended to go so soon. I took her to Chicago and registered with her at the Southern hotel as man and wife. For two or three days she went around looking for a boarding place and I stayed a little longer than I intended to. I had no money. Then she began to beg me to remain with her. At first I declined, but then she got so firmly and finally I forgot my duty and stayed."

Why? Why is Strictly Pure White Lead the best paint? Because it will outlast all other paints, give a handsomer finish, better protection to the wood, and the first cost will be less.

If Barflies and other adulterators of white lead are "just as good" as Strictly Pure White Lead, why are all the adulterated white leads always branded Pure, or "Strictly Pure White Lead?" This Barflies is a heavy white powder (ground stone), having the appearance of white lead, worthless as a paint, costing only about a cent a pound, and is only used to cheapen the mixture.

What shoddy is to cloth, Barflies is to paint. Be careful to use only old and standard brands of white lead.

"Southern" "Red Seal" "Collier" "Shipman" are strictly pure, "Old Dutch" process brands, established by a lifetime of use. For colors use National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors with Strictly Pure White Lead.

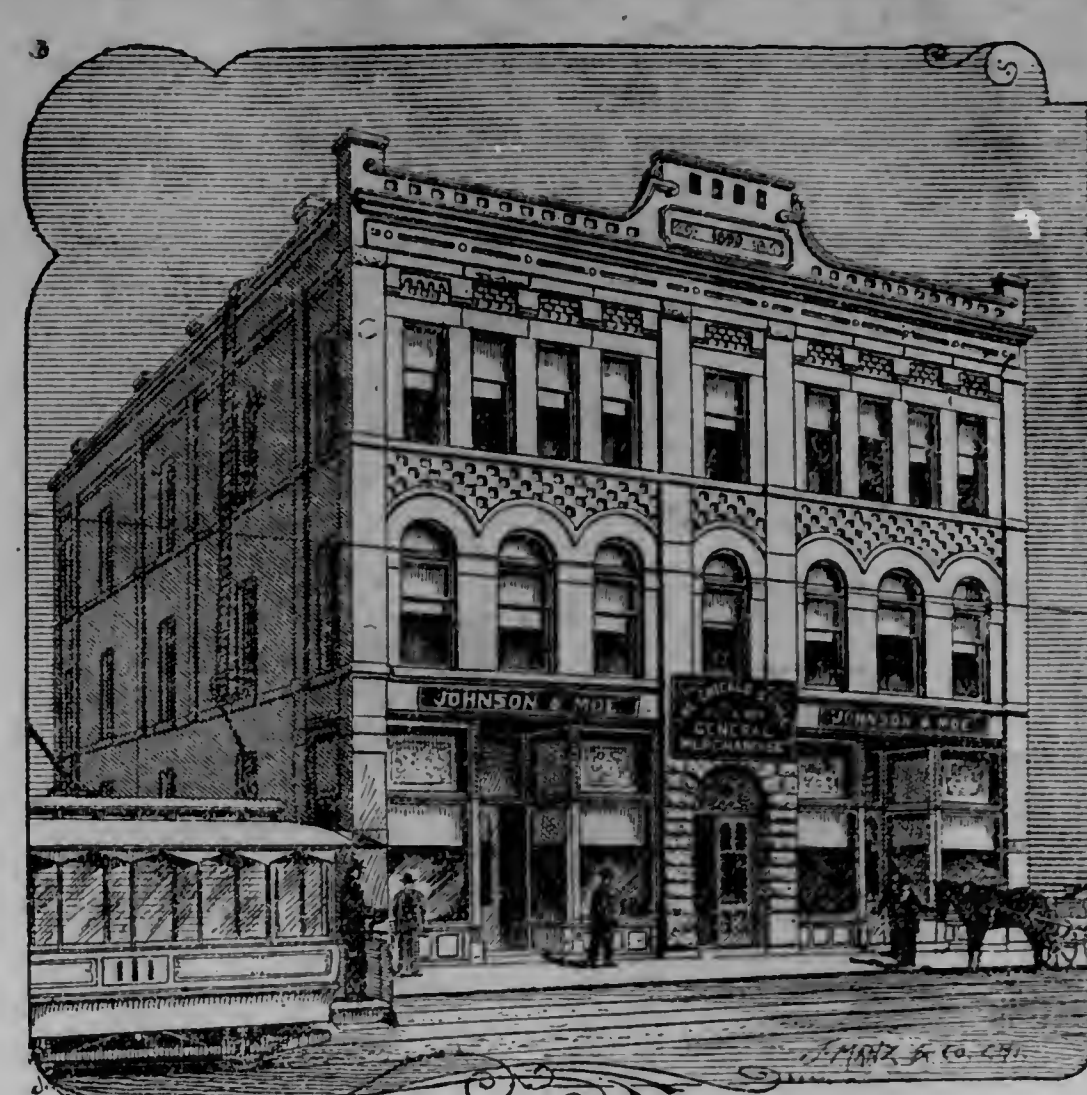

For sale by the most reliable dealers in paints everywhere. If you are going to paint, it will pay you to send us for a book containing information that may save you many a dollar. It will only cost you a postal card to do so.

EXPLAINED THE PLAN

Henry C. Spalding Told the West Duluth Council What the Minnesota Canal Company Will Do.

Village Engineer Krey Resigned and A. S. Cooper Was Elected to Fill His Place.

The Investigating Committee Asked For Further Time in Which to Submit a Report.

H. C. Spalding, chief engineer of the Minnesota Canal company, addressed the council last evening on the plans and feasibility of the new project. He said that a thorough investigation of several years had convinced him that the scheme of constructing a great canal system which should connect the interior of St. Louis county with the city of Duluth and furnish cheap power to the manufacturing establishments along the harbor was entirely practical. The purpose of his company was to divert a small portion of the volume of the St. Louis river from its natural channel and to transport the water in an almost level grade to the heights back of the city, from whence it might be distributed in great steel pipes to the various industries. The fall would give a head of 60 feet and furnish power at about one-half the cost of steam. The system was explained in detail and a clear idea given of the advantages accruing to the industrial element by the carrying out of the proposed designs.

A communication from W. F. Shipley offering to sell his typewriter, cabinet and chair to the village for $125 was referred to committee on supplies. Petition of John Canlis for transfer of his liquor license from the Phillips hotel to his building on Central avenue was granted. The request of citizens for use of the city hall for a series of lectures was laid on the table. Two bids to furnish a hook and ladder truck were opened. One was for $1000 and the other $1600. They were referred to the committee on supplies. Twenty-five bids were received for scavenger work and, unopened, were referred to the board of health. The petition of M. Daniels for position as village detective was laid on the table.

A petition for an electric light on Third avenue west between First and Second streets south was referred to the committee on light and water. A petition for a temporary sidewalk on Second street north was referred to the street committee. The recommendation of the village attorney that settlement be made with Mr. Merritt for retaining walls in the sum of $500 was accepted. The approximate cost of a sub-grade crossing on Second street south with accompanying diagram was submitted by the engineer. The cost was estimated at $13,764. The matter was referred to the village attorney to ascertain what portion of the expense would be assumed by the railroad company. Plans and specifications for the improvement of Ninth street, Hazelwood addition, with an approximate cost of $13,287 were submitted and referred to the street committee. The investigating committee appointed to look up street contracts was at its own request given an extension of time. The committee to which was referred the matter of temporary sidewalk in Dodge's addition reported in its favor and the street commissioner was instructed to build the walk. The petition of Theodore King and others for the extension of First avenue east and also F. G. Johnson for $100 for damages by water by recommendation of committees were not granted. Petition of J. J. Mallory for retaining wall, referred to the city engineer for settlement.

The electric light company agreed to furnish light for the city hall free on condition that the cost does not exceed $100 per month. The resignation of John Krey as village engineer was tendered and accepted. The council then proceeded to the election of a new engineer. Applications with recommendations were received from Messrs. Crickshank, Cooper, Hessay and Edwards. A ballot was then taken and A. S. Cooper, ex-city engineer of West Superior, was duly elected. The regular monthly list of bills as audited by the finance committee was allowed.

MR. WEEKS' ASSIGNMENT.

He Was Embarrassed by Carrying Too Much Stock.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The announcement of the assignment yesterday of F. H. Weeks, of the Land & River Improvement company, of West Superior, was a surprise to his friends and business associates. The assignment was made to Richard C. Welling, who said today that it was only a case of a man who had been embarrassed by too much stock.

Mr. Weeks had found that he was unable to carry all the stock he had and had simply announced to the directors of the company that such was the case and had resigned his position, so that the company would not be embarrassed in any way through his personal failure.

SNOWFLAKE BAKING POWDER

PUREST, STRONGEST, GOES FARTHEST.

A Domestic Episode.

"I called," said the lady patient, looking round with a mysterious manner, "to consult you, doctor, about my foot."

"Yes," said the doctor, stifling a yawn and looking at his watch. "Have you injured it in any way?"

"Oh, no; but it pains constantly, and I can hardly get my shoe on."

"Too small," suggested the doctor, glancing casually in the direction of his patient's feet, which were invisible.

"No, doctor; my shoes are twice too large for me."

"Perhaps that is the trouble?" suggested the doctor, looking as if he was trying to believe it.

"It is only one foot that is affected."

"Perhaps you would better see a chiropodist," said the doctor.

"Oh, no, indeed. It's much more serious than that. I can't imagine what it is, but it is really very painful."

"And you say you have not injured it, madame?"

"Never. You see I've not been in a railroad accident or a runaway, or been run over by an electric car, or anything. I did drop a sashpin on it one day when I was ironing, but it couldn't have been that—could it?"

"Well, I never," said the doctor, as he wrote out a prescription in Latin for mustard liniment. "Of all and things in life a sashpin is the simplest, and the most fatal."—Detroit Free Press.

Wanted to Get Well.
It is often said that physicians are well used to ingratitude, but perhaps they could bear the unpleasant draft with composure if it were always as amusingly presented as in the following case:

Dr. J. M. Warren had been in the habit for a number of years of giving professional advice to a lady in reduced circumstances, whom he regarded as hardly able to offer him any compensation.

At length she ceased consulting him, and he did not see her for a long time. Finally, happening to meet her in the street, he said to her:

"Why, Mrs. —, what has become of you? You haven't been near me for months?"

"Well, the fact is, Dr. Warren," she said, in all simplicity, "I didn't seem to gain very much, and I thought I'd consult a pay doctor!"—Youth's Companion.

Deafness.
Outfielder Jesse Burkett. One of the greatest hitters and run-getters of last season was Jesse C. Burkett of the Cleveland club, who is now playing his second season with that well known baseball organization. Burkett is a native of West Virginia, and was born in Wheeling 25 years ago. His first professional engagement was with the Scranton (Pa.) club as pitcher in 1888. The following year he materially assisted the Worcester (Mass.) club in winning the pennant of the Atlantic association, and his able work in the box led the Indianapolis club to purchase his release. As a result of later negotiations between the Indianapolis and New York clubs, Burkett and his fellow players were released to New York.

After pitching 14 games for the Giants, Burkett abandoned the box and was one of the stars of the club's outfield in 90 championship games that season and one of its heaviest hitters. From New York Burkett went to the Lincoln club of the Western league, and in August, 1891, he joined the Cleveland club. As pitcher, batter, left fielder and base runner Burkett ranks very high on the diamond.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.
Entered at the postoffice at Duluth, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

The Weather.
U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., May 2.—The storm that was central over Illinois and Indiana yesterday morning has moved to the country north of Lake Huron, not having increased in energy to any extent.
Generally cloudy weather prevails in all sections with rain along the upper lakes and over Minnesota. The only heavy rainfalls during the past twenty-four hours was 1.32 inch at Cloquet, and 1.04 at Cleveland.

The temperature has been slightly except over South Dakota where it has fallen slightly, standing this morning at below freezing.
There is no decided area of high or low barometer in sight, the highest is over Nebraska, and an area of low, which may affect this section by tomorrow, is over Northwestern Montana.

The rain and snow mixed which fell here yesterday measured .22 inch. The highest temperature was 41, the lowest last night, 38.

DULUTH, May 2.—Fair preceded by light drizzling rain, slight change in temperature, northeast to northwest wind.

H. H. BRONSON,
Local Forecaster Official.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin and Minnesota, generally fair, slightly warmer except stationary temperature in Western Wisconsin; variable winds.

An Exhibition of Know-nothingism.
Bigotry, intolerance and fanaticism were exhibited in a very pronounced degree by the majority of the aldermen at last night's meeting of the common council.

The people of Duluth have good reason to hang their heads in shame to-day, as they reflect upon the narrow-minded and illiberal action of those who are supposed to represent them in the government of the city. That a majority of the council should have voted against the confirmation of Bishop McGlockick as a member of the library board for another term, for the sole reason that he belongs to the Roman Catholic church, almost passes comprehension.

The intelligence can hardly conceive of the mental calibre of the men whose views are so perverted by intolerance and whose ideas are so "cramped, cabined and confined" that they would refuse to appoint one so well qualified in every respect for the office to which he was named, solely because of his religious beliefs.

The Herald mistakes greatly the temper of the people of Duluth if they do not resent the infamous manner in which they have been thus misrepresented. Such an exhibition of know-nothingism in the latter part of the nineteenth century is surprising, and it is shameful indeed that Duluth should be thus placed in a false light before the whole world.

The mind is carried back to the days when religion made war upon religion, and men were tortured and burned at the stake because they refused to deny the faith that was in them, to find a parallel for the intolerance and bigotry which are centered in the common council of the city of Duluth. If there were any good reasons which could be offered for the rejection of Bishop McGlockick's appointment, there would be some excuse for the action of these aldermen. But they are debarred at the outset from setting up any other reason for their action than that of religion.

There is probably no other man in the city who is as well adapted for this position as Bishop McGlockick. His services in past years upon the board have been recognized by his conferees as of inestimable value to the public library, and both by natural inclination and educational training, coupled with his experience upon the board, is he qualified to do good work for the public in this position. It lies not therefore in the mouths of the aldermen to say that they rejected his appointment because of disqualification. But one feeling actuated them—the spirit of know-nothingism, the hatred conceived in intolerance and developed in bigotry of everything Catholic and everyone connected with that church.

There is no one more opposed than is The Herald to the mixing of politics with religion—to anything which savors of a union of church and state—and therefore it holds in abhorrence the man or men who would oppose the elevation of anyone to any public position because of the religious views which he entertains. The constitution of the state of Minnesota says that "the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience shall never be infringed," and "no religious control or interference with the rights of conscience be permitted," and again it says, "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification for any office of public trust under the state."

Never in the history of Minnesota, until now, has any man been opposed for public office on the ground of his religious views. It has remained for the common council of the city of Duluth to apply the religious test and trample the constitutions of the state and of the nation beneath their feet. Such an outrageous abuse of power cannot be tolerated by a free people. These intolerant know-nothings may have imagined that their action would not be questioned, but they have over-reached themselves, and the day of reckoning will come when an indignant populace will call them to strict account for inflicting upon Duluth such shame and such disgrace.

The Official Paper.
The common council has awarded the contract for the city printing to a publication that is not a legal newspaper within the meaning of the state law. If the aldermen did not know that it is not a legal publication, that under the general law passed by the last legislature it is not qualified to publish the city's legal notices, then they failed in their duty to obtain legal advice upon that question, to which their attention was specially directed by other bidders.

The city attorney is supposed to be the legal adviser of the council. There is no evidence that the council requested his opinion upon the important question raised, which would involve the validity of assessments for public works passed upon proceedings and notices published in the official paper of the city. If the council did request such an opinion, the city attorney has never stated his legal reputation upon the assertion that this publication is a legal paper. There is not a reputable lawyer in Duluth who will say that it is, and there is not a lawyer who would dare to publish his own legal notices in it. Not one of these aldermen, who are so ready to risk thousands of dollars of the city's money, would publish a legal notice of his own in such a publication. The council should hasten to rescind its hasty action before the city sustains the heavy loss that must assuredly ensue if the present plan be carried out.

Cowed by the Boss.
So Congress Hall has weakened in his fight upon Mike Doran over the federal patronage in Minnesota. Well, that is not astonishing. It is in line with The Herald's prediction less than a week ago. Mr. Hall never had much nerve—save when he voted against the appropriation for deepening the waterway between Duluth and Buffalo, and then came home and tried to justify an act that was opposed to the interests of every wheat raiser in the Northwest.

Mr. Hall has always been very long on talk, but it has generally ended like other bluffs—in a complete back-down. He wanted to go as minister to Sweden and Norway, but when he found Boss Doran did not like the idea he hastily swallowed his ambition and withdrew from the race. Then he talked loud and long in favor of his former colleague, Capt. Harries, for collector of internal revenue. Mr. Doran wanted the office for his son-in-law, and Mr. Hall again bowed before the mighty boss.

Within the last week the Third district congressman became more nervy, and it really seemed that, owing to constant association with Maj. Baldwin, he had screwed his courage to the sticking point and proposed to fight the St. Paul boss. For several days he talked quite bravely, then he grew dumb, and now he says he has no feeling against the old boss. Evidently what Mr. Hall needs is a backbone.

Fads in Public Schools.
For months past several Chicago papers have been making a vigorous warfare upon the "fads in the public schools" in that city, and their fight has proven quite successful. The recent special investigation by Dr. Rice, the results of which were published in the Popular Science Monthly, showed that the ordinary courses, for which public schools should be maintained, have been of lower grade in Chicago than in most of the other leading cities in the Union, and as a result of the public clamor for reform, the school board finally appointed a committee to prepare a plan for improving the instruction given in the primary grades. That committee has made the following recommendations:

That the present form of instruction in sewing be abolished.
That clay modeling be restricted to the kindergarten classes.
That paper cutting, paper folding, paper pasting and color work be abolished.
That drawing in the lower grades shall be confined to such instruction as may be imparted by the regular grade teachers.

That technical instruction in music be discontinued in all grades except the highest two.

That the study of music in the primary grades shall be restricted to the singing of simple songs under the direction of the regular teacher.

That physical culture be restricted to simple exercises under the direction of the class teachers.
That special teachers be retained only to instruct regular teachers, and that special instructors shall not teach the children directly except in the higher grades.

The indications are that these recommendations will be carried out by the board and the excrescences which have fastened themselves upon Chicago's school system will be largely removed. The result will be a great improvement in the real school system and the saving of many thousands of dollars annually. The Sioux City Tribune very truly points out this contest in Chicago as an object lesson for other school boards. They must constantly war against innovations. They are expected to add the right things, but they must reject the wrong things. The public schools are neither to be colleges, nurseries nor art schools—just common schools.

Delay is Dangerous.
The common council has done nothing yet to provide a municipal garbage system for Duluth. This is a matter that cannot be much longer delayed. The season is at hand when the city must be given a thorough cleaning. The board of health has promised to attend to this work and has been authorized to incur any expense necessary to perform it.

But this is not enough. The city must be kept clean and in a good sanitary condition. There can be no lasting improvement in the city's sanitary condition until a system is established for the collection and disposing of garbage. This is a work that must be done by the municipality, and the proper method to divide the city into districts and award contracts for the removal of garbage from those districts under the direction of the board of health. This must be done without delay.

The New York Sun decides off-hand that Swinburn is the best living poet in the English tongue, and declares that we have no living American poet who can even shake a stick at him. We are afraid that the Sun's exchange list does not include the esteemed News Tribune, or it would not thus overlook the brilliant effusions of the water meter poet.

The New York Sun calls the English language "muscular, bony, hairy, splay-footed, coarse-grained, big-mouthed heavy, and has some words with brains in them." Any one who read the Sun's editorial on Hon. Peter Dismuke and other distinguished Georgians will agree with this statement.

There have been but two changes in the war department since Col. Lamont took charge. Perhaps Dan has his eye on the presidency and is courting the aid of the civil service reformers to further his ambition.

Hoke Smith says that public offices should be created and conducted exclusively for the benefit of those who do not fill them. This is correct, but how seldom are they thus created and conducted!

The Herald's account of the opening of the World's fair yesterday was full and complete and was not surpassed by that published by any newspaper in the Northwest.

A great German geographer says that 1,700,000 square miles of the earth's surface still remains uninhabited. The "S. R. O." sign is therefore not required at present.

SURVEY WORK ON THE LAKES.

Quite a Force to Be Put in the Field This Summer.

Through appropriations secured recently for the construction of lake charts, and for the distribution of information relative to improvements in the harbors, channels and navigable tributaries of the lakes, the army engineer corps will do considerable survey work during the coming summer. From the office of Gen. F. B. Dyer, the Marine Review has received a bulletin which contains information supplemental to that given upon the charts. This additional information in pamphlet form will be issued in future with the charts from the office of Gen. Dyer, and can also be had from any of the members of the engineer corps in lake cities.

Lieut. Charles S. Riche, who is connected with the Detroit office and has been conducting a part of this scientific work, says in a letter of recent date from St. Louis, Mo.: "Considerable survey work is contemplated on St. Mary's river during the coming season. We shall attempt to connect the primary triangulation of Lake Superior with that of the straits of Mackinac, and while it is not likely that the entire connection can be made, we expect to do a great part of it. We are now engaged in astronomical observations to determine latitude and longitude of a point in St. Louis, Mo. and are just beginning to start out some of the field parties for the summer work. We will make an effort to get enough field work done for at least one new chart if it is possible. So far little else than preliminary work has been done. After July 1, however, when the new appropriation becomes available we will probably have quite a force in the field. The work contemplated is with a view to getting out new charts for the distance from Whitefish point to Detroit, where, it seems to me, new charts are a great necessity."

THE OPENING SESSION

Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the Minnesota Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. Begun This Morning.

Mayor d'Autremont and C. A. Towne Spoke and Responses Were Made By Grand Officers.

About Two Hundred and Fifty Delegates Present—Grand Officers to Be Elected Tomorrow.

The seventeenth annual session of the Minnesota Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., opened this morning at the Odd Fellows hall on Lake avenue north. There are about 250 delegates present from all parts of the state and among them are many men prominent in politics and business and well known throughout the entire commonwealth. Large numbers arrived last evening and this morning and others are coming in today.

About to close the session was formerly opened, Grand Master Workman Eli Southworth, of Shakopee, presiding. Capt. T. H. Fessenden, as chairman of the reception committee, introduced Mayor d'Autremont, who welcomed the delegates in his usual happy and hearty manner. He compared the beautiful city of Duluth with the beautiful organization of the A. O. U. W., only about twenty-five years old and said that both are growing mightily and will continue to do so.

Charles A. Towne spoke also, and devoted some little time to expatiating on Duluth weather and kept his hearers in a state of laughter. He also dwelt on the letters A, O, U and W, and on the particular significance of each and meaning of the words, "Ancient," "Order," "United" and "Workmen." In speaking of the latter word, he spoke of a class of men who call themselves alone workmen and classed it as arrogance, saying that we are all workmen. Responses were made by Grand Master Workman Eli Southworth, of Shakopee; Grand Foreman Judge Porter, of Mankato; Grand Receiver J. McCarthy, of St. Paul; Past Grand Master C. M. Laing, of Winnetka; W. H. Adams, of Minneapolis, and others. Immediately following the lodge went into executive session. Committees were appointed and new members received during the morning. The special order of business for this afternoon was the consideration of the revision of the constitution. The grand officers will be elected tomorrow.

Tonight Duluth lodge, No. 10, will have its regular meeting at the I. O. O. F. hall and the presence of all members of the order in Duluth is desired. The grand officers will be present.

THE MAYOR TALKS.

Says the Refusal of the Council to Confirm Bishop McGolrick Is Outrageous.

As reported in the proceedings of last evening's council meeting, Bishop McGolrick, who was nominated by Mayor d'Autremont to a position on the library board, was not confirmed by that body. Public opinion is greatly aroused over the matter and many comments are to be heard but it is a subject upon which very few people like to talk when a reporter is around. The mayor said this morning:

"It is simply outrageous that the bishop, the most learned man in the city, should be treated in this manner. His work as a member of the library board has been spoken of to me in the very highest terms of praise, and that he has only sought that books including good morals were purchased for the library. With two-fifths of the population of Duluth Catholic, it is only fair and just that they should be represented on the board. Especially is it to be regretted, for the reason that public opinion already attributes not only his rejection but that of other good men to the fact that they are Catholics. This action, so understood, will be a great damage to our city, and the idea will go for the city that instead of being a wide awake, liberal, American town, that here the pages of history have been turned back 300 years."

"In all my appointments sent in to the council, I have been governed by one motive, viz: To try to select the best man qualified for the position, who would serve regardless of his politics or religion. And, although a Democrat, I have either sent in or allowed to hold over onto the present time as many Republicans as Democrats. I have been governed by the sole motive of trying to do the very best I could to promote good government and by that the interest of Duluth."

George Spencer, president of the library board, says:

"I think the action of the council in refusing to confirm Bishop McGolrick's appointment was a mistake. The bishop has been a valuable member of our board and has had more to say than anyone else about the great importance of providing books for young people that inculcated the highest standard of morals. I think I am correct in saying that he has never proposed the name of a Catholic book. Such books as are in the library on topics relating to Catholicism have been proposed by others. In a great majority of cases he has never seen the list prepared by the board committee, of which he is a member, because he is necessarily away a great deal and very busy when he is at home. Nothing but a regard for the common good has actuated him in all his connection with our board. I proposed his name to Mayor Davis and I suggested to our present mayor that he could do no more lifting act than to appoint him. The Catholics are taxpayers and entitled to consideration in the distribution of public offices, and they have no man better fitted by scholarly ability to represent them on the library board than Bishop McGolrick. I hope the council will reconsider their act and confirm him."

WHEAT HIGHER TODAY.

A Temperary Break Caused a Surprising Visible Supply Report.

The wheat market opened firm today and ruled higher during the greater part of the session. The opening was unchanged from last night with buyers, but holders demanded higher prices and the first sales were made at 5c higher for July, 1c higher for May and 1c higher for cash. There was very little business in spot stuff, although it was in demand by the mill. One lot of 10,000 bus. of No. 1 northern arrived at 8c, which was 1c higher than yesterday. Nearly all the trading was in July. May sold at 74c and 75c, and the next sales showed an advance to 76c. It was then a little unsettled and sagged off to 75c, where it ruled steadily for several hours. Then came the astonishing announcement, posted about noon, that there was an increase in the value of wheat. As a big decrease, probably 2,000,000 bus. had been exported, the report caused a weak feeling and July declined to 74c. The market soon recovered, however, with a firm feeling and got back to the highest figures of the day. The close was 1c higher than yesterday, as follows:

No. 1 hard, cash, 80c; May, 69c; July, 73c; No. 1 northern, cash, 68c; May, 63c; July, 70c; No. 2 northern, cash, 62c; No. 3, 5c; No. 4, 4c; No. 5, 3c; No. 6, 2c; No. 7, 1c; No. 8, 1c; No. 9, 1c; No. 10, 1c; Sixth District Congressman Praised By Interior Department Officials For His Energy and Tact.

Reason of Facts Which He Produced the Pine Land Ring's Thievery Was Stopped.

President Cleveland Confident of a Majority to Repeal the Sherman Law in Next Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—[Special to the Herald.]—The officials of the interior department are giving Representative Baldwin a great deal of credit for his energy and tact he displayed in bringing to their attention the methods pursued by the pine land ring in Minnesota and other Northwestern states, to secure control of valuable pine land and the timber thereon, without giving a fair return, either to the government or to the Indians, when it was known from reservations set aside by the government for the red men.

When the real facts in this entire matter came out, if they ever do, the people of Minnesota will have great reason to thank Major Baldwin for the attention that he has given this matter for the last two or three months. Had not an of his energy been back of this matter the results attained would probably not have been possible and the timber thieving might still be going on. While no sweeping expose of the men engaged in these timber deceptions is not and may never be made, the opportunities for thieving have certainly been greatly curtailed, if not entirely stopped.

Representative Baldwin has been able to accomplish what he has in this matter by having remained in Washington and attending to the business for which the representatives of the lower house draw salaries the year round. Other congressmen at any rate, will draw their salaries as representatives and pay no attention whatever to their duties until congress is actually in session. Representatives fall and Baldwin have not pursued that course, and for this reason deserve more than ordinary credit from their constituents.

There has yet been no settlement of the patronage difficulty between the Minnesota Democratic leaders. It goes without saying that Michael Doran will not give up any of his power until he is compelled to do so, and whether the opposition is strong enough to depose the old boss from his present position is a question that only the future can decide. No matter what the result may be, the Democratic party of Minnesota has been injured by the president's permission to Doran to dictate what appointments have been made in Minnesota up to the present time. Had a portion of this patronage been turned over to Representatives Baldwin and Hall, there would have been greater satisfaction in their districts and throughout the entire state. As the matter now stands, there will be trouble just as long as Doran has any influence with the administration.

From what The Herald correspondent can learn, there are indications that Land Commissioner Lamoreaux is rather inclined to sympathize with Assistant Commissioner Flowers in the matter of setting aside valuable timber sections in Minnesota for forest reservations. One indication of this is the fact that from Oregon there are requests that large tracts of timber on either side of the Cascade mountains be withdrawn from the public domain so that the timber will be allowed to remain intact as a forest reserve.

Land Commissioner Lamoreaux is giving this matter considerable attention at this time but whether he will decide to recommend to the president that a proclamation be issued in line with the requests of the Oregon people is not yet known. So far as the Sixth Minnesota district is concerned it is not likely that any plans of the National Forestry association will be carried out through Assistant Flowers or his chief, Mr. Lamoreaux because Maj. Baldwin is on guard and will carefully watch any developments in this direction.

As it has been pointed out very frequently in The Herald's Washington dispatches, President Cleveland is determined to repeal the existing Sherman silver purchase act. The announcement that Secretary Carlisle made to the New York bankers last week simply verifies the statement made in dispatches to this paper in reference to the determination of the chief executive. The impression in the east is that President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, and other friends of the administration, have done a great deal of missionary work since the adjournment of the last congress and that they are now of the opinion that they have a majority, or can secure a majority, to repeal the Sherman law when the next congress assembles and the matter is taken up.

President Cleveland does not believe that he has made any reckless canvass, so it is understood, but men who opposed the repeal of the Sherman law at the last session of congress and who are still against its repeal, do not hesitate to say that they still hold to the opinion that Mr. Cleveland will fail to repeal the Sherman act unless he enters into a compromise with the men who favor free coinage, so that the white metal will have more of a show than it does under the present law.

Without this compromise the silver men in Washington declare that the Sherman law cannot be repealed at the next session. There are many who are of the opinion that with such generals in the senate as Wolcott, Teller, Jones and Stewart, and with Bland, Pierce and others in the lower house, though there would be an extremely bitter and long drawn out contest, no repeal of the Sherman bill could be put through during the fifty-third congress, unless a compromise between the silver men and those advocating the repeal of the Sherman law was effected.

It is not known, of course, upon just what lines a compromise might be made, but there is no reason to doubt that the silver leaders would get something better in the interests of the white metal than they have now, or there could be no compromise and the Sherman law, therefore, could not be repealed by the president's dictation. There are some, however, who are of the opinion that Mr. Cleveland is willing to do justice to some extent to the silver interests, and should it be found that he holds such views, some kind of a law which would be of greater benefit to the country at large might be passed in lieu of the Sherman law.

It is not yet known whether this financial matter will come up at the extra session of congress in November but the chances are that it will. Mr. Cleveland is allowing the report to go out that his purpose in calling the extra session of congress in the fall is to allow the Democrats in congress to go to work on a new tariff bill. Those who read his announcement between the lines, however, and who knew the existing danger from the present condition of the treasury, believe that the president first means to have congress take up the proposed Sherman law repeal.

RESTAURANTS INADEQUATE.
The Hungry Multitude at the World's Fair Could Not Be Fed.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The utter inadequacy of the restaurants and eating houses at the fair was made apparent yesterday. Preparations had been made to satisfy the wants of an immense throng, but the multitudes which visited the eating houses, from 11 o'clock until far into the afternoon, exceeded all expectations and at every restaurant the doors had to be closed for hours at a time.

The combined efforts of four guards were necessary at each door to keep the clamorous crowd, which after waiting an hour or more took its departure, the vacated places being instantly taken by newcomers. Inside the restaurants the crowd was four deep in the aisles and around each table. As fast as those at the tables finished their places were seized by the hungry populace.

The provender prepared could not long withstand the onslaughts of this crowd and finally toward evening was entirely cleared out and the restaurants were forced to shut down.

A MURDERER SURRENDERED.

An Indian Assassin Given Up by Navajos.

DURANGO, Colo., May 2.—The Navajos have surrendered to Agent Plummer the Indian who murdered Trader Welch. The murderer confessed that he killed Welch. He said: "Welch had been my enemy for a long time. We were always quarreling. I was not drunk at the time of the killing. He picked up a shovel. He was going to hit me when I shot him. I know nothing about robbing the store."

Little faith is placed in the self-defense story and it is believed he will say more about the killing. A wild rumor was afloat here to the effect that there had been an outbreak in which six white men had been killed in the Montezuma valley south of Dolores. What gave it credence was the fact that the sheriff of Montezuma county had applied to the governor for arms in anticipation of the outbreak.

Dolores would be in a bad position, in the case of an outbreak of the Navajos. It is near the head of Montezuma valley which extends south through the Little Colorado river to the Navajos' lands. Col. Previtt, of the governor's staff, received the following message from Denver: "Ship by rail to Dolores for Sheriff Lewy 100 guns and 2000 rounds of ammunition. Gen. Tarsney will be there tomorrow night to direct further movements. Keep this office fully advised as to the situation."

The Souvenir Bell.
WASHINGTON, May 2.—Delays in collecting material has caused the postponement of the ceremony of casting the souvenir bell to be made of historical metal collected by the daughters of the American revolution for the purpose of commemorating the opening of the Columbian exposition. The ceremony was set for today and Mrs. Cleveland was to have touched a button at the White House connected with the automatic arrangement which would have turned the molten metal into the mould. It is expected that the delay will be for a few days only.

In a Receiver's Hands.
TOLEDO, O., May 2.—The Central Ohio Insurance company went into the hands of a receiver, Edward Chittenden, yesterday. The liabilities are $300,000 in excess of the assets. A Chicago firm foreclosed a chattel mortgage on the company for $15,000 and two large judgments were allowed to Toledo parties by the common pleas court. Manager Smith left for Chicago yesterday, and a vague idea of the company's condition can be learned.

ELECTRICITY.

The Exhibit Incomplete, but Giving Promise of Great Things.

CHICAGO, May 2.—It is impossible to deny that the work in the Electricity building is still a long way from completion, and the building as compared to most of the others presents a barren and empty aspect. The local board of directors transferred to Machinery hall the power plant, which occupies 100,000 square feet of space and much electric street railway material was assigned to the Transportation building, and the space designed for it in Electricity was not again utilized. Numerous consolidations of great electrical manufacturing companies during the last few months have necessarily combined exhibits also, with the result that much space remains unoccupied. The work of setting up dynamos and other intricate machinery is slow, and it will be some time before this department will be at its best.

In the center of the building, which is 345 by 650 feet, stands the Edison tower. This is a giant column, painted white and thickly studded with incandescent lights. It is 100 feet high. The effect is splendid, but is fully appreciated only at night. The General Electric company of New York has erected its exhibit around the Edison column to a depth of 100 feet. The Bell Telephone company has a handsome house just inside the south main door, the Westinghouse and other prominent companies being ranged along the main aisle.

The government exhibits of foreign countries are ranged in the north hall of the building with frontages on the main aisle, the smaller nations being relegated to the gallery. These exhibits, however, are in a demoralized state, not one being in perfect running order. Germany has probably the most room and occupies a prominent position in the north-east corner. England has a large allotment of space directly opposite and the exhibit is in an advanced stage of preparation. France lies in a long, narrow plot between these two countries, while Russia and Canada have smaller displays at the extreme west side of the building. New South Wales, Italy, Monaco, Spain and Austria have space in the gallery. All their displays are yet in embryo, but they promise well. It is impossible to confine the electrical exhibit to any one building, as the displays which will be given nightly from the Administration dome, the powerful search light on the tower out in Lake Michigan, and other attractive features demonstrate. The lighting of the entire park, its buildings and streets adjacent, gives perhaps the most practical lesson in the use of electricity, alter all.

To Be Reviewed.
WASHINGTON, May 2.—Acting Secretary Hamlin has instructed the collector of customs at Boston, Mass., to ask for a review of the decision of the board of appraisers in the case of C. F. Hovey & Co., as to the dutiable rates on ladies' imported cloaks trimmed with fur. The decision makes the fur the article of chief value and indicates a radical departure in present practice.

REV. JOHN HENRY BARROWS, D. D.,
Chairman of the Religious Congress of the World's Fair.

The Rev. John Henry Barrows, D. D., who has in charge the preparation for the world's parliament of religions, to be held at Chicago in September, is a man of wide and many ideas, as is proven by the scope of the program which is laid out for that great occasion. Mr. Barrows, in connection with his committee composed of many clergymen of diverse faiths, has succeeded in gaining the pledge of their presence in Chicago, from representatives of the greater part of the Eastern religions.

The advisory council of the parliament has already in its list of membership representatives of every known phase of Christianity; besides these are represented Jews, Unitarians, Buddhists, Brahmins, Parses, Hindus, Shintoists, Taoists, Jans, Confucians, Moslems, and many others from the Orient.

The parliament opens on Sept. 11, and lasts for seventeen days. It will be held in the magnificent art palace of the parliament.

Dr. Martin, president of the Imperial University of Peking, will be present. Mr. H. Dharmapala, of Calcutta, will represent the Southern Buddhist church, of Ceylon, the Rev. George Washburn, president of the Robert college, at Constantinople, will speak in behalf of his faith, and prominent men from all religions will represent their beliefs.

New Postmasters.
WASHINGTON, May 2.—The total number of fourth class postmasters appointed yesterday was ninety-four. Of this number seventy-seven were to fill vacancies caused by resignations or deaths.

THE CORNER COLLAPSED.

The Corner in Coffee Has Come to a Sudden Ending.

LONDON, May 2.—The Financial News announces that the gigantic corner in coffee engineered by M. Kaltenbach, the Paris operator, has collapsed, implicating thirty firms in Havre and a number of houses in Antwerp, Rotterdam and Hamburg.

The paper adds that for twelve months M. Kaltenbach has alone been carrying 1,000,000 bags of coffee. One-fourth of this was actual coffee, while the remainder was in futures and options. Recently M. Kaltenbach has been unable to furnish his agents in New York with margins. The coffee held by the agents was forced on the market, causing a heavy fall in prices there.

At Havre there was a decline amounting to 20 francs. Since then prices have recovered one-third under the efforts made to sustain values, in order to save the firms involved.

The German Army Bill.

BERLIN, May 2.—The Berliner Tageblatt announces that the negotiations between Chancellor Von Caprivi and the progressive members of the Center regarding clerical support for the army bill have ended. Herr Von Hoinengen Huene will, it is understood, propose a motion to reduce the government demand to 30,000 men for the first year and the government will not object to this motion. The Tageblatt states that a majority is thereby assured for the measure as amended.

A Tug Burned.

CHEYBOGAN, Mich., May 2.—The tug Sea Gull, which left Detroit Sunday with the steamer Ohio in tow for Chicago, burned when off Spectacle reef. The crew were taken off by the Ohio, which made her way to the Straits in safety. The loss is placed at $30,000, with $28,000 insurance.

Floods in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 2.—The Arkansas river is over its banks in North Little Rock and rising rapidly. There were six inches of rain fell at Fort Smith from April 28 to 7 p. m. last night. Farmers have no cotton seed and replanting will be impossible should the crops be destroyed by the flood.

A New Chief Justice.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 2.—The governor has appointed H. G. Bunn, of Camden, chief justice of the supreme court vice S. R. Cockrill, resigned.

MANY DROWNED

The Lewiston Reservoir, in Ohio, Broke and the Water Released Into the Miami Valley.

From Fifteen to Twenty Lives Lost and There is Great Danger of More Perishing.

Hundreds of Houses on West Side at St. Paul Under Water and River Still Rising.

The River Subsidizing at Cincinnati and the Alarm is Over, But Increasing Danger at St. Louis.

LIMA, O., May 3.—Word reached here this morning that the Lewiston reservoir, containing 17,000 acres of water and located at the head of the Miami river, broke at the flood gates at 4 a. m. and was rushing toward Sidney, Troy, Piqua, Dayton, Hamilton and intermediate points in a mighty volume. The break was reported to be spreading and a second Johnstown calamity was feared. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company, whose tracks parallel the river, has been notified, and fear that the water, which is already up to the tracks, will cause great damage if not loss of life. It was reported that fifteen or twenty lives were lost at a head of the river. Great alarm exists here. Later advices from the Lewiston reservoir are that the break has reached twenty feet in width and is spreading rapidly. The reservoir was full and what water passed out has had no effect in diminishing the supply in the least and the result of a complete giving away is horrible to contemplate. The towns of Lewiston and Newport, several miles down the river, are reported submerged and several lives lost. A courier has left Belle Center for the scene and it will be impossible to learn anything about the magnitude of the damage done at the reservoir until he returns. It is feared there has been a large loss of life and great damage to property.

LATER.
DEGRAFFES, O., May 3.—The Lewiston reservoir, twelve miles north of this place, broke down the waste way and a portion of its embankment this morning at about 3:30. The break is a head of the Miami valley, which has an average width of one mile reaching from the reservoir to this place, is so covered with dead water, caused by dams and has so retarded the force of the discharging waters that no sign of the breakage can be noticed here today. No fears are entertained as to loss of life or any material loss of property.

At Sidney, O., excitement was at fever heat this morning. At 4 o'clock the fire department tolled out a danger signal in consequence of a dispatch received by the police authorities from Huntsville, stating that the banks of the Lewiston reservoir had given way. The river banks were soon lined with people. A gradual going down of the water has put an end to their fears and they are now moving back. The water in the river is five feet lower than on Monday.

ALARM OVER AT CINCINNATI.

The Ohio River Reached Its Maximum and Now Receding.

CINCINNATI, O., May 3.—The Ohio river reached its maximum height yesterday noon. It then began to fall an inch an hour and has since receded, so the alarm is over. The rivers and streams throughout Ohio are rising and doing immense damage. The Miami valley is almost entirely submerged. Hundreds of acres of wheat are drowned out. In Miami, Lower River street is submerged, nearly all of the residents being compelled to desert their homes.

Reports from Springfield state that hundreds of men are guarding the banks of the Lewiston reservoir, the second largest artificial body of water in the world, which threatens to give way, the water being higher than ever known before. The loss will be stupendous if the break does occur.

All the railroads running into Springfield have had washouts. The Scioto river and Paint creek are on the rampage at Chillicothe and their waters are running over the banks creating havoc and destruction to crops and property. Chillicothe has not had such a flood for years and the prospects for a speedy abatement are anything but flattering.

At Columbus the Scioto reached its height yesterday morning and is now slowly falling. Numerous streets are impassable. The electric cars and horse cars cannot run in the lower parts of the city. The damage done is estimated at $500,000. Foundries, store rooms, tobacco factories, wine factories and manufacturing establishments were flooded and are ruined.

At Tiffin the recent rains have flooded the waters of the Sandusky to rise to a point they have not reached before in ten years and considerable damage has been caused in this city. The Mechanicburg addition is inundated, at least 100 houses being surrounded, and some of them are filled with water to the lower windows. More than twenty families have abandoned their homes and others are now being helped out in boats. The water has been rising at the rate of three inches an hour all day, but seemed to be at a standstill at 8 o'clock last evening.

DANGER AT ST. LOUIS.

The Mississippi is Rapidly Reaching the Danger Line.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—At 4 o'clock the gauge on the Mississippi river here registered 31 feet to inches—within two inches of the danger line. This is a rise of four inches in the past twelve hours.

Business on the wharf is practically suspended. The steamboats are able to make but few of their regular landings on account of the high water. Consequently they are obliged to run with light cargoes.

Reports from above here show that the river was falling last night at Keokuk and Quincy and that the Missouri was falling at Hermann. The Osage and Gasconade rivers have spent their force and are receding rapidly. It is believed that the river will reach its crest here tomorrow and will then fall rapidly.

THE FLOOD AT ST. PAUL.

Hundreds of Homes on the West Side and Other Lands Under Water.

ST. PAUL, May 3.—The Mississippi continues to rise and passed above the danger line, (fourteen feet), at 10 o'clock last night. The rise today is more rapid than it was yesterday. At 7 o'clock this morning the gauge showed the water to be fourteen feet and two-tenths above the point that it reached at 10 o'clock it had risen another tenth of a foot.

At 11 o'clock there seems to be no indication of its having reached the limit of the rise and more or less damage to property has resulted. The West St. Paul electric plant has been compelled to suspend operations, their buildings being now flooded. Hundreds of homes on the West Side and on the low lands above the city are under water and many families have lost all of their household effects.

Should the rise continue at the present rate for another twenty-four hours, serious results will follow. It is not expected, however, that it will reach a point that will endanger large property interests. People having property in buildings that are now under water anticipated the condition of affairs, and goods are being removed as fast as it is found necessary to do so.

WILL GO TO PEORIA.

Contract for the Heating Apparatus for Duluth's Public Building.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—[Special to The Herald.]—Bids for the heating apparatus for the new Duluth public building were opened at the treasury department today. They are as follows:

Shaffer & Becker, Cleveland, O., $13,541; Robert Clark, Peoria, Ill., $12,000; J. F. Dalton, Chicago, Ill., $12,000; John Lyons, Washington, D. C., $16,750; Farrell & Sullivan, Duluth, Minn., $13,000; Allen Black & Co., Duluth, Minn., $12,475; Samuel L. Payne & Co., Chicago, Ill., $13,000; Pond & Hasey, Minneapolis, Minn., $12,000.

Clark, of Peoria, being lowest bidder, will probably be awarded the contract.

SEVEN MEN INJURED.

Roof of the Northwestern Coal Company's Shed at Milwaukee Fell.

MILWAUKEE, May 3.—Without a moment's warning, the roof on the large shed of the Northwestern Coal company fell at 11:20 this morning and seriously injured seven men. The names as far as ascertained are as follows: W. J. Francy, foreman, left foot hurt, not very serious; Thomas Nelson, carpenter, foot hurt quite seriously; Jerry Sherokin. It is not known what caused the accident, but it is thought that the weight of the coal on the walls caused the walls to bulge and strained the roof. It was supported by masts. The financial loss is also quite heavy.

The roof in falling crushed all the hoisting machinery. It is not probable that any of the injured men will die. The company place their loss at $30,000. Upon receiving the news of the accident, the emergency hospital, Conrad Anderson, single, compound fracture of right arm, severe internal injuries; Lucas Nowotny, roof, and four children badly bruised, possibly internal injuries; Charles Kuhnke, Jones Island, scalp wounds; Martin Lubrant, 665 Grant street, badly bruised and prostrated by shock.

BROKERS FOR THE UNION.

An Unusual Demonstration Made in London Today.

LONDON, May 3.—The city was the scene today of an unusual demonstration. Eight hundred brokers, headed by leaders bearing the Union Jack flags and wearing Union Jacks of paper in their hats in token of their devotion to the cause of the union, their opposition to Irish home rule, marched in procession from the stock exchange today to a Unionist meeting in Guildhall.

Upon leaving the Guildhall and before entering the brokers sang and cheered loudly for the union, for Lord Salisbury and other Unionist Leaders. A crowd assembled, evidently not in sympathy with the brokers and lent variety to the cheers by occasional hoots.

A Royal Visit to Hungary.

BUDA PEST, May 3.—The emperor and King Francis Joseph paid his long anticipated visit today to the Hungarian capital. The emperor was received at the station by the members of the Hungarian ministry, the prelates of the Hungarian hierarchy and the magnates and representatives of the reichstag and other prominent people, numbering in all 540 persons and forming a brilliant and magnificent gathering. The streets were thronged with people who cheered the emperor with great enthusiasm.

OLD SOL ON TOP

At Last the World's Fair Has Been Favored With Sunshine and Everybody Feels Happier.

The Management Well Satisfied With the Attendance so Far, Considering all the Adverse Conditions.

Thousands Yearn Vainly for a Sight of the Treasures in the Fine Arts Building.

Plenty of Instrumental Music in the Park Today, and a Host of Rare Attractions.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Clouds and sun alternated at the exposition today in a most tantalizing manner for the visitors, but no rain fell and old Sol gained the mastery in the end. With a persistence deserving of a better cause, the clouds have hung over the World's fair for nearly three weeks in succession and warm, sunny weather such as everybody wants to enjoy, who is coming to see wonders of the White City, seems as far away as it would be in November.

Still the World's fair officials and contractors were happy for the absence of rain, as they are able to push the work on the roadways and buildings which remain in an unfinished state. Over 600,000 square yards of roadway have already been made firm and smooth for the summer crowds and 100,000 yards more have to be put in the same condition. The sound of the steam roller is a familiar one and mud is an extremely scarce quantity compared with the condition of things on the opening day.

The indications this morning are that yesterday's crowd will be largely increased as the magnificent distances are filling up with people from all parts of the world. Over 1,000 persons paid 50 cents to see as much of the fair as they could yesterday, and the exposition grounds are so extensive that at no time did there appear to be more than 5,000 sight-seeing people within the gates. The executive officers of the exposition are well satisfied with the attendance so far, considering the threatening weather, the dislike of people to tramp through mud and the unfinished state of several departmental and foreign buildings.

The visitors who are interested in electrical machinery are disappointed more than any others, as the exhibits in that building are the farthest behind. In fact there is hardly anything worth seeing in the big building yet. Thousands of people yearn for a sight of the treasures in the fine arts building as they stop to admire its incomparable classic exterior, but paintings and other works of art are still arriving and the doors are closed to the public for the reason that installation would have to stop, if people were allowed to enter.

The finishing touches are being put to the exhibits in several of the state buildings, but some are as far behind in installation as Russia, whose show was delayed by the ice blockade in the Baltic sea. It seems to be fashionable to be late at the fair as well as at church, and in a great measure this appears to be due to the general adoption of a tardy policy among employees of state boards and contractors. Like everybody else who has anything to sell or is bickering by the fair, these men have evidently made up their minds to make their jobs last as long as possible and get all the money they can out of the fair.

There was plenty of instrumental music in the park today, both in buildings and on the band stands. Fifty crack musicians from Des Moines, who were the grand concert of the Iowa state band, occupied the pavilion of the state building on the edge of the lake at the northern end of the park, an ideal location for a band on summer days, but rather a chilly spot today. The band gave a good concert in the afternoon, and will remain at the exposition under the direction of the state board for at least three months.

The Iowa corn decorated building was the center of attraction for a big crowd while the program was being rendered. The band will play daily, either in the state building or on the band pavilions. Prof. Leisegang's band was stationed today, as on yesterday, in the pavilion facing the grand concourse of the administration building and furnished the music for the day in that part of the park. The musical melody in the open air is one of the features of the fair which gives it the appearance of being really open to the world.

The first of the popular free orchestral concerts which are to be given every morning during the six months of the exposition took place at 11 o'clock in Music hall. No entrance fee was charged. The hall, which seats 3,000, was crowded early, the doors being locked after the second number. The orchestra of 114 pieces, under the direction of Theodore Thomas, rendered a program consisting of the Tannhauser overture, the Weber Berlioz "Invitation to the Dance," a Strauss waltz and other popular numbers.

Actual costly experience with the restaurant monopolists in the park has induced the visiting thousands to devise ways and means to defeat the schemes of the caterers. Lunch baskets and hand bags are carried by hundreds of people, and in that way they are able to spend the whole day at the fair without being furnished or parting with a goodly amount for a frail lunch. The price lists of the restaurants are Eiffel tower-like in their proportions, but not stationary like that structure.

The prices vary according to the willingness of the patron to pay. Waiters collect for everything served and collect what they please. It is reported that the council of administration will take the thrifty restaurateurs in hand and compel them to adopt a fixed price list which will bring food within the reach of persons of moderate means.

There was no more trouble among the waiters today. The strikers have been discharged and new men are filling their places. There was a small blaze in Machinery hall early this morning caused by the crossing of electric light wires. The exposition fire department was called up but before it reached the spot the fire was put out by a guard armed with a Babcock extinguisher. The damage was trifling.

The Pennsylvania state building, one of the great attractions in the north end of the exposition grounds, was thrown open to the public today. Since the Liberty bell was put in place in the rotunda, only that large room has been open to visitors. The superintendent desired to put on the finishing touches in the other rooms and clean up after the crowd that invaded the building Monday. For that reason the doors were closed until this morning. The Philadelphia policemen are on duty night and day guarding the Independence bell and answering a thousand questions.

THE DUKE OF VERAGUA.

Visited the Manual Training School and the Armour Mission.

CHICAGO, May 3.—The duke of Veragua dislikes to have a crowd follow him and be exposed to the gaze of the curious public in any way when he can avoid it. For that reason he requested that his plans for today should be kept out of the newspapers in advance of his movements.

The duke is greatly interested in popular education and institutions for the training of the young in practical things which will give them a livelihood, as well as in the higher intellectual work. He has not had an opportunity to examine into American educational methods of the practical training school kind, so he requested to be taken to the Chicago manual training school today.

A visit was paid to this model institution quite informally, and only the bare notice of his coming was received. The duke went through all the departments of the school and expressed surprise at the work done by the boys. Then the party visited the famous Armour mission and training school. The duke was much impressed with the advanced methods of instruction.

In the evening the whole dual party will attend the performance of "America" at the invitation of the Auditorium company.

ATTACKS ON CHINESE.

The State Department Takes Measures to Prevent Outbreaks.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Reports received by the Chinese minister within the past two days indicate the probability of outbreaks on the Pacific coast against Chinese residents. The tenor of these reports was communicated on Monday by Acting Secretary Adee, and last night upon the return of Secretary Gresham from Chicago telegrams were sent to the governors of several western states advising them of the existence of these reports and requesting them to take measures to prevent any serious infractions of the peace.

The authority for the reports is not disclosed, but the action of the Chinese minister was taken, it is said, so that in case there was trouble from which the Chinese suffered either in person or property, the United States might properly be held for indemnity for losses sustained.

BAD FIRE IN LOUISVILLE.

A Quarter of a Block Burned, Causing a Loss of $300,000.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3.—A destructive fire originated in the handsome and comparatively new building of the Louisville Steam and Electric Motor company on Third street near Green last night about midnight and reduced the structure to ashes in a short time.

The fire spread to adjoining buildings and did damage over an area covering a quarter of the block between Green and Walnut and Second and Third streets. The power building cost about $150,000 and was insured for nearly $65,000. Sixteen different companies did business in the burned building and their loss will reach $100,000, not half of which is covered by insurance. The total loss will reach about $300,000.

HAUL OF MOONSHINERS.

Makers of "Mountain Dew" Captured in West Virginia.

NEW YORK, May 3.—A special to the Times from Wheeling, W. Va., says the largest haul of moonshiners ever made in West Virginia by internal revenue officers was closed up yesterday and the prisoners, forty-five in number, are now en route to Charleston in charge of a strong posse of United States marshals and guards.

Among the prisoners are two women, Clara Smith and May Bechel, who have been particularly active and successful in making "mountain dew" for several years past. They were all gathered up in McDermott and Wyoming counties, and their arrest practically breaks up the moonshine business in that portion of the state.

Of Interest to Horsemen.

CHICAGO, May 3.—The board of appeals of the American Trotting Horse association went into executive session at the Auditorium this morning to hear evidence in the case of Frank Van Ness, who was ruled off the track for entering a horse under the assumed name of "Lexington Chief, Jr." A decision will be rendered tonight.

Two Appointments.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The president today appointed Cornelius C. Watts, of West Virginia, to be attorney of the United States for the district of West Virginia; S. S. Vinson, of West Virginia, to be marshal of the United States for the district of West Virginia.

The Lake Shore Meeting.

CLEVELAND, O., May 3.—The Lake Shore directors' meeting this morning was very short. There were no surprises. The old directors were re-elected to serve three years. After the meeting the Vanderbilt party left for Detroit.

A BIG LEATHER TRUST

The United States Leather Company, Controlling Nearly All the Eastern Tanneries, Has Been Formed.

Steps Taken by Several Wealthy Men to Form a Syndicate to Oppose a Trust.

With a Capital of Over a Million Dollars They Will Fight the White Lead Trust.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Herald says that a leather trust was formed in this city yesterday with a capital of $125,000,000. It will be known as the United States Leather company. The trust is composed of 90 per cent of the hemlock and union tanneries in Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware. It is also the owners of the main tracts of hemlock lands in Pennsylvania and large tracts of oak in Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky.

Boring, Magoun & Co., and Heidelbach, Lickelheimer & Co. are the banking houses interested in the new combination. The temporary officers of the trust for some time have been T. C. Proctor, of the Proctor Leather company, of Boston, president; J. T. Luby, of No. 77 Gold street, secretary, and J. R. Plum, of No. 42 Spruce street, treasurer. They will probably be elected permanently.

THE WHITE LEAD TRUST.

A Strong Syndicate Being Formed to Fight It.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Herald this morning says: Steps have been taken by several wealthy men to organize, with a capital of more than a million dollars, a syndicate in opposition to the present gigantic white lead trust which is incorporated under New Jersey laws as the National Lead company.

In the new movement, it is asserted, are representatives of white lead companies operated independently of the trust. Other men in it are well-known paint manufacturers and some men of money on the outside.

THE GERMAN ARMY BILL.

A Row in the Center Party and a New Leader Elected.

BERLIN, May 3.—The members of the Center party had an uproarious meeting today to consider the proposition supported by Freiherr von Huenne as to the terms on which the Center should support the army bill in the reichstag. The meeting was of a most exciting character and resulted in the rejection of von Huenne's proposition by an enormous majority.

Count von Bismarck thereupon resigned his place as leader of the Center and Count von Pfingst-Lichtenberg, of Straubing, was elected to succeed Bismarck in the leadership. It was afterwards decided that the members should vote according to their individual convictions.

In the reichstag today, Chancellor Caprivi declared that the government would endeavor by every constitutional means to secure the passage of the army bill. The German army, the chancellor said, as at present constituted, was not equal in quantity and quality to any emergency that might arise. He reminded the members of the reichstag that the ablest diplomacy was not always an efficient substitute for military strength and in support of this assertion he cited the experience of Frederick the Great, of Prussia.

A Rebuff For Dupuy.

PARIS, May 3.—The ministry received a rebuff in the chamber of deputies today. M. Yves Guyot, deputy for the Seine, moved urgency for a motion in favor of the abolition of the octroi duty collected on articles of food, etc., that are brought into the city. Northey, the fact that M. Dupuy, the premier opposed the motion for urgency on the grounds that the proposal had not been maturely considered. The motion was carried by a vote of 252 to 246.

SUNSTRUCK IN BATTLE!
DR. MILES' MEDICAL CO., ELKHART, IND.—I must say the Restorative Nervine and Serru and Liver Pills have done me great good.

FOUR YEARS I HAVE NOT FELT AS WELL AS NOW.
The starting point of my disease was a sunstroke received in battle before Fort Hudson, Louisiana, June 11th, 1891. Up to the time of beginning to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I had had a continual distracting pain in my head and also, weak spells, and the past four years I have had to give up everything I enjoyed. I have been in the hospital for a time, but the cure will be permanent. Several of my friends have cured me, and I know YOUR REMEDIES HAVE CURED ME, and that the cure will be permanent. THE SIOUX CITY FAILURES.

Crooked Work Is Alleged and Bogus Notes Are Repudiated.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, May 3.—It is rumored that warrants have been sworn out for the arrest of some of the most prominent parties in the recent failures here, on the charge of conspiracy, but it is impossible as yet to confirm the rumor. Some of the creditors in conversation charge that there has been crooked work. Receiver Chesley, of the Union Stock Yards company, states that he has repudiated $300,000 worth of notes, purporting to be against the company, which are signed by D. T. Hedges as president. The receiver has listed that amount already and how much more of such paper may have been floated is not known. It is stated that the records of the company give no clue either to the existence of such obligations or to the use of their proceeds. The bondholders have awakened to the situation and are preparing to protect their interests.

There are $800,000 bonds, of which $200,000 are said to be held here and the balance in Chicago and Eastern cities. Representatives of the bondholders are here and others interested are preparing to probe the matter of the company to the bottom. Stories are afloat of crooked work in the affairs of the defunct Union Loan and Trust company, which seems to have been the clearing house in the immense transactions, which are to be investigated, but the assignee refuses to give out information or to the access yet to other records of the concern. He admits, however, that the amount of the paper on which the company is liable as indorser and guarantor will reach $6,000,000. A large share of these notes are absolutely worthless, although placed in the East on the credit of the Union Loan and Trust company, but it can be stated that some of the creditors propose to let daylight in upon the transactions, with regard to which the air is full of rumors of crookedness.

RUINED AND KILLED.

The Sad Death of a 16-Year-Old Girl at Lisbon, N. D.

FARGO, N. D., May 3.—A report comes from Lisbon of the death of a 16-year-old girl there from attempted abortion. It is claimed that three prominent young men were involved and that she was soon to become a mother; also that two women were called in and gave her some medicine, and that she died before her death a physician was called.

No investigations were made as to the cause of her death, and there is now much indignation over the affair. One of the young men implicated left for parts unknown a week before the death of the girl.

THE SITUATION ALL RIGHT.

Senator McPherson Discusses the Country's Financial Condition.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, who is here prior to his departure for the summer, being a member of the finance committee, has watched the financial situation closely.

"I do not believe," said he, "that there is anything in the money situation that will necessitate the president calling an extra session of congress earlier than he intended, probably Sept. 15. The financial condition of the country is all right, if the people will only let it alone. ERIE CANAL OPENED

The Anticipated Elevator Blockade at Buffalo Has Been Averted, at Least for the Present.

Eastern and Western Divisions of the Erie Canal Opened Today and Boats Will Start.

The Grain Laden Steamer Sitka Went Ashore at Kettel Point and Is Leaking Badly.

BUFFALO, May 3.—There is an easier feeling in shipping and elevator circles today. The Erie canal was opened in the western and eastern divisions this morning at 8 o'clock, thus making an outlet for the vast amount of grain pouring into this port by lake.

The anticipated jam and elevator blockade is thereby averted, at least for the present. During the last winter seventy-five grain carriers were tied up in this section and sixty were lying between here and Utica. Although quite a number of these have been classed out by insurance people there remain still about 100 canal boats fit to convey the grain to tide water.

A large number of canal boats are already loaded and clearances taken out. They will probably to Albany at once.

THE SITKA IS ASHORE.

She Went on a Reef at Kettel Point on the Canadian Side.

PORT HURON, Mich., May 3.—The steamer Sitka, bound down loaded with 8,000 bushels of corn, went ashore early yesterday morning on the reef at Kettel Point, twenty miles above Port Gratiot light, on the Canadian side. When she struck she knocked her fore-foot off and is leaking badly.

She is out about two feet aft, having bounded over the reef.

The tug Wales with lighter and wrecking outfit has gone to her assistance. The Sitka is owned by Capt. Thomas Wilson, of Cleveland.

THE GOLD RESERVE.

The Deficiency Will Soon Be Made Up Again.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Secretary Carlisle was busy this morning answering his mail which had accumulated during his absence. He looked well, despite the fatigue of the long journey from Chicago, and expressed himself as well satisfied with the financial situation.

He said his informal conferences with the bankers of New York and Chicago were profitable. He declined to say if he had effected any arrangements with them to build up the gold reserve or to protect it in case it became depleted by continued exports. PAROLED BY FLOWER.

A Brooklyn Embezzler Has Been Released From Sing Sing.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Major Findlay, a former resident of Brooklyn, where he was a prominent club member and society leader, who was convicted on Sept. 28, 1891 of the embezzlement of $22,000 and was sentenced to seven years and six months in Sing Sing, it is learned, has been pardoned by Governor Flower's said. Findlay's former friends and fellow club members were greatly surprised at his appearance the middle of last week, as they had no intimation of a movement to secure his pardon, and it is said that even his own family did not know anything of the matter until Findlay suddenly appeared in Brooklyn a free man. The greatest secrecy was maintained not only in securing the pardon, but an effort was even made to keep the fact from becoming known. Clinton Elliott, of the firm of Wallace, Elliott & Co., from whom Findlay embezzled the money, is said to have secured his old employer's pardon. Mr. Elliott was sufficiently punished for his offense and he quietly set about securing his pardon, in which he succeeded.

The Weather.
U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN.
May 3.—Continued cloudy disagreeable weather prevailing along the Gulf of St. Lawrence and around the Great Lakes. Over the rest of the country it is generally fair. An area of low pressure slightly higher than the normal extends from the Red and Missouri river valleys to Nebraska. Over the rest of the country it is low normal.

The temperature has changed very little during the past twenty-four hours, and it is freezing at all points, ranging as general a little below the normal. The highest is at Memphis. Light rain has been general over the Northwest, and heavy in the Tennessee valley where it still continues.

An area of low barometer remains stationary over Montana, and continues to threaten the Northwest, and the chances for clear weather are poor until it moves out of the way.
The drizzling rain here yesterday only amounted to .25 inch since yesterday morning.
The highest temperature here was 50, the lowest last night 34.

On May 3.—Generally fair slight changes in temperature, conditions uncertain for Thursday, northwest winds.

The Patronage Fight.
The St. Cloud Times takes exception to the Herald's references to its course respecting the attacks on Michael Doran, successor to the political brokerage firm of "Mike and Mike." It says it did not rush to Mr. Doran's defense, because "where no offense has been committed, no defense is necessary." The attacks of the Minneapolis Tribune upon Mr.
Doran are regarded by it to be due to personal spite and therefore are unworthy of much consideration. As to the charge by Maj. Baldwin that Mr. Doran tried to defeat him in the Sixth district, the St. Cloud paper says:

"As to the first inquiry of our esteemed Duluth contemporary, we will reply that we will require something more reliable than the assertion of an unknown Washington correspondent as to what Mr.
Baldwin may have said. A few days ago, Congressmen Baldwin and Hall cautioned their Minnesota friends not to put reliance in statements from Washington correspondents as to their utterances. We prefer to take their advice."

The Herald is not content that the statements of its Washington correspondent should thus be impugned. It aims to publish reliable news. It believes its Washington correspondent to be conscientious and thoroughly reliable, and when he quoted Maj. Baldwin as making such a statement regarding Mr. Doran it believes that the major said it. But the Herald will go farther and assert that Maj. Baldwin said the same thing in Duluth before he was elected, and it is strange if his friends in St. Cloud were not also informed of the opposition which he was forced to meet from Mr. Doran.
Maj. Baldwin, according to the latest advices from Washington, finds himself opposed at every turn by Mr. Doran in seeking offices for his supporters.

The Times also says that there is not and will not be a "fight for the federal patronage" and that "the Democracy has a higher and nobler mission to perform." This is pure balderdash, and the St. Cloud paper knows that it is. There is a fight for the federal patronage, and at the present time Maj. Baldwin is trying to secure the appointment of R. K. Doe, of Duluth, to be chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission, while "Boss" Doran insists that Hon. "Bill" Campbell, ex-United States marshal and ex-chairman of the Democratic state central committee, shall be given this position.
Indeed, Mr. Doran gave it out that Mr.
Campbell had been appointed, but up to date the appointment has not been made and rumor says Maj. Baldwin has been chiefly instrumental in preventing it.

There is a pretty fight on in regard to this plum, and it is not "a creation of fancy." Either the Times' perception is very poor, or it is another example of the fact that "there are none so blind as those who will not see."

Revising the Pension Roll.
The Herald referred not very long ago to the action which Noah L. Farham Post of the Grand Army of the Republic, situated in New York, had taken in demanding a thorough revision of the pension roll, so that the abuses which now exist may be corrected and the pension lists be purged of the names of those now drawing pensions to which they are not entitled. It will be remembered that the department commander condemned the post's action, and that the post was summoned to make answer to the charge of contempt of orders and disobedience to the order of the Grand Army in passing the resolutions calling attention to the pension abuses.

A New York dispatch says that at a meeting held last week, the members of the post announced that they were ready to have their suspension made expulsion.
Several of the department officers were present at the meeting and made addresses. They tried to convince the men that whatever abuses exist, and whatever remedies may be proposed, should be discussed quietly with closed doors and not be made an open confession by the publication of the views of individual bodies of soldiers, but the post refused to be persuaded.

The members replied that their first purpose was to make it known as far and as wide as could be that there are some veterans and some organizations of old soldiers who are unwilling to give sanction even by silence to the present "disgraceful state of affairs." They of the Farham post had been heartily seconded by the local Washington post, and had been anticipated and encouraged by the department of Pennsylvania, and they believed that if the men could be got to vote on the proposition to amend the laws and sweep away the abuses it would be found that a large majority of the men as individuals would co-operate with these organizations, and declare definitely and unmistakably for the good name and unblemished fame of the whole national body.

The post concluded its discussion by adopting a letter to be sent by their commander to the department headquarters. The letter says that the post was not aware that a rule existed forbidding the circulation and publication of such resolutions as those they had passed. They would repair that breach of orders by sending the resolution to Albany, and also to the national headquarters at Minneapolis. But that was only in line with their course in making the post "to purge it of contempt."

The action of the department will now be awaited with interest. If it should result in the expulsion of the post, a serious split in the Grand Army will assuredly result, because the sentiments of many members coincide with the resolutions adopted by the New York post. Public opinion demands a revision of the roll, and the members of the Grand Army who join in this demand have the true interests of the deserving veterans at heart.

There is one saloon in Chicago where it will be dangerous to indulge in "back talk to the barkeeper." It has been started by Mr. "Bill" Dalton and Mr.
Frank J. Mes, and their reputation is sufficient to preserve peace and order in the neighborhood. People who are tired of life and too timid to commit suicide can shuffle off this mortal coil by raising a disturbance in the Dalton and James sample room.

The Vancouver, B. C., News-Advertiser, in recently announcing revival services in a Baptist church there, said:
"The evangelist will again preach this evening upon the subject, 'The Horrible Pit,' to which everyone is welcome."

The next issue has not come to hand, so that we are unable to state whether the invitation was very generally accepted.

The recent failures at Sioux City are developing some very ugly rumors. It is said that a great amount of crooked work has been practiced, and as a result numerous bogus notes have been repudiated. The trouble appears to be due to too many "plungers" and "highfliers."
Their fate should be a warning to others with abnormally developed speculative ideas.

The Chicago Tribune estimates on the scale of present prices that a temperate, economical man can get along in that city during the World's fair on $3 a day.
This will include lodging, board, car fare and admission to the exposition. This is not an extravagant figure, and no one can complain that it is extortionate.

The state saloon system in South Carolina seems likely to fail, although modeled after the successful Norwegian system. The South Carolina colonel is a thirteenth individual and cannot wait to hunt up a state saloon when his throat becomes parched. He wants a saloon on every corner.

New York newspapers and New York newspapers are very wrathful over the publication of the figures showing the shifting of the gold center from the metropolis to Chicago and from the Eastern States to the Western states. But their wrath will avail nothing to overturn the facts.

Governor Flower has just pardoned an embezzler who had served about eighteen months' imprisonment out of a seven years' sentence. There is no danger of the New York prisons becoming overcrowded as long as Governor Flower is in office.

Senator McPherson says that the financial condition of the country is all right, if the people will only let it alone. In other words, confidence is required.

Retail Clerks' Union.
A large and enthusiastic meeting of the retail clerks was held last evening in Hunter's hall and after conducting their usual business, Mr. Walker, of M. S.
Burrows & Co., was unanimously elected delegate to represent the lodge at the national convention to be held at Nashville, Tenn., in July. Mr. Walker was instructed to use all legitimate efforts to have the convention held next year in Duluth, and from promises already made by delegates from other cities, makes it almost a certainty that he will be successful.

Woman's Greatest Boon For Weakness, Debility, After the Grip

Took Hood's Two Months and Was Perfectly Well

"I wish to add my mite to the many recommendations of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a general medicine. Last winter my wife had an attack of the Grip, which left her in a very weak and debilitated condition. She tried a good many medicines, but nothing did her any good until she got a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. She was better after the first day she took the medicine, and before she had taken one bottle she was so greatly improved that she could

Which she had not been able to do for two months. She says Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest boon to women in existence. She has been taking it for two months, and considers herself a well woman. This is certainly a good record for Hood's Sarsaparilla, as she had not been well for a year. My son's wife has been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for swelling in her neck or

Cold
She noticed that the swelling began to go down when using the first bottle. She is now taking the third, and the swelling is nearly all gone. No longer valuing the effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla in this case, and are glad to make so favorable a report." M. S. Moscos,

THEY ARE SATISFIED

Colgate Hoyt and the Party of Capitalists Who Went to the Range Returned Last Evening.

They Express Themselves as Greatly Pleased With the Splendid Showing Which Has Been Made.

A. L. Dickerman, the Syndicate's Gologic Mining Expert, Will Make a Study of the Range.

The excursion party of capitalists, mining, railroad and vessel men who went to the Mesaba range Monday have returned. They reached the range early yesterday morning and at once commenced a thorough examination of the properties, the entire party being provided with rubber coats and high rubber boots. In addition to the names previously given there was a "whole coach load of Merritts," John McKinley, P. Kimberly, J. B. Cotton, Capt. John Jones and some others from Duluth.

President Colgate Hoyt, of the American Steel Barge company, said he enjoyed his first trip to the Mesaba range very much and greatly pleased with the showing made by his interests there. Vice President C. W. Wetmore, who has visited the range several times, said that all classes of work there are making great progress. These two gentlemen left for the East today as did E. W. Ogley, of Cleveland, the syndicate's sales agent of all the mines, and Chief Counselor Howard Morris, of Milwaukee.

A. L. Dickerman, chief mining expert of the syndicate's Gologic mines and general manager of the mines, and W. J. O'Leary, superintendent of the syndicate's Gologic mines, remained on the range and will make an expert examination of the properties and will very probably stay some time.

The party returned to Duluth shortly before midnight last night.

MR. HOLMES' RAILROAD.

The Deep Snow Delaying Work on the Duluth Great Western.

J. B. Holmes, vice president of the Duluth Great Western Railroad company, formerly the Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern, was in Minneapolis yesterday and was interviewed. He stated that financial and other arrangements were all completed to begin work immediately.

He had, in fact, been up the line to see what was the prospect for getting to work as to the condition of the country along the line. He found that, however, very discouraging. The line northwest from Duluth, as it has been located, lies through an immense tract of land, and as they reach the valley of the St. Louis, and continues so until they pass the watershed over to the Mississippi. In this part of the line, there is no place where work can be begun, to advantage for a long time yet. The snow is still three feet deep in the timbered country. Mr. Holmes declared that they would go on and do as much as possible, and that next season would see the whole line completed at any rate.

This line runs from Duluth to Red Lake Falls, north of Leech Lake, crossing the Grand Rapids point fifteen miles north, or above that point, Mr. Holmes stated that they had concluded not to divert to Grand Rapids. Thus the line will run in what has been supposed to be the route determined on by the Great Northern, when it was supposed that the Duluth & Winnipeg had been put under the Great Northern's thumb.

Appropos of the Great Northern plan the report is that since the Duluth & Winnipeg has emerged from the financial slough in which it was, it is the Great Northern's intention to run south of Leech Lake, in its Lake Superior direct line, instead of north. Confirmation of this report is the fact that the Park Rapids extension, Leech lakeward, is to strike at the southeast arm of the lake, presumably in the line of intersection of the Great Northern when it comes on, extended east from its present terminus at Ososon.

WEST END CONCERT.

Large and Appreciative Audience at Svea Hall Last Evening.

Svea hall was packed to the doors last evening at the concert given for the benefit of the Second Presbyterian church, and the audience manifested its satisfaction by frequent applause. The songs by the ladies quartet, Misses Rice and Tupper, were especially appreciated, especially "Blue Bells of Scotland." Mrs. M. K. Kirkland sang two numbers, and to an encore to Lohr's "Blondina," with violin obligato, responded with "Fiddle and I." The duet, "Over the Heather," by Misses Brown and Cullyford, was finely sung. Sydney Brown's violin solos as usual were given, flattering encores. He played Beriot's "Fantasia," and as an encore number gave an air by Lurline. His second solo was Papini's "Mariana," and this was followed by Dancila's "Bolero." Mrs. Findley's piano solo and the song by Mrs. Findley and Miss Thompson were well received.

A Law Partnership.

S. D. Allen and C. O. Baldwin have formed a co-partnership with the name of Allen & Baldwin and will practice law having their offices at 501 and 505 First National bank building. Both are well known in Duluth and need no introduction.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Ole Olson."

"Ole Olson" drew a large audience last evening and it was a gallery crowd, at least that element predominated, which is sufficient to indicate that the applause was loud and prolonged. The play of "Ole Olson" is deplorable. When it was first produced and it was the first Swedish dialect play, it was made a drama, but the performance as given last evening depended largely upon a very poor order of horseplay for its comedy. The company which presented it was mediocre. James McAlpine is decidedly the poorest in the dialect of any of the actors who have been seen here in Swedish dialect roles. The part of Mrs. Bridget Flanagan, who is on the warpath for a husband, was taken in an unusually coarse manner by Louise Arnot, a female, with an "on the bowery" swag. The singing was very ordinary, with the exception of the Swedish Ladies quartet, which was very good.

William H. Crane.

The sale of seats for the engagement of Comedian William H. Crane opened this morning and the demand was very large. Although Mr. Crane has never been here, his reputation has preceded him and Duluth theatergoers are not acquainted with him. On Friday night and at the Saturday matinee he will be seen as "The Senator" which was the first great success he had after he severed his connection with Stuart Robson and has brought him fame and fortune. On Saturday night he will present one of his latest comedy successes, entitled "On Probation," which ran for fifty nights at the Star theater, New York, this winter. Both plays will be staged with every attention to detail and the company will be a most adequate one.

Madame Jauschek.

There was a small audience at the Lyceum last evening. The play was "Merry Men," and Madame Jauschek hardly made as good an impression as on the evening previous. Something was wrong with the whole presentation and it dragged. Nobody knew this better than Jauschek and she several times made it manifest. She did not do nearly as good work as on the previous evening.

THE COURT FILINGS.

Doud & Sons After the Stockholders of the Duluth Milling Company.

Clerk Sinclair's office reveals the following filings of late importance:

Complaint in Doud, Sons & Co. vs. the Duluth Milling Company, St. Louis Land Improvement Company, F. W. Merritt, W. Earl, Martin Wheeler, W. D. Williams, Leonidas Merritt, Freeman Keen, M. O. Hall, O. P. Stearns, Jacob Zimmerman, F. A. Watkins, F. A. Davis, W. B. Logan, Huntress & Brown Lumber Co., Daniel G. Cash, Coffin & Mannis, S. W. Whitmore, C. C. Merritt, Harriet E. Mallory, Thomas Sunderlands, W. Tennant, A. A. Dean, Walter H. H. Mallory, Alex. Stowans, H. H. Truax. Complaint alleges the recovery of a judgment for material, etc., against the defendant, Duluth Milling Company, of $702.18, that the defendant is insolvent and worthless and has no property or effects. The other defendants are mentioned as stockholders and the suit is brought to compel the stockholders of the insolvent company to pay the judgment.

Judgment by default in case of E. W. Pele & Son vs. H. E. Long, for $866.78.

Mandate from the supreme court affirming judgment of lower court in the action of Wm. Tretheway vs. Nebemiah Hulst.

Findings for the plaintiff by Judge Lewis in George V. Forman vs. Mathias Johnson, giving title to property and judgment for costs.

Sheriff Sharry's report of the sale of lot 11, block 66, Portland division, under foreclosure. The property was the property of K. C. and Fannie L. Mitchell et al., and was sold under provisions of a mortgage. It was bid in by the First National bank for $1138.

Complaint in A. Flitger & Co. vs. T. D. Sutherland, suit to recover $6.22 due on a promissory note.

A marriage license was granted to David A. Kippen and Sara Ida Jennings, is to strike at the southeast arm of the lake, presumably in the line of intersection of the Great Northern when it comes on, extended east from its present terminus at Ososon.

CHARGED WITH RAPE.

Young Harry Burger Charged With Assaulting Violet Rice.

Harry Burger appeared in police court this morning to answer to the charge of raping Violet Rice, the 6-year-old daughter of Leroy F. Rice, a Lakeside milkman, on April 29. Young Burger is a nice looking boy and does not seem to be one that would be the most likely to be afflicted with precocious licentiousness. He has the appearance of a well-grown boy of 12 years, wearing knee pants and accompaniments. He is said, however, to be 14 years old. He is a son of E. H. Burger, of the First National bank.

Through his attorneys, the defendant waived examination and was held to await the action of the next session of the grand jury.

A Great Bargain in a Home.

Nine room house, modern conveniences, hardwood floors, etc. Price $4600, $1350 cash, balance five years at 7 per cent, East End.

NAUTICAL NUBBINS.

The Smith-See Company's steam barge Olego leaves Buffalo for Duluth today.

She takes with her the schooners Montmorency and Montcalm and two scows. She will drop the former off Tawas bay and bring the latter to the Soo for Contractor Hursley. From the Soo she will come in coal barge to Duluth.

The Cranberry Lumber company's tug Bennett went into commission Monday, and yesterday she cavorted around the harbor a good deal.

Bookkeeper Gillet, of the Inman line, has arrived and has commenced his season's duties.

Ice in the harbor is now so weak and rotten that none of the tugs have any difficulty in passing through it. In the ends of some of the slips, however, it is quite solid.

Monday and Tuesday evenings, May 8 and 9, are the evenings set for the invited dress receptions on the elegant steamer Ossifrage. The receptions will last from 7:30 until 11 o'clock and officers and crew will be in full uniform.

The steamer will be open for public inspection every day except during the time named from now until May 24.

The fishing tug J. W. Evison is in commission and will skip down the south shore just as soon as there is passably clear water.

Machinists are putting the engine of the Maggie Carroll in shape for the season's work.

The steamer Jay Gould, of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation company, leaves Chicago for Duluth tomorrow, with a full load of merchandise freight. Will T. Rorback is clerk. The City of Traverse, of the same line, will follow her, clearing about Sunday.

Commodore B. B. Inman is at the Wayne house, in Detroit. He will not return to Duluth until he arrives with the tugs Bob Anderson and L. L. Lyon and the schooner Glad Tidings.

The day Record successfully broke out of the slip from the shipyard this morning, and again proved her title clear as the best ice breaker of her size on the lakes. She broke some ice near Freeman's mill thirty-four inches thick, and the large crowd on shore yelled their appreciation of the remarkable work. She sailed up at northwestern No. 3 dock and came over to this side followed by a number of other tugs.

Arrivals at the Soo.

JUDGE ENSIGN'S OPINION.

He Commends the Work of Bishop McGolrick on the Library Board.

Judge Ensign emerged from his house this morning and attended to several legal matters. He said to a Herald reporter:

"I am sorry to hear of the recent action of the city council with reference to Bishop McGolrick. He and W. W. Billson and myself were the ordering or purchasing committee for the first 5000 books for the public library, and I must say he was one of the most considerate men I ever met as regards intruding his personal views. When we reached the work, the selection was divided into ten different classes of books, all progressed very well until we came to the division of religious books. Then I said to 'Bishop,' that is your department; that is where we will leave the work to you entirely. The bishop replied, 'I cannot make any selection; the department, or even offer suggestions, but I think the best way would be for us to address a letter to all the clergymen of every denomination in the city and ask them to send in their lists.'"

"We did so and when we met, the bishop and myself, to look over the lists, we found only two had been sent in. One of these was from Rev. C. C. Salter and the other from Rev. E. M. Noyes. I looked over Mr. Salter's list and the bishop looked over Mr. Noyes' list. I got through with my list and waited for the bishop. Presently he handed the list to me without a single erasure on it, and said 'That is an admirable list; it could not be better. I cannot suggest any changes. Again when we reached the subject of histories, the history of Ireland was reached and I said 'There, bishop, Ireland is your native country; you must suggest the history.' The bishop replied, 'I will not suggest any history. My favorite history, the one I deem the most correct is just the one that you recommend.' The committee looked at the work spoken of and decided to select it in spite of the bishop's opposition."

ST. PAUL & DULUTH LANDS.

Aitkin County Will Take the Matter of Taxing Them Into Court.

Hon. A. J. Anderson, of Pine county, a member of the last house, was a caller at the capitol in St. Paul yesterday. Mr. Anderson is very much interested in seeing the St. Paul & Duluth lands placed on the tax list, and was the introducer of a resolution in the house calling upon the tax committee to ascertain the reason they had not been on the tax list for the last fifteen years, since they were transferred from the old St. Paul & Pacific company, to whom they were originally granted, to private individuals and not to the St. Paul & Duluth company.

The committee could find no reason why the lands should not be placed on the tax list, but could do nothing more than report that there was no good reason for their not being there.

Mr. Anderson says the counties interested will endeavor to compel the county auditors to place the lands on the tax list and, in this way bring the matter into the courts with a hope of settling it before the next legislative meets. Aitkin county will lead and other counties, it is thought, will either join her or follow.

The Boat Club Ball.

Tonight the annual ball of the Duluth Boat club will be given at the Spaulding and this year's event promises to outshine all of its predecessors. The arrangements are in charge of L. J. Hopkins, H. F. Williamson, Jr., A. McKim and J. W. Johnson. The guests will be received by Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hoopes, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ensign and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hunter. The ball room will be decorated with the club colors, oars and other paraphernalia. Hear's orchestra will play.

READ THE EVIDENCE OF PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Commending the Copeland System of Treating Bronchial Catarrh and Catarrh the Result of Nasal Polyp.

"You will probably accept my story with a great deal of incredulity," said Mr. Joseph Forward, the well known contractor, who lives at 1501 West First street.

"My experience was a remarkable one and dates back sixteen years. At that time I contracted a series of severe colds that resulted in catarrh and nasal polyp, or little tumors of the nose, and for the last fourteen years I have not been able to breathe through my nose at all. You can get an idea of the condition I was in and what I suffered if you compress the sides of the nose between the thumb and finger and try to breathe. On account of having to breathe through my mouth I suffered greatly from throat and chest troubles. The cold air passing into my lungs set up a chronic bronchitis with all the accompanying distress. Sharp pains would shoot through my chest and back; I would cough incessantly and raise a thick heavy mucus. I suffered terribly with headaches and pains over and between the eyes; my sense of smell was entirely destroyed; at night I could not sleep owing to inability to get my breath. My mouth was dry and parched and my tongue cracked and bleeding. My appetite was poor; I felt weak and depressed; in fact I was in such a miserable condition I often thought death would be a relief. I was induced to try the Copeland Medical Institute by a gentleman who had been cured of deafness there. After an examination by Dr. Drenning he told me the cause of all my trouble was nasal polyp, or tumors of the nose, which could only be relieved by removal of the tumors. But like a great many others I was loath to have an operation of any kind performed, and when told that the operation was painless and almost bloodless I was more skeptical than ever, for I could not see how an operation could be performed without causing pain, unless under the influence of ether or chloroform, but I soon found that my fears were groundless and that the doctor was a man of his word, and did as he had promised. You can imagine my gratitude when I tell you I can breathe freely through my nose, the pains in my head and chest have left me and I feel like a new man. I would not take all the world for what Dr. Drenning has done for me. The tumors that were removed are in my possession and can be seen by anyone who so desires."

That the physicians of the Copeland Medical Institute are treating bronchial catarrh and asthma with marked success, is plainly evident from the following straightforward statement of Mrs. Minnie Babcock, residing at 815 East First street, this city.

Endorsed by a Well-Known Man. Mr. Dan Kenna, a well-known Duluthian says: "The Copeland system of treating diseases of the throat, nose and chest, is all that it is claimed to be. My personal experience with the physicians of the institute was perfectly satisfactory in every respect."

SKIN DISEASES. The physicians of the Copeland Medical Institute are well fitted by experience and training for the treatment of all diseases of the skin such as eczema, face, hands and body, eczema of children, salt rheum, tetter, psoriasis, acne, blackheads and pimples that cause such an unsightly appearance in young people.

THE REVOLT IN CUBA

Senor Jose Marti, the Rebel Leader, Got a Great Reception From Cubans at Tampa.

Says Cuba is Ripe for Rebellion and the Revolutionary Party Will Not be Suppressed.

The Insurgent Forces are Said to Number Two Thousand Men, Who Are Well Armed.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Herald's Key West, Fla., correspondent telegraphs: Senor Jose Marti arrived on the Mascotte, from Tampa, this afternoon. By the time the steamer reached her dock nearly every residence and business house occupied by Cubans was gay with bunting and Cuban flags. Representatives of sixty revolutionary lodges, carrying banners and flags, headed by a brass band, marched to the dock. Marti had landed and was awaiting the arrival of the procession. He was surrounded by thousands of enthusiasts waving their hats and shouting, "Viva Cuba Libre." When the procession of more than 2000 started, he marched with the delegates who had received him, behind a band to the residence of Theodore Perez, his host. The crowd trod over each other for a sight or a hand clasp from the man in whom they have put their trust for leadership.

Marti addressed the largest crowd of Cubans in Tampa last night that was ever gathered there. In an interview, Marti said that Cuba was ripe for rebellion. He says the revolutionary party is not to be suppressed and has opened channels through which the war is to be conducted. It is to be a revolution entirely in keeping with the dictates of humanity and practical Democracy.

Marti says Spain is afraid, yet it desired the premature outbreak in the hope of quelling it sooner. He does not pretend to prophesy the outcome of the movement. Much depends on Spain, but he evidently believes it will spread all over the island, having begun in the most unconquerable portion of the island. The custom house force still garrisons the beach and the United States cutter is ready to sail at a moment's notice.

News has been received that the insurgent forces number not less than 2000 well armed, who have previous experience and are operating in the mountainous region, the recesses of which are well known to them.

JURORS WERE DISCHARGED.

Accused of Drinking in Saloons That Were Under Indictment.

FR. DODGE, Ia., May 3.—The most sensational scene ever witnessed in the district court room here was enacted yesterday. Judge Hyatt called the grand jury before him and in open court discharged J. L. Kempsey, a member, and C. R. Berrien, clerk, for conduct unbecoming grand jurors.

The breach of grand jury etiquette alluded to was in visiting and drinking in saloons, indictment of which was under consideration by the grand jury. New men were chosen in their places.

THE THIRD INDICTMENT.

Another True Bill Against Bank Cashier Redwine of Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—The grand jury of the United States court, which has been in session for several weeks, investigating the embezzlement from the Gate City National bank, adjourned today. Another indictment was found against Lewis Redwine, the defaulting cashier. This is the third true bill found and charges him with embezzling $103,148.78.

No other indictments were found except those against Redwine. This sets at rest all rumors involving other bank officials and people outside the bank.

HAVE SUED THE CITY.

Non-Union Men Who Were Injured Are Seeking Damages.

ARGENTINE, Kas., May 3.—When the Santa Fe strike was declared off, the strikers congregated, paraded the streets, howled themselves hoarse and wound up by assaulting and driving from the shops the few non-union men who had taken their places. Thirteen non-union men were roughly used and three of them seriously injured.

Suits have been brought against the city for $10,000 for each of the three non-union men seriously hurt and suits will be brought for other non-union men injured. The statute under which the suits will be brought is an old one, and the suits will be the first of the kind ever filed in the state.

A Railroad Sold.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3. The Atlanta & Florida railroad was sold at public auction yesterday on the petition of the comptroller general for taxes due the state. It was bid in by Judge H. B. Tompkins, representing the Central Trust company for the bondholders who will reorganize the road at once.

All ladies are requested to call at parlor J, Spalding house, and see Madame Coe's French millinery.

REV. DR. SUNDERLAND.

The President's Pastor Will Celebrate His Golden Wedding Soon.

The Rev. Dr. Sunderland, and his wife, Mrs. Byron Sunderland, of Washington, will celebrate their golden wedding on the 22nd of May. Over forty years ago Dr. Sunderland preached a sermon in Fayetteville, near Syracuse, N. Y., where he replaced the Rev. Stephen Cleveland. Young Grover, the son, was present, and was deeply impressed by the subject, which was about eagles watching over their young. Years afterward, when the boy became president, he remembered the man, and chose the church where Dr. Sunderland officiated, as his own.

There is nothing fashionable nor showy about the church or its pastor. That is one reason why the president likes them. The building is a square box, prim and severe in all its lines. A newly organized male quartet leads the singing and reminds one of a college glee club.

Dr. Sunderland preaches a long sermon; but he is a genial, sensible man out of the pulpit, and possesses a vein of dry Scotch humor which Mr. Cleveland appreciates.

There is a delightful simplicity about the way President and Mrs. Cleveland go to church. They walk up the aisle quite unattended, sit in an ordinary pew, and join in the prayers and hymns with those about them. Mrs. Cleveland has a pleasant voice, and the president now and then hums a bass.

A Low Class.
NEW YORK, May 3.—A tribe of seventy men and women from the Congo Free State and Dahomey started on their way from Ellis island to Chicago last night. From the point of morality and intelligence they are the lowest class of strange creatures that has yet landed at the immigration building. They reached here Sunday.

DECISION TO BE AWAITED.

Geary Law Not to Be Enforced Until the Supreme Court Passes On It.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Orders have been issued to treasury officers, special agents, internal revenue agents and others, not to arrest unregistered Chinamen after May 5. On that date, the Geary Chinese law provides that all unregistered Chinese in the United States may be arrested.

As the constitutionality of the Geary act will be tested before the supreme court on May 10, it has been decided to await a decision before ordering wholesale arrests.

Fitzsimmons is Ready.

BOSTON, May 3.—Bob Fitzsimmons arrived in town yesterday and when told that Alice Greggains was anxious to make a match with him, he called at the Globe office, where he was met by Joe Lewis, who represents Greggains. Fitzsimmons proposed a match for $5000 a side and the largest purse. Lewis wished to make the match for the largest purse, without side bet, but the Australian would not consent to any such arrangement. Fitzsimmons then left a deposit with the Globe for Greggains to cover if he wants a match.

The World's Fair Fund Escapes.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Attorney General Olney has decided that the expenses incident to the transportation to Chicago of United States marines and their retention there during the fair in guarding naval exhibits, must be paid out of the funds for the support of the marine corps and not out of the World's fair appropriation.

Transfers of Troops.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The war department is carrying out the schedule for the transfer of a large number of United States troops. Part of the Fifth and Third artillery exchanged between Washington and Atlanta Monday and it is announced that orders will be issued for another exchange, that of the Fifth cavalry with the Third cavalry. The Fifth cavalry is in Oklahoma and will be sent to Texas, exchanging with the Third cavalry now stationed in that state.

Reports Were Exaggerated.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The report circulated that cases of typhus fever had developed on the White Star freighter, No. 10, was found yesterday to be considerably exaggerated. The best proof of this is the fact that the steamer sailed yesterday morning.

MRS. STEVENSON ILL.

The Wife of the Vice President Taken Sick in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Vice President Stevenson and his family left for their home in Bloomington yesterday on account of the sudden and severe illness of Mrs. Stevenson. She was taken sick Monday and was unable to attend the dedication of the Woman's building at the Columbian exposition, in which she was to have taken a prominent part.

She expected to recover so as to attend to the engagements she had made for the balance of the week, but yesterday she was somewhat worse and Dr. Evans, resident physician at the Palmer house, advised her to return home where she could obtain greater care and complete rest.

The vice president cancelled his social and business engagements in Chicago, in order to accompany and care for his wife.

VERY MUCH DEPRESSED.

England and Scotland's Iron and Steel Trade Languishing.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The iron and steel trade of England and Scotland is suffering considerable depression just now," said a wealthy manufacturer of Glasgow sojourning in this city.

"The cause is over-production. The output has increased faster than the demand. Since the McKinley bill went into effect, my house has not sold a dollar's worth of sheet iron or steel in the United States. By way of compensation, however, our export business in Canada and other countries has grown largely and therefore we have been able to maintain prices."

An Austrian Forger Caught.

CINCINNATI, May 3.—Jacques Bico Adut, the Austrian forger who stole $80,000 from his countrymen, was arrested yesterday at the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad depot. He was taken to the central police station and when searched several pawn tickets for diamond rings and jewelry were found, but no money. He had heavy gold bracelets riveted on his wrists and wore fine garters with gold buckles.

GEN. C. J. PAINE, OF BOSTON.

The Chairman of the America's Cup Committee.

The America's cup committee, which will make all arrangements for the next and eighth defense of America's cup, has for its chairman General Charles J. Paine of Boston.

Mr. Paine needs no introduction to the yachting world. He has twice before saved the cup, and will try it again this year. He has always loved to sail a boat, and has had many good and fast vessels. His new defender, the first for this purpose built in Boston, will contest in the coming races to be held early in September, for the purpose of deciding which will meet the Valkyrie.

Mr. Paine's yachting experiences began in a catboat off Beverly. His experiences with the old schooner Halcyon, which he took and made a dangerous racer of, will not soon be forgotten; nor how he with ten other Boston gentlemen built the Puritan; nor how he alone brought out the Mayflower and Volunteer, all successful cup defenders. As a practical handler of yachts General Paine has no superior.

He is a lawyer as well as a yachtsman; and his war record, also, stands out prominently. "His discipline in the army, it is said of him, is the same as it is on the yacht—perfect."

THE FOURTH DAY

Indications of Clear Weather Took Large Crowds of Strangers to the White City Today.

Partial Opening of the Fine Arts Building Had the Effect of Attracting Many People.

The Landscape is Rapidly Assuming its Summer Garb and Flowers are Beginning to Bloom.

Duluth Makes a Fine Showing and Has Nearly All of Interest in Minnesota's Exhibit.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Chicago,
May 4.—This is the fourth day of the exposition and the indications are that it will close successfully in point of attendance and swift progress towards the completion of the World's biggest show.
The absence of any considerable rain since the opening, and the indications of clear weather today, brought large crowds of strangers from their temporary homes to the White City for a day of sight seeing.

The partial opening of the Fine Arts building had the effect of attracting many people to the grounds for the average man and woman, no matter how poor a judge of art, dearly loves to see a picture. The crowds in the galleries of painting and sculpture are a study. The rich man's wife or daughter who has in her boudoir the equal of many paintings on the walls of the galleries, sit on the circular settees and touches elbow with the poor man who has been confined to dollar chrome which adorn the walls of his humble home. The comment of these two members of society on the fine art exhibits are amusing.

The air was cold and the wind moderately strong, but the visitors did not complain so long as the clouds overhead did not leak. Everybody was well provided against the Lake Michigan breeze wearing heavy wraps, overcoats and carrying shawls or rugs to sit on when they got tired. The driveways are undergoing rapid transformation and every main artery connecting with the big buildings will be firm and smooth next week.

The landscape, under the combined efforts of tillage by the gardeners and a fine sun shining brightly, assuming its summer garb. The flowerbeds which were filled with choice plants of all descriptions are beginning to show the effects of careful nursing and are taking on a coat of variegated color which adds much to the appearance of the grounds.

Around Horticulture hall especially is this result noticeable. Long plots of flower beds of various designs running the entire length of the great building and lying between it and the main la-gune are in a splendid state of forwardness and with good weather will be a magnificent sight in a short time. In other parts of the park gardeners, who have kept their treasures carefully protected from the snow and frost, are beginning to have hope, and this morning a large force was at work improving the beds and spurring the flowers on to bloom.

A large force of Uncle John Thorpe's men is engaged in the wooded island planting hundreds of flowers of endless varieties in the big beds which were laid out last year. These plants, which are almost ready to bloom, have been carefully nurtured in the green houses of the park during the winter, and the gardeners are carefully unpack them from the nests in boxes and unwrap the packing around them as if they were so many pieces of precious porcelain.

The big trees, which have heretofore afforded shelter and shade to the people of Chicago, who spent many summer hours of leisure in Jackson park, are shooting forth their green buds, and with a little warm sunshine they will spread their broad green leaves over the island and other parts of the park, forming a rich and verdant canopy over the bright flowers in bloom and the big white buildings.

The free concerts are proving a splendid drawing card and the crowds in attendance upon this morning's entertainments were largely in excess of those of yesterday. The open air concert began on band pavilion, No. 2 in administration plaza at 10 o'clock. Prof. Adolph Leisgang directed a Chicago band of sixty musicians during the rendition of the morning's program, and in the afternoon the concert was given by the Cincinnati military band under the leadership of Michael Brand of that city.

The musical numbers for these programs are arranged regarding internationalism with a nicety that is admirable.
In today's program selections were rendered from the works of Wagner, Verdi, Gounod, Beethoven, Liszt and some American composers. The most fastidious could not fail to be suited and the applause was generous.

The free orchestra concert at music hall at 11 o'clock was well attended. Mr.
Thomas and the exposition orchestra of 114 pieces gave a program opening with the Rakoczy march and containing among others the "Ride of the Valky-ries," the ballet music of the "Feramors" and the Hungarian dances 17 to 21, the orchestra during the interpretation of the last named number being under the direction of Anton Dvorak.
The applause was liberally bestowed and the noted Hungarian composer was tendered an ovation.

The Iowa band gave its usual concert at the Iowa state building during the day. As on yesterday a crowd was small, the nearness of the pavilion to Lake Michigan rendering its atmosphere decidedly chilly.

Chief Robinson, of the mechanical arts department, is not concerned over the complaints of certain exhibitors in Machinery hall, nor is he afraid that they will carry out their threat to take their exhibits out of the building. Chief Robinson said this morning: "The newspapers seem to know more about this than I do and exaggerate it. Only a few growlers have objected to paying the fixed and reasonable charges made by the exposition for supplying motive power for their machines. The tariff has not been changed and it will be enforced."

Two big engines in machinery hall were started today, and the building is rapidly getting to be more attractive to the general public. The monster 16-foot diesel engine, which weighs 25,000 pounds was ready to revolve last Saturday, but the pipes were not ready. The cylinder is 24 inches in diameter, and has a stroke of 48 inches. The "big gun" of the hall, the Allis-Corliss engine, is in good order and runs a few hours daily.

The national commission failed of a quorum at 10:30 this morning, and it was 11 o'clock before a sufficient number was in attendance to warrant the taking up of business. The piano controversy between the authority of the board governing the fair and the clashing of authorities and showed by numerous references to the constitution and by-laws that the council of administration were in the right regarding the matter.

DULUTH'S FINE SHOWING.
Has Nearly All That is Interesting in Minnesota's Exhibit.

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Special to The Herald.]—E. C. Gridley and family and H. B. Moore and Sincoe Chapman have been here during the past week at the Palmer house. Duluth is showing up better than any other city in Minnesota in all exhibits from that state. The Zenith City has about all that is interesting in the state exhibit and of course in the exhibition of the department of other county save St. Louis is recognized in Minnesota. The county holds its own well against the whole state of Michigan.

A HORSE THIEF HANGED.
Lynched by a Mob of His Victims in Kentucky.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky., May 4.—A mob last night took Collins, the horse thief who was being brought back from Illinois, from the train at Sherman, a few miles north of here, and hanged him. He was in charge of Marshal Louis Walden and James Hutchinson, who went to Illinois to get the horse thief. The papers on the governor of that state for Collins, charging him with the crime of horse stealing.

As soon as the Cincinnati Southern train stopped, a mob of masked men boarded the train and seized the prisoner. He begged and pleaded for mercy, but the mob was composed of farmers and men who had lost horses by the thefts of the Collins gang and they knew no mercy.

Despite his frantic struggles and cries, he was dragged under a large oak. A noose was quickly swung around his neck and he was swung into space. The mob stood around until the body ceased struggling and then a few shots were fired at it. Collins was about 44 years old. He was of respectable and honest parents, but had been a bad character from his youth.

terior department today. Some time

A BIG CREVASSE

The Break in the Ohio Reservoir Widening and Nothing Can Prevent a Terrible Disaster.

The Indications at St. Paul are Now That the Flood Has Reached its Greatest Height.

The Red River's Banks at Winnipeg are Full and the Water is Still Rising.

Large Tracts of Country are Inundated and Farmers Forced to Leave Their Homes.

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 4.—Last night word reached here from the reservoir via Belle Fontaine, that the crevasse is widening and that nothing can prevent a terrible disaster. The flood-gate bank, 200 feet long, is all gone and the water is now eating its way to the bulkhead where the water is thirty feet deep.
When this breaks the temporary dams will be swept away as if they were straws. The guards are tired and worn out after a hopeless day's work.

All wait in fear and trembling for the first big wave of destruction. The property loss, it is estimated, will be over $1,000,000. It was reported at 9 o'clock last night that the water had reached Sidney, thirty miles distant from the break and that one-third of the town was submerged. The town of Lakeview is washed away.

THE FLOOD RECEDING.
All Danger of Flood at St. Louis Over for the Present.

ST. LOUIS, May 3.—The flood in the Mississippi river reached its crest yesterday at a height of 36.6 feet above low water mark, which was 4.4 feet lower than the crest of the destructive rise of last year.

The water receded very slowly during the evening and this morning showed a fall of four inches from its highest mark.
It is thought the river will continue to fall and all danger of a flood at present is over.

THE RED RIVER'S RISE.
The River Front at Winnipeg is All Under Water.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 4.—The banks of the Red river are full at this point and the water is still rising. The river fronts are all submerged. South of this point are several big ice gorges and large tracts of country are inundated.
Farmers have left their homes, in some places driving their stock with them.

THE FLOOD AT ST. PAUL.
No Fears of Further Trouble Are Now Entertained.

ST. PAUL, May 4.—Indications point to the fact that the river will reach the limits of its present rise today. At 7 o'clock this morning the government gauge showed 14.5 above low water mark, and up to 11 o'clock the rise had increased only a twentieth of a foot.
No further damage has been reported and no fears are entertained that there will be any further trouble. It is expected that the river will commence receding tomorrow.

THE GERMAN ARMY BILL.
Herr Richter Makes a Vehement Speech Against the Bill.

BERLIN, May 4.—The discussion of the army bill was continued in the reichstag today. Herr Richter, leader of the Deutsche Freisinnige party, declared that the party would not accept the compromise agreed upon by Freiherr Von Reune, the chief spokesman being that the concession of the two years' active service limit would be subject to the good will of the government, which would be enabled after a period of five years to demand a new increase of the army and thereby compel additional concessions on the part of the reichstag.
Herr Richter vigorously assailed Chancellor Caprivi for attempting, as he described it, to tyrannize over the reichstag by parading the opinions of military experts which were intended to override the views entertained by members of the reichstag. Then parliamentary representation would be a farce. Herr Richter protested in vehement language against what he characterized as the sightings remarks uttered by Chancellor Caprivi regarding the laborious studies which the committee of the reichstag on the army bill devoted to the question.
The theory of the imperial chancellor, said Herr Richter, to the effect that the military strength of Germany should be as great as the population of Germany permitted, was untenable. It meant a doubling of the military forces of Germany, and it meant the putting of the empire on the highroad to being militarily as Prussia already was. "Loud applause."

"Yet Prussia," continued Herr Richter, "was unable to provide a few hundred thousands for educational and scientific purposes while the military swallowed a million."
Here the speaker was again interrupted by loud applause on the part of the opponents of the army bill, accompanied by uproar and cries of dissent on the part of its supporters. Facing those who disapproved from his utterances, Herr Richter exclaimed: "What is the use of patriotism to a man with nothing to eat?"

Boston's New Postmaster.
WASHINGTON, May 4.—The president at Boston, vice T. N. Hart, resigned.

CLAUS SPRECKELS TALKS.

Says That the Monarchy in Hawaii is Dead Forever.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The steamer Australia arrived from Honolulu yesterday, bringing advices to April 26. Paul Neuman, who was among the passengers, says that he came over merely on private business. The British cruiser Hyalis has arrived at Honolulu from Esquimalt, B. C. The United States steamer Adams, which is expected at Honolulu to relieve the Mohican, had not arrived up to the time the Australia sailed.

A reception and ball was held on board the Boston on the evening of April 24.
Among the large number of invited guests were naval officers from the Japanese and English warships in port.
Claus Spreckels was interviewed shortly after his arrival in Honolulu on April 18.
He said among other things: "The monarchy cannot be restored. If I could find a man of ability whom I could trust
I would favor a republic. Annexation would involve another point—that of Japanese suffrage. I tell the people that it is absurd to think that the United States constitution can be changed to permit here. The officers from the Japanese and English warships in port.
Claus Spreckels further said that he had not made up his mind to anything yet, but he was investigating the subject and would yet have something to say. Mr.
Spreckels' influence in one respect has begun to operate, for it is stated on good authority that Parker and Neuman, in addition to Spreckels himself, have informed the ex-queen that the monarchy is dead beyond resurrection.

She is reported as having said: "Whatever the result may be I will not utter a murmur. I have advised my people to remain quiet." At the present writing Spreckels is known to be conferring with a number of sugar planters, but to what end has not been ascertained.

Another Commission Coming.
New York, May 4.—The World's Honolulu special, dated April 26, says:
Since the departure of the last mail, an attempt has been made to bring a commission between the two opposing factions here. It was evident that if the deposed queen could be induced to withdraw from her position of passive an-tagonism, it would greatly help to clear matters up. The only practical mode of inducing the queen to retire is to pension her.

On April 22 Paul Neuman had a long conference with President Dole. The situation was reviewed and the president informed Neuman that the government would listen to any proposition the queen had to make. The latter said that, as the adviser of the queen, he thought that a pension of a suitable amount should be accepted. The two parted with the understanding that they should meet again immediately after the queen had been seen. The queen consulted Samuel Parker, her former minister of state, who urged the queen to reject Neuman's proposition.

Others were called in, it is understood, and the pressure on Lilioukalani became so great that when Neuman again met her she refused to take any action. "I will trust the United States to restore me," was her answer. She had been told that the United States would surely do so, and she said she would wait.
Neuman replied that he had advised her in a way that was best suited to her interests, and that he would cease to act as her counsel.

In losing Paul Neuman, Lilioukalani has been deprived of the ablest member of her party. It is the intention of the provisional government and the annexation party to send another commission to Washington.
Mr. Thurston, of the old commission, who is now in the East, will remain perhaps as the diplomatic representative of the Hawaiian islands in place of Mr.
Carter, the present minister. The exact date of the departure of the commissioners is not fixed, but it probably will be that of the sailing of Commissioner Blount, who expects to go on June 4.

The commission will include Mr.
Thurston as a member and probably Samuel Damon, of the banking house of Dishon & Co., the principal financial institution of the islands. Mr. Damon is the vice president of the provisional government and is a shrewd and level-headed man. His father was a missionary from the East, and Mr. Damon inherits a vast amount of Yankee shrewdness and common sense. This plan to send another commission meets with the hearty approval of President Dole.

BIG STRIKE THREATENED.
Forty-Two Large Furniture Factories at Cincinnati Involved.

CINCINNATI, May 4.—Cincinnati is threatened with the most extensive strike ever known among the big furniture manufacturers. Forty-two of the biggest factories are involved, and these employ about 10,000 men. The trouble grows out of the strike of the cabinet workers at the Huss Bros. factory. The Huss Bros. men made a demand for nine hours work with ten hours pay, which was granted. Then ten of the union men demanded the discharge of seven non-union men. This was refused and the twenty men went out.

The strikers applied for work at other factories, but ran against a little plan.
Forty-two of the leading firms had agreed that whenever a man left a shop, he should be given a card stating that he had worked for the firm, and giving the cause of leaving. The forty-two firms agreed to hire only men with cards.
The men who left Huss had no cards.
They failed to obtain employment.

The forty-two firms joined in an attempt to start the Huss factory, but yesterday it failed. The cabinet workers number but 2500 men, but their stopping will throw 7500 others out of employment in the ripping and carpentering departments. Both the manufacturers and employees are well organized and determined to win. A long lock-out is expected.

Wiped Out by Fire.
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 4.—The village of Bailey, twenty-five miles northwest of this city, was almost wiped out by fire late last night. An overturned lamp in this store of G. Hirschberg started the blaze and the fire spread rapidly to neighboring buildings. Loss $20,000; insurance not known.

The Weather.
U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Duluth, Minn., May 4.—This is one of the very few places in the country where there is no wind today. Over the North and West it is cloudy and raining, and cloudy along the lower lakes. The area of low barometer which has been central over Montana for the greater part of this week has not developed some energy and now covers the country in a long, narrow strip from Texas north to the boundary. It is falling at most places within its limits, and it is probable that it will advance so as to bring some to this section by tonight.
The temperature has risen slightly over the Northwest and is above freezing at all places except one elevated station, Canada, where it is 31. Frosts are reported from Southern Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin. Only a trace of precipitation fell here yesterday. The highest temperature was 42, the lowest last night 28.

DULUTH, May 4.—Fog followed by rain this evening, and clearing tomorrow, slight change in temperature, northeast wind.
B. H. BROSSESS,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Showers; for Minnesota: Showers; east wind.

Prevention of Disease.

St. Paul is taking energetic steps to improve the sanitary condition of the city. The council of the Society city appears to fully realize its duty on this important matter and is adopting measures to put the whole city in a clean condition and to keep it clean. St. Paul has a system for the collection and disposing of garbage, and contracts were recently awarded for its collection in the various districts into which the city is divided for that purpose. At the last meeting, the aldermen adopted a new ordinance, which provides that every person shall provide proper and suitable receptacles for receiving garbage, which receptacles shall consist of water-tight vessels, constructed of hardwood or metal and covered, not too large for convenient handling, and shall be placed by the occupants of buildings at a point on the premises most accessible to the persons collecting the garbage. No person shall cause or permit garbage to be thrown in any of the streets, alleys or on any vacant lot. No tenement or lodging house or any portion thereof shall be used as a place of storage for any combustible article, rags, or any article dangerous or detrimental to health, nor shall any horse, cow, calf, swine, pig, sheep or goat be kept in such house. Any person who violates, neglects or refuses to comply with any of the provisions of this section shall be subject to a fine not exceeding $100 nor less than $25 for each offense. Steps are also being taken to secure a disinfectant plant.

The danger of America being visited by cholera this year was discussed at a meeting of the St. Paul Commercial club on Tuesday night, and two papers were read, one by Dr. Walter Reed, U. S. A., on the "Bacillus of Cholera," and the other by Dr. W. E. Halliwell on the precautions to be taken to prevent the spread of the disease. Dr. Halliwell discussed the practical side of the subject. What he said was calculated to awaken the citizens of St. Paul to the necessity of subjecting the city to a thorough cleansing. "The city," he said, "should be cleaned as it never has been cleaned before. Every lodging place for filth should be sought out. The city government should take this in hand. The co-operation of the people has been asked for recently. The co-operation of the people should be compelled. This can be done."

The Herald reproduces these facts and statements in the hope that they may stir up the Duluth council to handle this question in a thorough manner. St. Paul is a clean city today compared with Duluth. If cholera should reach this city in its present condition its spread would be rapid and the resulting mortality would be frightful. But there is danger from other sources. Even if cholera does not come, Duluth is exposed today by the negligence and indifference of its authorities, to some other epidemic. The piles of dirt on the streets and the garbage heaps in the alleys and backyards are now exposed to the hot rays of the sun and will breed disease unless removed at once.

The Russian Treaty.

A number of Russian nihilists, who believe in murdering their political opponents by the use of dynamite, and who have inflicted their unwelcome presence upon this country during the past few years, have been a great outcry against the extradition treaty recently concluded with Russia. They have also enlisted the sympathy and support of a number of sentimentalists who have made no study of the matter, but have accepted the word of these murderous wretches without inquiry. A crowd of them held a large meeting in Chicago recently and stirring speeches were made, all based upon the nihilistic statements and depicting the awful outrages that would be inflicted upon political refugees from Russia by this treaty.

Similar remarks have been made in other cities, and no doubt many people have been misled into believing that they are correct. The fact is that the wording of the treaty has been misrepresented, no doubt purposely by Russian murderers who have fled to this country and fear that they will be taken back to answer for their crimes, under the provisions of the treaty. The important points of the treaty, as now divulged, are not of a nature to allow the deportation of political prisoners, because it is expressly provided that no person shall be extradited except upon such "evidence of criminality, as, according to the laws of the place where the fugitive or person so charged shall be found, would justify his or her apprehension and commitment for trial, if the crime or offense had been there committed." The crimes are mentioned upon which extradition is possible, and they must be punishable in the laws of both countries, and the evidence must be sufficient to satisfy the authorities here that the accused are guilty of the crimes charged.

Those who have committed merely political offenses will therefore be free from deportation, but no one can contend successfully that an attempt to commit murder, no matter whether the czar be the object of attack, should be classed as a political offense. The crime of murder is not lessened by the inciting cause being a political reason.

A Rich Territory.

Referring to a statement that orders have been issued for a geological and topographical survey of the vast territory between Lake Vermilion and Rainy river, in which some homesteading is going on, the St. Paul News says: "Comparatively few Minnesotans realize what vast and valuable possessions are theirs in the region named. It is an empire in itself, as yet virtually unoccupied, but abounding in timber, minerals and fertile soil—the source of incalculable riches to future generations. The survey and the consequent advertising which this region will receive will undoubtedly stimulate a rapid influx of settlers, and the next few years will witness the growth of some thriving new towns."

Duluth stands at the gateway to this great region which must speedily be made accessible to settlers by the construction of railroads from this point. It is the intention of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern management to extend that road through this magnificent country which has been visited by few white men. While believed to be rich in mineral wealth, it contains large tracts of splendid agricultural land, and its settlement and development cannot fail to result in adding to the trade of Duluth. It is a great rich territory tributary to Duluth that is now awaiting the advent of railroad communication to produce a rapid development.

Two Apparent Errors.

The St. Cloud Times, referring to a recent editorial in the Journal Press of the same city, says:

"Our Republican contemporary terms The Duluth Herald 'Congressman Baldwin's personal organ.' As the Herald is a Republican paper and Mr. Baldwin is a strong and consistent Democrat, the error is apparent."

The Times is correct when it says that The Herald is not Maj. Baldwin's "personal organ." It is not the organ of any man or any faction. Neither is it a "Republican paper," as the Times asserts. Politically, it is a free lance, independent and outspoken, judging men and measures regardless of the political complexion of the men or measures. It supports the best men for public place, be they Republicans or Democrats, and it endorses measures upon their merits alone, no matter whether they emanate from Democratic or Republican sources.

In short, The Herald is not the organ of any man or political party. It is a newspaper in what it considers the true sense of the word, and it aims to present the news uncolored, by political bias or partisan prejudice. To faithfully carrying out this policy, The Herald owes its great success, in a field where many papers have dropped into untimely graves.

The statement made a few days ago, which was claimed to be based on good authority, that Governor Flower intended to pardon Carlyle Harris, the wife poisoner, was incorrect. Today's dispatches announce that the governor has denied the application for clemency and Harris will be electrocuted next week. Governor Flower deserves credit for resisting the powerful political influences which were exerted in Harris' behalf and the tearful appeals of the sentimentalists.

Edmund Waller's immortal "Go,

Lovely Rose," an English classic over 200 years old, but perennially fresh and fragrant, was printed in the Boston Herald last Sunday credited to a New York literary paper of recent date! This is about on a par with the publication several years ago by a Winnipeg paper, as a new and original poem, the beautiful piece by Will Carleton, "Cover Them Over With Beautiful Flowers."

Who says that David B. Hill is not being recognized by the administration? A few days ago his cousin, Charles D. Hill, got a fourth-class postmaster ship in Missouri.

This weather will do, Mr. Morton. Now that you have struck the right combination, be careful not to lose it again.

For sale, four choice lots in block 1, Fifth division, Duluth Heights. Special prices. T. E. Bowen, 508 Lyceum.

Like a Stone Wall.
La Prairie News: Maj. Baldwin is standing like a stone wall between the forestry crank who was taken into the interior department in obedience to the demands of the people who want to clear up about one-third of the state of Minnesota for forestry purposes. The major insists that neither the state of Minnesota, nor above a dozen of its citizens, demand a forest reserve in the northern part of the state.

Narrow Minded Bigotry.

St. Cloud Journal Press: Duluth can now sympathize with Minneapolis and Anoka on the score of having a damphool council. Last night the Duluth aggregation refused to confirm Bishop McCollrick as a member of the library board, on the ground that he was a Catholic, although he is one of the ablest men in Minnesota, and one who has done much for the moral elevation of mankind. Such narrow minded bigotry as exhibited by the Duluth council is contemptible.

HER PART.

It Was Too Much Like Man's Work, and She Didn't Approve.
Away up in the north fork of the Kentucky river the Widow Wilson kept a half way house famous in that section for its excellent fare, and when I happened to be in that neighborhood on one occasion I made an extra effort to get there to stay over Sunday. I found it an excellent place to stay, and after a good meal at first, I applied at the widow's house to stay in the shade of the porch the widow found me.

"Don't you get very lonesome here by yourself?" I asked after a few scattering remarks.

"Yes, sometimes," she answered; "but when I sit up one side on down either I reckon I'm about as well off as if I had a man around."

"But you ought to get married," I argued. "You are still hale and hearty, and a husband would be a good deal of comfort to you."

"He might, an then again he mightn't," she said, shaking her head. "I've tried two, an neither one suited."

"What was wrong with them?"

"Well, Jenkins, he wuz the first one," she said in a reminiscent tone. "He wuz a ornery bound that used to get drunk an come home on thrash, he all over the place. If he hadn't been a drinkin man, I could 'a stood the thrashin, but I didn't like the idee uv both. After he died I married Wilson, and he wuz a lazy, ornery thing that used to get drunk an come home, an I used to thrash him all over the place."

"That was some better than the first," I said, laughing with her.

"No, it wasn't," she promptly replied. "No? Why?" I asked in surprise.

"Well, I'd kinder got used to Jenkins' ways, an when Wilson come I never liked the idee uv doin a man's work about the house."

Extravagant.

In the other days, not so very long ago either, when part of life in the far west was shooting, Indiana, a young settler went out there from the east with a 16 shot repeating rifle that he was very expert in handling. The old chaps who still carried muzzle loading smoothbores had their doubts about the new fangled gun, and they also had more or less fun with the youngster and were always telling him he'd have no use for a thing like that when he got in a fight with the Indians some day. A week later their stockade was attacked by 50 hostiles, and the new man with the new gun was not found wanting. By one bullet shot the tenderfoot sent 10 bullets clean through two Indians and dropped them both. He gave a yell of triumph and expected the men with him would join, but they didn't.

"Here, young fellow," said an old hunter, "you got a gun an a shooter with his ramrod, 'don't get extravagant like that any more. I want to shoot a few of them redskins myself when I get this gun loaded, if you don't keer."—Exchange.

Not Satisfied.

One day this week a fellow with the worst kind of a toothache crept timidly into a certain Lewistown dentist's office.

"What do you want for pulling a tooth?" queried he, holding out his face.

"Fifty cents without gas, a dollar with gas," replied he of the forceps.

This fellow started as if he was shot. "And what do you suppose he said?"

"If you can't pull my tooth in broad daylight without gas, I'll go somewhere where they can't"—Lewistown Journal.

Out of Order.

"As I was saying," said old Mr. Skiplint of the Story Tellers' club, "as I was saying, he then borrowed $10 of me."

"Gentlemen," interrupted the president of the club, rising to his feet, "I must rule the gentleman out of order. One of the first bylaws of this club is that only stories which bear evidence of reasonable probability shall be recounted here."—Chicago Tribune.

Two Good Toasts.

The well known toast of the accomplished Judge Story at a dinner in honor of Everett's appointment as ambassador to the court of St. James is very graceful. "Genius—sure to be welcomed where Everett goes." The next response to this was, "Law, equity and jurisprudence—no efforts can raise them above one story."—Argonaut.

WILL GET PROPOSALS

The Railroad Commissioners Will Invite Property Owners to Submit Proposals for Sites.

Gen. Becker Thinks That it Would be a Graceful Act for Duluth to Donate a Site.

He Says the Elevator Will be a Model One and Will be Finished by Fall.

Railroad Commissioner Liggett did not arrive this morning as expected and will not be able to come at present owing to sickness in his family. Gen. Becker said this morning:

"We shall do nothing further at present in the matter of securing a site except to invite proposals for a site for the elevator and we will today send advertisements to the Duluth newspapers to that effect. These proposals will probably be opened in Duluth. We shall come here again in about two weeks for that purpose and will then, I think, be able to go around the harbor in a tug and view the various sites. I do not believe that we will have any trouble in securing a site accessible for the largest ships and having adequate terminal facilities as well. Had not the law under which we are to work provided for the building of the elevator within the county of St. Louis, I think we should have had no trouble in securing a site free of cost to the state. Duluth owes much of her prosperity to the wheat trade and to the farmer and will in the future derive great benefit from this wheat trade. Now, I think it would be a graceful act and one which would be to the advantage of Duluth, for her to present to the state and to the farmers a site for this elevator."

When asked as to how the opinion of Attorney General Childs that the increased inspection charges provided for apply only to the wheat landed at the state elevators would affect the new elevator scheme, and whether the farmers would find it of sufficient advantage to deal at the state elevator and pay the higher charges, Gen. Becker said:

"That is a question which experience alone can determine. The friends of the measure claim that it will be a great boon for the farmer, while the opponents think it will be a failure. Time and the results of operation will determine which of these positions is the correct one. But we have nothing to do or say. We are simply the commission which is to carry out the law. We propose to build this elevator and to build it with all modern conveniences, in fact, a model elevator in every respect. I think we shall have it ready for the fall crop."

HULETT WILL CLASH.

The Hearing Resumed This Morning—Judge Powell Examined.

The resumption of the Hulett will contest took place in the probate court before Judge Ayer this morning. The contestant, Lucy Pomeroy, appeared in widow's weeds and chatted smilingly and pleasantly with W. K. Rogers who sat alongside her. Judge Powell was placed on the stand to identify a number of the exhibits as the handwriting of the deceased. The witness admitted that some of the signatures looked like the deceased, but he would not identify any of them. At the conclusion of Judge Powell's testimony an adjournment was taken until the afternoon, when the objectors or defense will have their innings.

ADVICE TO TEACHERS.

Superintendent Denfeld has just issued his "Notice No. 9" to the teachers of the public schools. It is not a lengthy sheet but contains advice, observations and suggestions valuable to the teachers and the same time being indicative of the thought and care which Mr. Denfeld strives so faithfully to give the schools of this city.

The attention of the teachers is called to the new rule adopted by the public library to the effect that any resident teacher can obtain upon one card as many as twenty books, which may also be retained three weeks, but all books so drawn must be taken at one and the same time. "I would urge every teacher," says the superintendent, "who desires to assist the pupils, to make as good use as possible of this privilege of the library."

After urging the teachers to see that all pupils are vaccinated, the following "Thoroughness" is given: "During the past two weeks the committee on examinations for the West Point competitive examination, have been at the same time with the fact that most of those examined were very deficient in the rudiments of English education, in other words, lacking thoroughness. The principles of arithmetic—addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, etc.—were not carefully and thoughtfully considered by the examinees. This must either be remedied by the pupils, or the pupils or a failure on the part of the teachers, to thoroughly consider the importance of the principles. We hope that in our endeavor to make school work interesting for the pupils, and in our efforts to secure a great amount of scientific work, we will not lose sight of the fundamentals. We must see that language, reading, history and science go hand in hand and that we grasp the broader idea of the correlation of study bringing home each principle by virtue of the association that we put about it. We must, in short, teach pupils to think. This only can be done when teachers fully grasp the situation and aim for results extending over months, not hours."

With reference to "physical culture" the "notice" further says: "It is my desire that principals should attend as much as possible to the standing, sitting and walking of the pupils. The advocates of the Delsartean system, or modifications of it, say that our system of physical culture is a little harsh, in that it does not give sufficient attention to the points above indicated. I am, however, fully convinced that no system has any better general effects than the system we are now using, but certainly require that the principals and teachers, under the direction of the special teacher of physical culture, should attend to the points named, keeping the matter uppermost whenever any exercises are carried on. I am fully persuaded that this criticism against the system is due to the lack of proper teaching, rather than to any defects in the general aim of the course."

With the quotation, "Enthusiasm should be the dominant factor in the school room. It is the most infectious of spirits and will secure every desirable end in the class," the words to teachers conclude: "In this connection, it is possible might be well to mention that many teachers have a failing in the manner in which they regard the teachers' vocation. It is a business, as any other, and demands one's best and most earnest thought, as well as the most conscientious regard that can be given to it. While engaged in it, it is the duty of every one to make it first. Everything else is purely supplementary. If a teacher feels that her work is beneath her and that it is simply a means of securing a livelihood, the sooner such person steps out the better it will be for the system, and indeed the better will be the results upon the pupils. If a teacher looks upon the hours spent in the school room as so many hours before an engagement, it cannot fail to have a very unsatisfactory effect upon the school."

The Weather.

Dr. Salter was this morning distributing circulars printed in several languages, stating that for six days in the week from 7 a. m. until 6 p. m. working mothers can leave their young children at the Bethel day nursery as they go to their labor and call for them as they go home—all for 5 cents per day. A competent nurse will care for the little ones and a hot lunch and bath will be provided. One room is provided with separate cribs for each child and another room is supplied with toys and pictures.

MARINE MATTERS.

James Fisk, Jr., Took Out Clearance Papers This Morning.

The James Fisk, Jr., of the Crescent line, has the distinction of taking out the first clearance at this port this year. She cleared at the customs house yesterday afternoon, with 10,000 bushels of flax consigned by A. B. Taylor and a top load of 1000 barrels of flour, consigned by the Imperial Mill company, all to H. L. Chamberlain at Buffalo. She will leave port just as soon as possible.

Capt. Benson sent the tug Carrington through the ice at the upper end of the Omaha slip yesterday afternoon releasing the Alta, the steamer Thomas Wilson, a couple of whaleback barges and the Porter Bros. dredging and sand pumping outfits.

F. W. Smith has taken active financial management of the Smith-Fee line at steamers, barges, tugs and scows, and has disposed of his extensive law library and practice to Cotton, Dibblel & Collins. The change went into effect yesterday.

There are 41 steam, 2 sail and 1 unrigged vessels enrolled at this port, with a combined tonnage of 293,51 tons, at Kettle Point reef Tuesday was released last night. Her forefoot is gone and she is leaking badly. She has had to lighter 18,000 bushels of wheat.

A NICE LITTLE JOKE.

But the Extra Baggage Was Too Much For the Chicago Man.

"We had some fun last week," said the drummer to the hotel clerk Saturday night after he had taken his supper and his week's work was done.

"Go on," suggested the clerk encouragingly.

"It was up at a station on the Flint and Pere Marquette railroad, where there is a sawmill and a store or two and timber is plenty. There were three or four of us, one of the party a young Chicago drummer, who was as fresh as Lake Michigan. He was jollying everybody as we were waiting for a delayed train, and at last he tackled the man who checked the baggage.

"I say," he said to him, with a wink at the rest of us, 'can I get a trunk checked here for Detroit?'

"Certainly, if you've got a ticket," replied the baggage man.

"That's all right. I've got the ticket, but checking the trunk is what bothers me."

"Don't worry about that, mister," said the simple minded baggage man. 'I can check any sort of trunk you've got.'

"This is such a trunk as I never saw checked," explained the Chicago fresh.

"Bring on your trunk; I'll fix it," insisted the baggage man, who was as fresh as Lake Michigan.

"I'll let you $5 you won't do it," bluffed the Chicago man.

"The baggage man replied by taking out a fiver and putting it in my hands, and Chicago came up smiling and put his throo.

"Wait," he said to the baggage man, with another wink at me, 'till I go back to the hotel and get it.'

"Then he disappeared, and in about 10 minutes he pulled up alongside of the platform with a trunk of cattle dragging the trunk of a tree about 25 feet long and 2 feet in diameter at its smallest girth.

"Here you are," shouted the Chicago man, with a big laugh of triumph; 'bring on your check. This is my trunk.'

"Got to see how much it weighs," said the baggage man quietly. "Lay on your 100 pounds, I should say there was about 3,000 pounds extra baggage in that trunk, and it'll cost you something over $50 to get it down to Detroit. Hurry up, Bill," he called to the driver, "that trunk'll be along in 10 minutes."

"But Bill didn't hurry. The Chicago man paid him half a dollar for his trouble, yielded up his V to the green and guileless baggage man, and didn't have anything more to say to anybody."—Detroit Free Press.

So That Settles That.

"All right," he said, smiling at the drummer. Then to the rest of the team, "Haul it over onto them hay scales, Bill, and weigh it."

"What's that for?" asked the drummer, without a wink to any of us.

James McLaughlin, upon the same charge, confessed his guilt and was given fifteen days in the county jail for repentance.

The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less account of the perilous than the deep than the almost certainty of seasickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travelers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with pure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts the climatic and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for colds, complaints, rheumatism and debility.

PANIC ON TODAY

Wall Street is a Scene of Great Excitement Today, Following the Cordage Company's Collapse.

The Stock Exchange Was Very Wild and the Slaughter of the Industrials Was Awful.

"Deacon" White Again Forced to Assign Owing to Drop in Cordage and Chicago Gas.

Stocks Dropped and Rallied and Fell Again, and Several Other Failures Increased the Nervousness.

NEW YORK, May 5.—This was the worst day Wall street has seen in this week of woe. The hopes indulged in last evening that the panic had run its course were premature. The stock market opened amid great excitement and with prices about the same as yesterday's closing. It was very soon apparent that many more must be sold out regardless of prices. The discrimination of the banks against certain stocks, especially the industrials as collaterals in loans, has compelled their holders to throw them overboard.

The slaughter of the industrials was awful and it was very quickly seen that there must be more failures. No house largely interested in these stocks could be expected to remain solvent. By 9:30 o'clock the galleries of the stock exchange began to fill. Yesterday's exciting events had attracted every one's attention, and the public has awakened to the fact that panic was in the air. On "Nineteen for cordage," came on the instant, and the sale of 5000 shares at that price was in a moment recorded on the tickers.

The sugar crowd, the St. Paul crowd and the Chicago gas crowd were having a high old time for the spectators. Their interests lay with the Chicago crowd, which was the most conspicuous in point of numbers and on account of the greater demonstrations with voice and pads waved aloft.

When asked if it was contemplated to reorganize the National Cordage company, Mr. White said: "I don't know. It will come to that, I believe. It is all the affairs of the creditors and stockholders to do."

"DEACON" WHITE'S FAILURE.
Again Forced to Assign, Owing to the Drop in Securities.

NEW YORK, May 5.—S. V. White & Co., announced their suspension at 10:45 o'clock this morning. S. V. White's sheet went through the clearing house all right last night and his checks were certified. Mr. White says: "The terrific drop in cordage and Chicago gas makes it impossible for me to go on."

Mr. White was very much broken up this morning. He was besieged by his friends and brokers through whom he has been dealing. It was not until after 10 o'clock that Mr. White realized that an assignment was necessary. No idea of the extent of the failure could be learned at the office.

At 11:10 a. m. Mr. White made the following statement to the press: "The unexpected drop in all securities has made it impossible for me to realize in securities or to collect margins to meet my engagements."

WALL STREET EXCITED.
Great Flurry in Stocks, Marked by Heavy Declines.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The appointment of receivers for National Cordage at a late hour last night was the occasion for a further break in the preferred stock this morning to 45. Yesterday it closed at 77 bid. The common opened at 19 1/2, 21, 5000 shares changing hands at this price.

The story of the break which followed needs no repetition. Just what condition the affairs of the trust are in is extremely difficult to ascertain. Appleton Sturgis, the spokesman for the company, said that before the receivership yesterday the company was in magnificent shape. He declared that prosperity shone upon it, that it was not stocked up with merchandise, that sales were good and made at profitable prices and that plenty of money was on hand to meet all obligations and coming interest charges.

"No matter what may happen to any individual who may be connected with that corporation," said Mr. Sturgis, "the National Cordage company is all right." The total liabilities of the company can only be inferred. A clever guess put them at just $2,500,000, the amount of the contemplated issue of preferred stock. Where the loss will fall, other than upon the stockholders, cannot be definitely learned. Many banks and banking corporations had discounted the company's paper and these are not confined to the city alone, but are spread broadcast over the country.

It is rumored in Wall street that the firm had at least $2,000,000 of its notes in the banks. This, however, was denied upon the word of two prominent firms of note brokers. They said that the company had not been large borrowers of money on the market recently. A member of one of the firms remarked that the amount of paper would not much exceed $500,000, as the company had indorsed its bills receivable and marketed those instead of issuing its own paper. The other note brokerage firm said that the company had settled transactions of large amounts with them only yesterday morning.

John Good, president of the John Good Cordage and Machine company, the liveliest and most successful competitor of the National Cordage company, said in regard to the failure of the trust that anyone knowing the situation must have foreseen the end. He added: "Ever since I withdrew my relations with the company they have been selling their output at a loss. It has been a bit of the fact that they could not use my patents, which reduce the cost of manufacture greatly. Their own machinery was obsolete, and while I could sell my output at a low figure they, to meet my prices, have had to sacrifice two cents a pound on every bit of manilla rope they produced."

"The cost of the trust and to manufacturers outside the combination had been during the past thirteen months in round figures about 30 per cent. higher. It was a tight fight, but I could stand it and they could not. Of course everyone knows that I could undersell them and still make money. The bankers knew it, too. While they were paying me to keep idle it was well enough. They could sell their paper freely and their collateral was good in loan. But from the time I withdrew my output, the situation changed. The conflict was much to be regretted, but I believe it will come out all right in the end. No one need lose a dollar. If the cordage trust creditors and John Good should come together, the matter could be satisfactorily adjusted. It will come to that, I believe. It is all the affairs of the creditors and stockholders to do."

After the first defeat sustained by the government, when even the capital fell into the hands of Gen. Bonilla, leader of the revolutionary troops, Vasquez with great effort increased his army and recaptured Tegucigalpa. Now he has completely defeated the revolutionists, and has been received that the new government has been recognized by Salvador and Guatemala.

URUGUAY INVADDED.
Brazilian Troops Entered to Steal Horses and a Fight Ensued.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Herald's Valparaiso special says: The Herald's correspondent in Montevideo telegraphs that the most recent violation of the territory of Uruguay occurred Wednesday by the Castibista troops. Col. Amaro entered Uruguay and the territory near Rivera. His intention was to steal horses.

The commissary of police protested against the invasion, but Amaro threatened to kill him. Gen. Garcia, chief of the forces near the frontier, advised of the invasion and started in pursuit with a troop of cavalry.

The two forces met near the line, a fight followed in which two officers and forty-eight men of the Brazilian forces and twelve of Uruguay were killed.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.
Opening of the Twenty-Third Annual Session at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5.—Today the twenty-third annual session of the Young Men's Christian association of the United States and Canada convenes. The general secretaries and physical directors, many of whom arrived last night, will be present in large numbers at the welcome service held at the First Presbyterian church this evening.

Major Tyler will deliver the welcoming address on behalf of the city. G. A. Warburton, the general international secretary of the association, is expected to arrive from New York this morning.

circulation of rumors affecting the solvency of other firms and individuals. At 11 a. m. the market was still feverish. Theodore Havermans, vice-president of the sugar company, says there is absolutely nothing in the affairs of the company that would warrant the break of the morning. The company has a large surplus and is a very large loaner of money.

President Waterbury of the National Cordage company, said this morning that he had not applied for a receiver for himself individually. He would not say whether or not application would be made for one. He said that his affairs had become somewhat embarrassed through loans which he made to the cordage company as well as attempts made to support the stock. The receivership of the company will in a measure relieve him as well as his associate, Mr. Wall, of pressure from the cordage obligations, thus strengthening their position.

There has been a change for the better in the stock market in the last hour and a steadier tone characterizes the dealings. The foreign buying has been on a very heavy scale and European purchasers certainly picked up some very cheap stocks. The example set by the foreigners and the confidence displayed in our securities revived the drooping courage of home operators and a general rally ensued. Manhattan bounced up to 120 1/2 from 125, a gain of 5 1/2 per cent. General electric rallied from 58 to 77 1/2. Sugar rallied to 7 1/2 and Chicago gas from 59 to 72 1/2. The general railway list showed recoveries of anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent.

At the office of Ferris & Kimball, whose failure was announced at 12:45 o'clock, it is stated that no statement of the condition of the firm will be given out until late this afternoon. The firm is composed of William A. Kimball and Floyd Ferris. It has offices at No. 6 Wall street. The shrinkage in the industrials carried down the concern.

A feature of the market for railway and miscellaneous bonds was a break in Security corporation at 82c. The last previous reported sale was at 96c. This is the company that was organized to finance the National Cordage. The failure of B. S. Smith & Co. yesterday brought out these bonds.

The following stocks were sold out under the rule at the New York stock exchange today, presumably for S. V. White: 2100 American Sugar, 700 Atchison, 300 Cordage, 100 Lead, 100 Erie, 200 New York & New England, and 20 Western Union.

The posted rates of sterling exchange have been reduced 1/2 to $4.86 1/2. One of the Canadian banks quotes rates at $4.85 1/2 @ $4.88. The posted rates are about $4.81 1/2 for bankers' sixty days, $4.86 1/2 for demand, $4.86 1/2 @ $4.87 1/2 for cables. The demoralization is due to heavy purchases of securities for foreign account which have increased the volume of exchange. There will be no gold shipments tomorrow. The stringency in the money market, call loans having advanced to 20 per cent, also has a tendency to weaken sterling.

Just previous to 2 o'clock money on call fell to 6 per cent owing to the heavy offerings of funds by commission houses. As a result the market for stocks became comparatively calm and brokers enjoyed the only real resting spell they have had this week. Indications point to the fact that considerable amounts of stock have been taken up and paid for.

About 2 o'clock the failure of W. L. Patton Co. was announced, but this suspension did not exert much influence on values. At this time of writing the market is somewhat feverish although some stocks are actually above last night's closing. The firm consisted of W. L. Patton and Henry L. Saltonstall. Patton, the board member, bought his stock April 1, 1892. The liabilities are not known.

VASQUEZ HAS TRIUMPHED.
The Revolution in Honduras Ended by the Rebels' Defeat.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Herald's Panama, Colombia, special says: News has reached here of the complete triumph of Gen. Vasquez, leader of the government troops, against the revolutionists in Honduras. Vasquez has assumed command of the provisional government.

After the first defeat sustained by the government, when even the capital fell into the hands of Gen. Bonilla, leader of the revolutionary troops, Vasquez with great effort increased his army and recaptured Tegucigalpa. Now he has completely defeated the revolutionists, and has been received that the new government has been recognized by Salvador and Guatemala.

THE PINE RING

Maj. Baldwin Has Returned to the Attack on Timber Thieves and Something Will Drop.

A Public Exposure Will Come Sooner or Later of Those Engaged in the Frauds.

The Major Called on the President Today and Presented Endorsements of Candidates for Offices.

Are for Offices Outside the Sixth District and May Precipitate the Fight on Doran.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—[Special to The Herald.]—Representative Baldwin has renewed his fight against the Minnesota pine land ring, and indications today are that sooner or later there will be a public exposure of the frauds said to have been committed in Minnesota for the past ten years. Maj. Baldwin has enlisted several strong supporters here to make the fight with him, and has also received good support from Minnesota. Secretary Smith is giving him due attention now, and the pine land ring in Minnesota may yet be made to suffer for the frauds it is said to have perpetrated. Representative Baldwin was a visitor at the White House today and presented to the president his endorsement of certain candidates for appointive offices in Minnesota outside of his district. He did this upon the request of the applicants. Of course neither the endorsement of Maj. Baldwin nor Mr. Hall will amount to anything with Mr. Doran at Washington. If Baldwin ever decides to make a fight against Mr. Doran's power, and Mr. Hall has backbone enough to combine with him, Mr. Doran would probably not be able to secure all the offices at any rate in Minnesota, even outside the districts of these two congressmen.

MOUNTAIN, IRON, Minn., May 5.—[Special to The Herald.]—An unknown man enticed Richard Giffin's two little girls, aged 4 and 5 years, into the woods near here yesterday afternoon and criminally assaulted them.

A mob is now looking for the miscreant and if he is captured they will probably lynch him. The two girls are badly injured and their recovery is doubtful.

IS BECOMING WEALTHY

Ex-Governor Campbell's Investments on the Western Mesaba Have Turned Out to be Very Profitable.

How Maj. Baldwin Was Presented With Shares by Dr. Barrett and the Happy Result.

The Handsome Income Which the Doctor-Editor is Now Deriving From His Lucky Venture.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—[Special to The Herald.]—There are rumors afloat in Washington which strongly indicate that it is not a success as a politician, that he is pretty certain to become one of the wealthy men of the country in the near future. Ex-Governor Campbell is president of one of the big mining companies on the Mesaba range in Northern Minnesota. The Democratic ex-governor became interested in the Mesaba country a little more than two years ago.

GOVERNOR CAMPBELL.

It is not known here exactly what interest he has in the company, of which he is the president, but it is anywhere near as large as it is supposed to be, his income from his Minnesota mining investment must be very large indeed. Representative Baldwin is vice president of the company of which ex-Governor Campbell is president.

It was little more than two years ago when Dr. Barrett, of Tower, came to Maj. Baldwin and asked him to accept the vice presidency of the company then being organized. Maj. Baldwin consented and a few days later Dr. Barrett again visited the major and offered him 139 shares of stock in the company. Maj. Baldwin was not disposed to accept the stock.

"Give me one share," said he, "and that will make me eligible as a member of the company, so that I can accept the vice presidency. I don't care to take anything for which I give no return." Dr. Barrett laughed and said: "Never mind, major, take the 139 shares of stock, for I cannot guarantee that they will ever be worth anything."

Maj. Baldwin accepted the proffer of Dr. Barrett, became vice president of the company, and until within a few days ago did not realize that he had struck a bonanza. In a letter which he wrote the other day was the first dividend paid by the company to the stockholders and the major's dividend on the 139 shares of stock he held was computed at $17,500. It is understood that he wrote a very touching letter to Dr. Barrett and incidentally mentioned to the doctor that while he was thankful that the Duluth physician was so lucky, he was very well satisfied with himself because he had retained the stock offered him a couple of years ago.

From what can be learned here, it is now understood that Dr. Barrett's income in the Mesaba company, of which ex-Governor Campbell and Maj. Baldwin are officers, is in excess of $17,500. All this indicates that the men interested in ex-Governor Campbell's company have struck a very rich find in the Mesaba country.

STRICKEN DEAD.

TRUTHFUL STATEMENTS.

A recent New York dispatch reads: "James C. H., a fine looking and apparently healthy man, was observed to stagger while walking on Fifth Avenue this afternoon, and after taking one or two uncertain steps fell to the sidewalk. When picked up he was dead. A physician examined the body and pronounced heart disease the cause of death. A peculiarly sad feature of the case is that Mr. H. was in the way to Maine, to settle in the home of his brother. He had passed the previous ten years in the western mining country, and had amassed a fortune. If you have any of the symptoms given in the following testimonials you should lose no time in seeking relief."

From John L. Roberts, Statington, Pa.: "I have suffered with palpitation, irregular pulse, fainting and smothering spells, pain in shoulders, side, and arms for over forty years. For twelve years have been treated without avail by prominent physicians in my neighborhood and in New York. Growing constantly worse, smothering spells followed one another, so my life was often in danger and I needed constant care. As my son had been cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, he sent me three bottles. The first dose gave me instant relief. Before using the last bottle I was completely cured. Although seventy-five years old I feel ten years younger. I claim my cure to be almost a miracle."

Here is a letter from Mrs. John Kolges, of Cleveland, O.: "I had been troubled with my heart and stomach for years, but for sixteen months had been confined to my bed. I had four of the best doctors in the city, but none of them could benefit the weakness of my heart. I also had dropsy and rheumatism. I never took medicine that relieved me at once as Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure does. I am much stronger. My appetite is splendid. I gain strength with every dose. I have gained more in six weeks than I have in more than sixteen months from all the doctors."

"Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure for the Heart is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists. It is safe, effective, agreeable, and does cure." Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

HIS TUSKS CUT OFF.

Man-Killing Elephant Undergoes a Necessary Surgical Operation.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Big Tip, the Asiatic man-killing elephant at the Zoo, has had his tusks cut off. He rebelled as only an angry elephant can rebel, but was chained fast and rendered powerless. Tip's tusks measured about eight feet. They weigh about seventy pounds, and are very valuable. Up under the thick skin of Tip's face they measured over eight inches in diameter.

Snyder is the only man who can handle the animal. He put Tip's martingale on as usual and chained his head as low as possible. Then he double-hopped the animal, or chained his feet, gave him an extra amount of bran mash and hay to put him in a good humor, and went to work on him with a small, fine-toothed saw.

Tip felt the grating of the steel and became nervous. He tugged at his chains as if he would rip every link apart. As this proved futile he backed against the wall and shook the whole building. Snyder only laughed. Tip heard the chuckle and waxed wroth. He trumpeted, snorted, reared, and plunged, struck sideways at the little man beside him, but soon found that he was powerless as a baby. It took Snyder just an hour to get through the job.

WOMEN HAVE A QUARREL.

Politics Cause a Row in a British Temperance Association.

LONDON, May 5.—The meeting of the British Women's Temperance association yesterday was of an exciting character and attended by evidence of temper and even ebullitions of passion. The delegates seemed hardly able to control their feelings and even their tongues, and a feverish feeling seemed to pervade the assemblage.

It is expected that, owing to the vote re-electing Lady Somerset as president, and thereby virtually endorsing her proposition to bring politics into the association, 175 branches of the association will secede from the association. It is stated that the secretary of the convention, feeling that she has been insulted, has gone home in a passion.

Two hundred of the delegates to the present gathering will, it is reported, meet in Rev. Dr. Parker's temple, refusing to assemble again under the same roof as the "Somerset party," as they call the majority that re-elected Lady Somerset.

THE POSTOFFICE RECORDS.

Less Removals Now Than Under the Harrison Administration.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—A statement, prepared from the records of the post-office department, shows that during the first two months of the present administration the total number of fourth class postmasters appointed was 3894, as against 5014 made during the first two months of the Harrison administration.

The number of appointments made during the last two months to fill vacancies caused by resignations and deaths was 2085, as against 1880 made during the corresponding period of the last administration. The number of removals made during the last two months is shown to have been only 1209, while the number of removals made during the first two months of the Harrison administration reached 3496.

DEATH OF A MISER.

Surprising Find Made in an Old Barrel in a Cellar.

MILLERSBURG, O., May 5.—William Kidd, father of Mrs. T. B. Lemon, died and was buried here last week. He was a miserly man, and died as he was in the most destitute circumstances. He was always pleading poverty, yet when he died he owned two good farms, but as he made no will it was supposed that he had no personal property.

When the administrator searched the property this week he was surprised, when, in overturning an old barrel in the cellar, he found a tin can in which was $2000 in gold and $133 in greenbacks. The can was eaten by rust and some of the gold was lying in the ground. The money was divided equally among the children and heirs. Mrs. Lemon received $500 of the fund.

MINISTER'S WIFE GORED.

Vicious Cow Nearly Tramples an Ohio Woman to Death.

TIFFIN, O., May 5.—Mrs. Bartlebaugh, wife of the minister of the Church of Christ, was attacked by a vicious cow last evening and terribly trampled before assistance could reach her.

Several ribs and an arm were broken and her body covered with bruises. Serious internal injuries were inflicted which render Mrs. Bartlebaugh's condition critical.

Ended Without Bloodshed.

NEW YORK, May 5.—A private dispatch from Havana says: Matters in Santiago de Cuba are of no importance. The alarm given was unfounded. The two brothers, Sarto Kios, have surrendered with twenty-nine men and availed themselves of the full pardon. There are still at large three more men, who will no doubt soon surrender. Everything is pacific and terminated without bloodshed.

LEWIS BAKER'S POST

He Will Encounter All the Excitement of a Revolution on His Arrival in Nicaragua.

Ex-President Savala is Leader of the Insurgents and Has Captured the Town of Granada.

The Movement is the Outcome of Old Hostility Between Two Sections of the Republic.

PANAMA, via Galveston, May 5.—Mail advices bring the news that a revolution has broken out in Nicaragua. The movement is the outcome of the old hostility entertained by the Eastern department toward the Western department of the republic. Ex-President Savala is leader of the insurgent forces. He has succeeded in capturing the important city of Granada, capital of the province of the same name. Savala's success in getting possession of the place is said to be due to treason on the part of the garrison.

United States Minister Shannon, accompanied by his family, took passage on the steamer at the Nicaragua seaport of Corinto for home.

WILL BOYCOTT THE FAIR.

Threats Made in Case of Sunday Opening at the Fair.

CINCINNATI, O., May 5.—A special to the Evening Post from Chicago says: "In case the exposition gates are opened next Sunday, it is reported that the word for a boycott will be telegraphed far and wide among the religious organizations of the country, and that a determined effort will be made to destroy the financial prospects of the show, in order that a telling blow may be struck against the non-observance of the Sabbath at future expositions."

The great hotels which have been erected in Chicago by representatives of various national religious organizations will be the greatest sufferers if a boycott is declared, and the managers are in a state of dire alarm over the prospect. It is known that thousands of members of the Christian Endeavor society throughout the country are in a state of alarm over the prospect. The gathering in Chicago, it is reported, will be a telling blow may be struck against the non-observance of the Sabbath at future expositions.

Men who are well informed regarding religious journalism in America declare that fully three-fourths of the weekly newspapers of this class will join in urging people to stay away from Chicago.

CONTROLLERS OF MILLIONS.

Those Affected by the Recent Yates Failure Have a Meeting.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Representatives of corporations and individuals in Canada, Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and New York affected by the recent Yates failure in Rochester, N. Y., met at Moran, Krause & Mayer's office in the Unity block yesterday.

The Lehigh Coal & Iron company, Dominion Transportation company, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad and H. H. Warner were among the interests represented. The gathering included half a dozen bank presidents and as many capitalists.

The small room in which they met held, it was said, the controllers of the Yates failure. The gathering, it was said, was a very important one, and it was understood that the subject under consideration was the reorganization of some of the concerns mentioned.

BIG-HEADED BOY AGAIN.

Supports an Enormous Weight Upon a Fifteen Pound Body.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross and son have moved from Morrellville to Michigan. The son, an outsider, was not larger than that of a baby, has a head almost the size of a half-bushel measure. It is 39 inches in circumference, while the rest of the body weighs but fifteen pounds.

The boy is several years old, and his parents have refused several lucrative offers from museum men, who wish to exhibit him. The mother is devotedly attached to the little fellow and keeps him from public gaze as much as possible. He is well, though not strong, and has average mental faculties for his age.

SUCCEEDS BISHOP BROWNS.

Dean Lawrence, the Broad Churchman Elected Bishop.

BOSTON, May 5.—The Episcopal convention yesterday chose Dean Lawrence, of Boston, the Broad churchman's candidate, as bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts.

Bishop-Elect Lawrence is a son of Amory Lawrence, the eminent Bostonian. He was born in Brookline. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1871. He became the professor of homiletics and pastoral care in his alma mater, the Cambridge school, and in 1889, on the death of Dean Grey, he became dean, retaining the professorship also.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Indian Commissioner Browning has decided that the Minnesota Canal company will have to go to congress to secure the ratification of leases secured from the Indians to certain lands on Fond du Lac reservation. This decision was communicated to Milton Weston, the engineer, but the company does not regard this decision final.

WITH COLUMBIAN STAMPS.

An Indiana Man Will Paper His Parlor With Stamps.

RICHMOND, Ind., May 5.—Jonathan Staunhope, a farmer, immensely wealthy, living six miles southwest of the city in a region known as the Blue-lick hills, is an individual who has gained for himself considerable notoriety. Staunhope is nearly 84 years of age, and lives with his housekeeper, his wife being dead. He is a native of New Hampshire, but removed to this county twenty years ago. Politically he is a Republican.

The other day Staunhope came to the city and called at the postoffice. To Postmaster Jenkins he presented a check for $3500 and asked that stamps to that amount be given him. He wanted them of the Columbian pattern, and of 1, 2 and 5 cent denominations. Such a purchase of stamps was unheard of, and of course they were not on hand. He insisted on leaving the check, and the understanding that the stamps be immediately sent for.

To a number of his friends and neighbors Staunhope has made known his intent to paper the parlor of his home with Columbian stamps, and he is firm and unchanged in the idea. His son, who resides in Kansas City, says his father is undoubtedly daff, and that he will not allow him to throw away accumulated wealth in this manner. On the other hand, Staunhope insists that he is not in the least eccentric, and that he will purchase the stamps and paper the room with them if he is compelled to make a trip to Washington after them.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE.

A Steamer Crowded With Pilgrims Burned off the Arabian Coast.

ADEN, May 5.—The destruction is reported of the British steamship Khiva off the Arabian coast, probably with an appalling loss of life. The Khiva sailed from Bombay April 12, carrying a large number of Mohammedans bound as pilgrims to Mecca.

The pilgrims were so numerous that they crowded the vessel, taking up all available room. It is learned that the Khiva was burned off Ras (Cape) Marbel, on the coast of Arabia. Of the great number on board 900 are said to have been saved, the others perishing in the sea or the flames which consumed the vessel. The details of the event are yet lacking.

A Normal School Assigns.

LEBANON, O., May 5.—The National Normal University company has made a general assignment for the benefit of its creditors. Liabilities are estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000 and the assets at from $25,000 to $30,000. The institution is widely known as Holbrook's normal school and has been in existence about forty years. The maturing of old debts, however, has been the cause of the collapse.

World's Fair Visitors.

An intending visitor to the coming World's fair at Chicago need have no fear as to the possibility of securing satisfactory accommodations at reasonable rates, at either the many hotels or residences listed in a neat pamphlet entitled, "Homes for Visitors at the World's Fair," compiled at great expense and published by a trustworthy Chicago firm. This book contains a list of about 6000 private families who will accommodate visitors in Chicago during the time of the fair, viz: May 1st to October 30th; gives their names and addresses, and number of rooms each will have to spare. The book also gives a list of the hotels and their locations; has twelve full-page, large-scale maps, each representing a section of the city, so that by this information before him the intending visitor himself can, at leisure, select the quarter of the city in which he would prefer to stop, corresponding to his own taste or more rates and the accommodations desired.

The Wisconsin Central lines will in due time publish long excursion rates to Chicago and return for this occasion, while its double daily passenger train service, including through sleeping and dining cars to Chicago, will as usual be at the head of the list in every particular.

To help you in fixing in advance upon your place of residence while attending the World's fair, we have placed in the hands of our agent at your station copies of this work, which may be obtained at 50 cents per copy.

The Work of Excavating for the New Brass Foundry Buildings Has Been Begun.

Duluth Manufacturing Company Yesterday Shipped the First of the Thatcher Dump Cars.

Merrill & Ring Started Their Sawmill Yesterday to Test the Machinery—Will Saw Monday.

The work of excavation for the new brass foundry has progressed rapidly the past week and the stone masons will commence on the foundation next week. The winding machinery for the Great Western has arrived from Chicago including 450 machines of various patterns. It will take about a month to set them up and get them in running order. The winding force will increase the number of employees about 100, fifty or sixty of whom will be women. A department for drawing wire is also to be added to the establishment and will be in operation by next fall.

The Duluth Manufacturing company yesterday shipped the first of the new Thatcher dump cars to the Biwabik Ore company. The cars were tested a day or two ago and found to work very satisfactory. Work on the blacksmith shop has begun by the driving of piles for the foundation.

Merrill & Ring started their mill yesterday afternoon to try the machinery. The season's run will begin next Monday. They expect to run during the day time a band, circular and gang saw and at night will operate band and circular saws. Mitchell & McClure have blown part of the ice out of their boom and they too will begin sawing on Monday.

The Ironton Structural Steel company's plant at Ironton is fast nearing completion. A force of sixty-five mechanics are now at work on the buildings and machinery. The project of putting in a blast furnace and manufacturing their own pig iron direct from the ore is now under consideration by the company.

West Duluth Briefs.
O. Hagen and wife, of Iron River, Wis., are in the city.
R. W. Mars went up on the range yesterday on business.

Mr. Fenton, the hardware merchant, has moved his store across Central avenue nearly opposite his old stand.

McArthur & Gertchell are repapering and repainting their office.

John Capliss has moved his saloon into his building on Central avenue, opposite the Silver block, after making extensive improvements about the structure.

The Loyal Legion of Omaha, will hold a "Silver Dollar Contest" at the Merritt block this evening commencing at 7:45 sharp. A pleasing program has been prepared.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. gave a "Temple Tea" in their room in the city hall yesterday afternoon. A character entertainment was given and refreshments served.

The little son of C. L. Eaton was slightly injured this morning while playing on Second street south by accidentally getting under the wheels of a passing delivery wagon.

On Wednesday evening the West Duluth lodge A. O. U. W. was visited by the officers of the Minnesota grand lodge then in annual session at Duluth.

Scarlet fever seems to be becoming quite prevalent in town, there having a number of new cases developed during the past week.

VERY SERIOUS CHARGES.

Two Boys Arrived on a Steamer Tell a Startling Story.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Jacob Zaaler, 16 years of age, and his cousin Abraham Rinzier, a few years older, both of whom arrived here on the Netherlands-American steamship Edam last Tuesday, make serious charges against the captain and surgeon of the vessel.

They declare that Zaaler's sister, a girl of 15, was taken ill on board the ship April 26. An eruption broke out on her face and she was placed in the hospital. The surgeon isolated her and refused to allow either her brother or cousin to see her. Several days after the girl's confinement in the hospital, the cousin stole into the place and he says the girl then told him that she had received no medicine nor food since her illness.

A day later the young girl died and her body was placed in a canvas bag and thrown into the sea. It was given out that she died from pneumonia. At quarantine when the vessel arrived no report was made of the symptoms of the disease. According to the statement that Zaaler and Rinzier now make the surgeon, when asked if the girl was seriously ill, said that she was not and that she must get well and if she did not get well, they would be detained forty days at quarantine.

The Edam passed by quarantine with- out disinfection and, it is said, there was no fumigation of the vessel after the death of the girl.

WAS QUIETLY SETTLED.

The Hazards at Ohio Wesleyan University Settle Their Cases.

DELAWARE, O., May 5.—The case of the Ohio Wesleyan university hazards, which has attracted general attention throughout the country, is settled and withdrawn from the courts. Ever since the postponement of the trial a week ago negotiations for a settlement have been going on.

Last night the parties met and signed a written contract according to the terms of which the juniors agree to drop all legal proceedings, both criminal and civil, and the hazards agree to make good all the expenses which have been incurred by their victims including physicians' and attorneys' bills and incidental expenses. It is generally conceded that a conviction under the standing charge would be impossible beyond assault, and a quiet settlement was considered the best method.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Reports of the Rebels' Surrender Are Discredited.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Herald's Key West special says: Cubans in that city place no reliance in the reports from Cuba that the revolutionists have surrendered. The special adds: From a private letter it is known that Mangoo left Manzanilla with 300 men Tuesday. It is extremely doubtful that they have surrendered.

The insurgent force in the field is believed to be between 2000 and 3000, with some experienced fighters at their head. Spanish troops will not force a battle until the night days' limit allowed for the surrender of the revolutionists has expired, which will be on May 6. It will be known here Saturday night what the insurgents will do.

THE WORLD'S FAIR TODAY

Rain and Mud and Cold Winds Reduce the Attendance to a Very Large Extent.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO.
May 5.—A cloudy sky, chilly wind, and the presence of mud, owing to last night's rain, kept many people away from the exposition this morning, and unless the weather becomes more inviting in the afternoon the attendance is likely to be less than it was yesterday. Work on the roadways is so nearly completed, however, that a deluge of rain will not make much difference in the walking.

General Director Davis' order that the installation of exhibits should cease with the opening of the gates does not seem to be enforced. The prospect of completing the installation of all buildings by the end of next week does not appear to be bright. The presence of visitors of course retards the work and unavoidable delay in the shipment of exhibits cannot be charged to the exposition. This is notably the case with the Russian, Norwegian and Danish exhibits in the Liberal Art building.

These sections fronting on Columbia avenue are barren of exhibits, and even the pavilions have not been erected yet. This delay was caused by the ice block-ade in the Baltic sea and the accident to the steamer Hecla carrying the exhibits from those countries. Ten weeks were lost in this manner, but the commissioners expect to have all their exhibits on the ground before the second week of the fair opens. The pavilions for the Russian sections were made in that country and are being shipped by rail. The Danish and Norwegian exhibits are in the sections but unpacked.

The only pavilion in the place is one which was made in Chicago from Russian designs, and it will contain an elaborate display of woolen and cotton goods from all the mills in the government of Vladimir. The last car load of Russian exhibits has been promised to the exposition. The Chicago and Cincinnati bands alternated, giving concerts from 10 until 5 p.m.

The weather did not improve as the day wore on and shortly before noon the open air concert was abandoned. They will be resumed as soon as the weather moderates.

The restaurants on the grounds, which have been charging extortionate prices for some time, were severely sat upon this morning by the city inspectors. The council at its meeting adopted the following resolution:

"That it is the sense of this council that all concessionaires enjoying restaurant privileges on the grounds at Jackson Park shall be required to formulate full schedules of prices immediately and submit the same to the committee on the World's Columbian Exposition for approval; and that when so approved said rates ought to be the measure of the charges to be made and should not be thereafter exceeded unless the same shall be modified with the assent of said committee; and that in every case the person patronizing any of the restaurants shall be furnished with a slip or bill of fare showing the charges to be paid for the supplies and services rendered. In case anyone shall be subjected to a charge in excess of said approved schedule rates, such person is invited and requested immediately to submit a written statement thereof to this council, so that the same may be promptly investigated and the offending party dealt with as the circumstances shall warrant, it being the determination of the council that the public patronizing the fair shall not be subjected to any extortion or unreasonable or unjust demand, and it desires to make it plain to the public that the council stood at once that the offending parties may be advertised in advance; that it will take, if necessary, the most summary measures to guard the public against all forms of unjust imposition."

Sunday opening of the World's fair received a serious setback this morning. In the national commission the judiciary committee reported unanimously against the Elbeek resolution providing for the Sunday opening of the gates.

AGREED TO SEPARATE.

A Scandal Involving a Leading New York Family.
NEW YORK, May 5.—The Press says that the suit brought by Mrs. Cornelia G. Aspinwall against her husband, Lloyd Aspinwall, is for the purpose of restraining him from interfering with her estate. An amicable suit, the object of which was the settlement by judicial order of the differences which have existed between them for some time past, was brought in the supreme court and on Tuesday a final order was entered.

A member of the Aspinwall family is quoted as saying: "It was not a suit for a divorce, and there is no scandal other than that involved in a husband and wife agreeing to separate. The suit was brought to have the terms of the separation which Mr. and Mrs. Aspinwall had agreed upon, and which in fact already existed, settled by judicial proceedings. The lawyers got together, discussed the terms of settlement and reached the agreement. Mrs. Aspinwall is given the custody of the two children."

SHINGLE MILL BURNED.

The Largest Mill on the Saginaw River Destroyed.
BAY CITY, Mich., May 5.—The immense shingle mill of J. R. Hall, the largest on the Saginaw river, was burned early this morning at Essexville, together with saw blocks and sheds. Six ice houses of the Bay County Ice company were also destroyed.

The village was without fire protection and the fire tug and engine were sent from this city. Loss $50,000; well insured. The fire was evidently of incendiary origin.

Defrauded the Railroad.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 5.—Today the Missouri Pacific engineers at Sedalia, who were recently dismissed on the charge of having conspired with Time Keeper Cook in defrauding the company out of considerable money, by drawing pay for time not put in, will be given a hearing before General Manager Smith and other officials. Cook recently returned to Sedalia and is now out on bond. He came here Monday and it is believed that he made a statement to the railway officials which the engineers were confronted with at the meeting today.

Suicide at Liverpool.

LIVERPOOL, May 5.—A passenger who arrived from New York on the steamship Arizona of the Gullion line, which sailed from New York April 22, and arrived here May 1, has committed suicide in a General Director's office by shooting himself with a revolver. The name of the suicide is supposed to be Horner.

Must Stay in Prison.

LONDON, May 5.—Sir Francis Jeune, president of the court of probate, has declined to interfere in the case of the Do- wager Duchess of Sutherland, imprisoned in Holloway jail on a charge of contempt of court in having destroyed a document she was permitted to examine after her death. The application for the release of the dowager duchess was made on the ground of ill health.

Stow.
The Chicago drummer and the Detroit drummer were clumping slowly along over a side issue railroad in Indiana, and the Chicago man was amiable.

"Confound it," he said, "won't we ever get started?"

"What's the matter with this?" inquired the Detroit man philosophically.

"It's the slowest train I ever was on," he growled.

"I've seen slower," returned Detroit.

"Well, let me tell you about it," coaxed the Detroit man, "I have had it."

"Where do you sleep the people who in life had their homes above it. The country road from the town passes the railroad station and runs along the track clear to the church. The train going down that way was apparently waiting for a funeral procession to cross the track, and as I stood in the doorway of the passenger coach a customer of mine came by."

"One of our prominent citizens is to be buried today down at Ebenezer," he said, "and I wanted to go, but all the carriages are full."

"Is that his funeral passing?" I asked.

"Yes, I just came down from the house."

"Why don't you get on this train and go?" I inquired. "It takes you right there, doesn't it, and leaves now in two minutes."

"He looked at me as if he felt real sorry for me."

"Yes," he replied scornfully, "but I'll be blamed if I want to get there half an hour after the funeral is over, and the conductor yelled, 'All aboard!'"—Detroit Free Press.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, Minn. May 5.—The storm that was central over the Southwest yesterday morning has moved east and far enough south to just escape this section, and is now central over Eastern Iowa and Western Illinois. It is probable that it will reach Duluth today and not affect this part of the country at all.

Rain has fallen over the Western states and along the lower lake and is now falling over Southern Wisconsin; the heaviest over South Dakota, where over an inch has fallen during the last twenty-four hours.

The temperature has changed very slightly and remains at about normal in all sections. It is everywhere above freezing in the United States.

The mean temperature here yesterday was 42, two degrees lower than the average. The highest was 48, the lowest 34.

DULUTH, May 5.—Continued fair; slight change in temperature; northeast winds.

R. B. BROWN,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Forecast till 8 p.m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Fair, preceded by showers today in extreme southern portions. For Minnesota: Fair, warmer; winds becoming southeast.

Favored by the Majority.

There seems to be a very general impression at Chicago that, despite the refusal of the national commission to repeal the resolution against Sunday opening, the World's fair will be opened to the public next Sunday and every Sunday thereafter until Nov. 1. This action will be taken by the local directory and those who are in active control of the management. The ground upon which the section of the act of law on this subject will be disregarded has been given in The Herald before, but it may be well to repeat it at this time. Had congress remained true to the agreement ratified when the subscription of $2,500,000 was pledged, the managers of the fair would have been compelled to stand by the contract, no matter how great the injustice to the American people. But the contract was broken, not by the exposition management, but by congress in deliberately withholding for another pure, almost $600,000 of the $2,500,000 which had been appropriated outright to the fair. The contract is, therefore, no longer in force. It is binding on no one. The exposition refuses to accept the $600,000 on the new conditions imposed.

The only reason that ever existed for closing the fair on Sunday existed in that contract. The government having violated the contract, the reason no longer exists. "The reasons for an open Sunday fair," says the Chicago Herald, "are multitudinous and are founded in wisdom and justice. Chief among them is the benefit that will thereby be conferred upon the working classes. The fair is to be a great educator. It was planned and built largely with a view to educating, entertaining and improving the working classes. They contributed to its creation. It is but proper that they should be given every opportunity to enjoy its blessings. If the fair is closed on Sunday they will, in a great measure, be deprived of that opportunity. It is unnecessary to repeat the argument that a closed fair on Sunday means that many workmen will be prevented from entering its gates at any time. That is a fact admitted by all sensible men."

By closing the fair on Sunday nearly four weeks of the six months during which it is proposed to run the exposition will be lost to the public, and to that part of the public upon which the regulation will impose special hardship. The time fixed upon for operating the exposition is short enough without further abbreviation by the enforcement of the arbitrary rule which is condemned by the great body of the people. It will not be possible for all who desire to see the fair to do so with any degree of comfort or convenience even in the normal six months allotted for its existence, and the Kansas City Star says very truly that to curtail this period nearly a month by rendering valueless to the public the one day in the week when laboring people are free to employ their time in their own way is an infringement upon the rights of the masses which cannot be justified by any false regard for the sanctity of the American Sunday.

Professor Felix Adler gave a lecture in New York recently before the Society of Ethical Culture, in which he discussed this question. After a scholarly study of the origin and growth of Sabbath keeping, Mr. Adler made an earnest address in favor of opening the fair on Sunday. In concluding, he said:
"I speak now as a friend of the Sabbath, and not an enemy. I should deplore as much as they the complete secularization of the day of rest that has already gained so much headway. But I think I perceive, as they apparently do not, that they themselves are powerfully, though unconsciously, helping on this very movement toward secularization; also those who are drawing the bow so tensely that it will inevitably snap in their hands. But I wish at least to go on record in the matter, I believe in the American tradition of the Sabbath in so far as the day should be preeminently consecrated to moral and religious uses. But I believe that the American tradition needs to be extended so as to include also those uses which have been called second best. I believe that the element of gloom should be more and more expelled from Sunday observance, that men should be made to realize more and more how pure, how liberalizing and how humanizing is the effect of joy on mind and heart."

A dispatch today says that in the event of the fair being opened on Sunday, the religious organizations of the country will send out a notice to all members to boycott the fair. It is not likely that fear of this threat will have any effect upon the management of the fair in deciding the question. The making of such a boycott would be extremely ill-advised to say the least. No doubt those who insist on Sunday closing are sincere, but their views are narrow and require expansion. They are in the minority. The majority of the people favor Sunday opening.

Prohibition's Enforcement.

One result of the restricted suffrage provided for by the new constitution of Mississippi is that it is giving the county local option law a great boom. Many counties which have heretofore steadily voted down the proposition to abolish the sale of liquor are now going "dry," and this is surprising those who framed the constitution without the slightest idea that the restriction of the suffrage would aid the prohibition cause. But it remains to be seen whether the counties that have now gone "dry," as a result of the reduced suffrage, will enforce prohibition. That is the greatest objection to prohibition laws carried by majority votes. Unless the vote shows that three-fourths of the people favor prohibition, the law will not be enforced.

The latest example of this fact is Iowa. Prohibition is supposed to be the law there, but in many of the cities there is not even a pretense made of enforcing the law. Like other cities in Iowa, the city of Ottumwa now accepts of a certain sum monthly from the saloon men and the saloons are running with open doors. The Press commenting upon the fact says, there is much less drunkenness than when the traffic was entirely in the hands of boot-leggers, and that the city treasury is rapidly being replenished. Kansas is another prohibition state, but it is a notorious fact that the numerous drug stores there are merely saloons in disguise.

The Patronage Row.

The St. Cloud Times is not disposed to accept as true the statement that Maj. Baldwin and Mr. Doran are having a row over the federal patronage, and in a recent issue it says: "As our esteemed friend of The Duluth Herald is disposed to accept as truthful Washington specialists, we call its attention to one elsewhere, wherein Congressman Baldwin characterizes as stuff and nonsense the talk about a patronage row between Mr. Doran and himself."

The Washington special to which the Times refers is to the St. Paul Pioneer Press, and the interview with Maj. Baldwin was prefaced by the following pertinent remark: "This is what he (Maj. Baldwin) had to say on the subject, and it is told for publication, especially as efforts are being made now to patch up all the differences among the Minnesota Democrats."

The Herald therefore believes that Maj. Baldwin did upon that occasion deprecate the talk about a patronage row, as an effort was then being made to patch up the differences between him and Mr. Doran, but it is equally true that a few days previously he said to The Herald's correspondent at Washington that he had no feeling in favor of Mr. Doran, and that he won in the Sixth district despite Mr. Doran's opposition. The Herald knows that its correspondent will not misquote the major. And the fight has not yet been settled.

Governor Penney of Oregon has several times written himself down an ass. His latest long-eared exhibition is made in an insolent reply to Secretary of State Gresham who had telegraphed him as well as governors of other Western states expressing a hope that he would protect the Chinese in his state when the exclusion act takes effect, as there were reports of threatened violence. The small bore governor replied: "I will attend to my business. Let the president attend to his." Oregon must be proud of having such an assinine executive.

Many wild statements are being printed about extortionate charges for accommodations at Chicago, but the facts are, according to the most reliable information that The Herald can obtain, that good, plain accommodations can be obtained at moderate prices, while luxurious accommodations come very high. Those who howl most about extortion are the people who want the best accommodations for what is only a fair price for quarters of medium quality.

A St. Louis preacher of prominence took "House Cleaning" as his theme last Sunday night, and towards the close he startled his hearers by recommendation of two of the best known cleaning compounds now before the public. This is an innovation in pulpit methods, and yet there is no reason why the church funds might not be swollen by charging for advertising of this character.

Duluth is getting considerable undesirable advertising from the action of the common council in "turning down" Bishop McGolrick. The aldermen have still a chance to retrieve their error by reconsidering the vote next Monday evening.

The Erie canal boats are to be run by

The St. Paul News is not doing itself any credit by its malicious attacks on the World's fair. It says it is "the biggest confidence game on the face of the earth," does the News "sworn circulation" rank next on the list?

It is pleasing to learn that the transportation facilities to and from the World's fair grounds at Chicago are adequate. The big crowd last Monday was well handled and with very little delay.

MLLE. NIKITA.

The American Girl Who Will Sing in 104 Concerts at the World's Fair.

Mlle. Nikita, the American girl who created such a stir in Germany and Russia, will sing at 104 concerts during the World's fair. Mlle. Nikita is known in private life as Miss Louise Nicholson. The name she bears on the stage is said to have been given her by an Indian chief who was charmed by her voice and carried her off, keeping her in his death, when she was 12 years of age. She was returned to her parents at the age of 17. She carries to Chicago Arditi's manuscript score of a vocal waltz written for her. Her favorite roles are in "Romeo and Juliet" and in "Faust," both of which she has studied closely with Gounod.

Incidents That Dishearten the Man Who Loves His Country.

Chicago Post: Unpleasant evidences of religious bigotry continue to manifest themselves in various parts of the country. In Rockford, Ill., the new mayor and council adjourned from the council chamber to the larger circuit court room to give the populace a degrading exhibition. The mayor named one Stephen Julien to be chief of the fire department to take the place of Edward Heffron. Heffron is an old and content public servant who had been removed by so-called A. P. A. influence because he is a Roman Catholic. Julien was appointed because he was not a Catholic. The council refused to confirm the new appointment, and adjourned in the midst of a debate (if it may be called by such a name) more worthy of the middle ages than of the nineteenth century.

In Duluth the city council refused to confirm the appointment of one McGolrick to succeed himself as a member of the library board. McGolrick had held this position for years and filled it with distinction, being a citizen of good character and a scholar of much learning. The objection to his reappointment rests solely in the fact that he is the Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese. His rejection has plunged the community in a war of religion which gives no sign of subsiding.

Such incidents are disheartening to the man who loves his country and his race. There can be no such thing as real liberty in the republic so long as bigots, disregarding the constitution and the spirit of our laws, drag religion into politics.

A CASE OF INTOLERANCE.

A Blow Struck at the Equality of American Citizenship.

Milwaukee Sentinel: A case of disgraceful intolerance is reported at Duluth, if the facts are as alleged by the Tribune of that city. The town has a public library in charge of a board, the members of which are appointed by the city council.

The first board was appointed three years ago, consisting of nine members, one of them being the Rev. James McGolrick, Catholic bishop of that diocese. The other eight members were non-Catholics. The terms of three members of the board recently expired, one of them being Bishop McGolrick. The mayor nominated all three; two of them were confirmed without opposition, while the council, by a vote of 10 to 2, rejected Bishop McGolrick. The Duluth Tribune says the only reason for his rejection was that he is a Catholic. It further says he has been a useful member of the board, and that his rejection is a disgrace to the city of Duluth. It was an act, as un-American and as mischievous in its character as Father Galski's admonition to his flock to "vote as Poles and Catholics."

The public library of the city is an institution in which all its people have or should have an interest. Sectarianism has no concern with it. It is equally for the benefit of believers and non-believers in religious matters, for Catholics as well as Protestants. The Catholics have the same rights as other citizens, and every attempt, from whatever source, to introduce discriminations founded upon sectarian prejudices in the management of public affairs, deserves the severest censure.

There are no quarrels so acrimonious as quarrels growing out of differences of opinion on religious subjects. Men rarely quarrel about certainities; no disputes arise over the multiplication table; but men will wrangle and shed each other's blood over a question as to the proper construction of a text, written in a dead language, concerning the meaning of which scholars differ, and no one is certain. They will die fiery deaths in their quarrels, and maintain, respecting the plans and purposes of the Infinite. The strength of devotion in such matters, indeed, is apt to be in inverse ratio to the general enlightenment.

With such tendencies in human nature nothing is more important for the peace of a community than to maintain a tolerant spirit on subjects about which the best of men have never been able to agree. That was the spirit which animated the founders of this government. They did not establish a Catholic or a Protestant government; they made it purely secular, dealing with the affairs of this world, excluding from its jurisdiction all questions of religion, whether Christian or anti-Christian, Jewish or Mohammedan, and leaving to the individual the free choice of the laws and dogmas to which he adheres.

In that manner alone can peace on religious subjects be maintained, and whoever discriminates in public affairs against a citizen on account of his religious creed, so long as that citizen himself acts in conformity with the letter of our secular government, strikes a blow at the equality of American citizenship.

A SALE CONSUMMATED

Assignee R. F. Fitzgerald Yesterday Sold the Simon Clark & Co., Stock to M. O. Hall.

The Price Paid Was $12,500, About $700 in Advance of the Previous Sale.

A. Gibson, the Previous Purchaser, Has a Three Years' Lease of the Store Room.

The stock of the late firm of Simon Clark & Co. was sold yesterday afternoon, in accordance with the advertisement of Assignee R. F. Fitzgerald. In spite of the various affidavits which were made last Saturday that the stock was worth $15,000 and even $20,000, the highest bid received was $12,500. This was from M. O. Hall, and the stock now goes to him.

Although it would seem from the figures that the creditors are $2,500 better off, this is not the case. The sale made to A. Gibson was for $10,000. This, however, did not include the fixtures in the store at 208 West Superior street. For these Assignee Fitzgerald was offered $1,800. Under the sale to M. O. Hall he gets all of these. This, therefore, leaves a gain of $700 which will be considerably reduced by the expenses incurred in the meantime.

What disposition will be made of the stock is uncertain. A. Gibson has a lease of the store room for three years, and it is more than probable that a stock of groceries will be put in and that Simon Clark will manage the store.

New Duluth Concert.

The New Duluth Choral society gave a concert last evening and several Duluth musicians assisted. Professor S. S. Myers is the conductor and several excellent chorus numbers were given. Miss Margaret McDonald sang "The Flower Girl" by Bordese very sweetly and was given an encore. Sydney Brown played a violin solo and as usual was given a hearty reception. Other numbers were by Mrs. W. H. Everett, Miss Belle Hartmann and others and several duet and quartet numbers were given. Miss Gertrude Keyes was accompanist.

Damaged by Fire.

A little after 3 o'clock this morning a house at 316 East Sixth street belonging to Gustaf Erickson was damaged in the interior by fire to the extent of about $500. The property was valued at $2000; insurance $1000. At the time the place was unoccupied save by a man who slept in the basement. The owner thinks the flames originated from the upsetting of a lamp. The fire department responded promptly and did good service in saving the structure from damage save on the interior.

WHEAT DULL BUT HIGHER.

Cash Wheat Neglected, Mills Being Out of the Market.

The wheat market rolled firm and higher this morning and continued strong throughout the whole session. The opening was unchanged from yesterday for cash and higher for July. There was very small business done, but the feeling was strong and prices ruled decidedly firm all day. Spot wheat is in poor demand today, the mills being out of the market. The poor prospect of an early opening of navigation has restricted purchases by the mills, which are unable to ship and find no profit in grinding Chicago at present prices. There was nothing doing in May either, and little in July, and altogether the market was very dull, although firm with advancing tendencies. The close was 1/2 cent higher than yesterday, except for July No. 1 northern, which was 1/2 cent higher, and track wheat which closed 1/2 cent higher. Following were the closing prices: No. 1 hard, cash, 70 1/2 c; May, 70 1/2 c; July, 71 1/2 c; No. 1 northern, cash, 67 1/2 c; May, 67 1/2 c; July, 68 1/2 c; No. 2 northern, cash, 66 c; No. 3, 65 c; Rejected, 52 c. On track—No. 1 northern, 68 c; No. 2 northern, 64 c; No. 3, 62 c. Car inspection today, 3 1/2 c. Receipts—Wheat, 17,500 bus. Cars on track 31; last year, 74.

The Chicago Market.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Closing prices: Wheat, May, 72 1/2 c; July, 73 1/2 c; Corn, May, 41 1/2 c; July, 42 1/2 c; September, 43 c; Oats, May, 32 1/2 c; July, 33 1/2 c; September, 34 c; Pork, May, $10.00; Lard, May, $10.50; July, $10.50; September, $10.75.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Flour: Receipts, 25,400 packages; sales, 415 packages. Moderately active. Wheat: Receipts, 14,000 bus. Sales, 2,000 bus. No. 2 red advanced 1/2 c to 66 1/2 c on higher cables and foreign buying, fell 1/2 c on the unsettled condition of Wall street, advanced 1/2 c with the West and local covering; firm, fairly active; June, 77 1/2 c; July, 78 1/2 c; August, 79 1/2 c; September, 80 1/2 c; October, 81 c; Corn: Receipts, 510 bus; sales, 750,000 bus. DULUTH STOCK EXCHANGE.

Speculation Hindered by the Financial Situation in the East.

The week here has followed, though in far less degree, fluctuations and falls on the Eastern exchanges, and while the opinion is general that the New York tumble is accentuated by sensational reports and is made greater by the attitude of the banks and the government, it had little effect in hindering speculation considerably. For the six days to noon today total sales were 200 shares, or 40 a day, a less average than for some time, but the business generally has been in higher prices. There has been little change in the values, today and that of the week, the movable share and Missabe Mountain have dropped off somewhat. Duluth has occasionally taken place in both listed and unlisted stocks but they have been somewhat scarce.

Shipments over the Duluth and Iron Range road to docks have begun freely, the movement averaging not far from 300 tons daily. The Mesaba is represented in those shipments by the Cincinnati which is sending some ore for the East. The Bismark, from its Mesaba mine, is sending about three cars daily to the Duluth furnace, of a very high grade ore. The products of several more of the Mesaba properties have this week been placed with sales agents at Cleveland. Following are the latest quotations:

CANADIAN PRODUCTS.

The Canadian Pacific Road's Exhibition Car Here Today.

The long looked for Canadian Pacific exhibition car is on exhibition today at the Union depot, and up to 2 o'clock had been visited by over 1200 visitors. It is a very tastefully arranged exhibit of the products of Assiniboia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Athabasca and British Columbia. Aside from the minerals or fruits there are exhibits from 30 farms, comprising two kinds of wheat, eleven kinds of oats, five kinds of barley, and many varieties of peas, beans, etc. The unthreshed grain is very tastefully arranged in small sheaves about the car while the threshed grain is shown in large glass jars.

Interesting mineral exhibits, some fine anthracite and bituminous coal, and a beautiful line of fruits from the Pacific coast are among the principal features. The car is in charge of August Holm, traveling immigration agent, and leaves for Montreal this evening. It has been out a little over six months, has been shown in 184 towns, traveled a little over 5000 miles and been visited by over 65,000 people.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT.

Deputy Sheriff Johnson Must Answer to Two Complaints.

W. N. Johnson, the deputy sheriff who made such a bold stand upon the range the other day when attacked by a mob of dumplings at the time he arrested the proprietor of a "blind pig," is now within the toils himself. Late this morning he was arraigned in the municipal court upon two complaints for assault in the third degree and one in the second degree.

As near as can be learned Johnson hired a company of about thirty Swedes to go out and work on the Mesaba road for Wolf & King, the contractors. The Swedes allege also that they were promised free fare, which was not given whereupon they refused to get off at the camp but essayed to go on to Virginia Johnson, so the story is told, commenced to take from them their luggage as security for their fare. When they objected, he thumped them. The charge for assault in the second degree is based on a complaint that the deputy shot at one fellow with a revolver.

Johnson was arraigned this morning and entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was set for next Friday afternoon.

A Column On Advertising!

THERE ARE

OTHER WAYS OF ADVERTISING

The Hand Bill

Littereth the vestibule, but the newspaper talketh with every member of the family.

The Circular

If sealed deceiveth for a moment but the newspaper is read and harkened unto.

The Wayside Sign

Tempteth the small boy and the robin hunter, but the newspaper rideth in the pocket of the passer by.

The Sign Fence

Stretcheth far across the meadowy wastes, but the railway traveler is engrossed in his newspaper, wherefore the use of the newspaper is the beginning of advertising wisdom.
